SAIGON (AP)—South Viet Nam's powerful high national council was dissolved Saturday in a swift purge carried out by leaders of the Vietnamese armed forces. Many political figures were arrested.

The leaders of the purge did not remove either the chief of state or the prime minister.

South Viet Nam's leading Buddhist layman, Mal The Thien, was among those arrested.

Calm prevailed Sunday morning in the streets while several thousand Buddhists gathered at their headquarters to continue their protest demonstration against the government.

Snow gives Duncan shopping plaza deceptive fairyland look

The worst possible weather forecast was issued Saturday night for the snow-shrouded sections of Vancouver Island and the rest of the B.C. coast—rain, some freezing and some just plain wet.

Road conditions, already treacherous, were expected to become nigh-impossible as predicted showers of rain or wet snow today and Monday follow two days during which:

● Victoria escaped with little snow which is likely to vanish in weekend rain.

● Three of the other four major population centres on Vancouver Island were hit by about two feet of snow which cancelled many activities, clogged roads and choked off power. (See also Page 44).

● Airline flights were cancelled, ferries were delayed, bus schedules were disrupted and main roads on the Island were kept open, with few accidents but hundreds of traffic tieups.

● There was so much snow on Nanaimo Lakes Road that skiing at Green Mountain was stopped because cars could not get through.

● Vancouver recorded its worst traffic mix-ups in years.

● Death totals blamed on the weather totalled three in B.C., seven in Washington state and 20 along the U.S. west coast.

The vagaries of storms charging down from the Gulf of Alaska gave Victoria and most of Vancouver Island's west coast a breather Saturday, and are expected to bring light rain and above-freezing temperatures in the next two days.

Fish Story

Everyone knows it's been cold in Montana recently. Even fish in that state have grown fat for coats to keep warm—or so Martin Pollman of Pecos says as he displays 16-pound mackinaw trout taken from Flathead Lake, Fredes, he admits giving two grey hair wigs to create conversation piece.—(AP)

Flights Cancelled

Snow crept as far south as Patricia Bay, where Air Canada cancelled all scheduled flights until today. Runways were cleared last night.

Ferries to and from Swartz Bay were reported having no problems but Vancouver Island Coach Lines buses to other island points were running late.

RCMP called the Malahat "treacherous sport," but said it and all main island roads were open, although snow tires or chains were needed—or both.

The provincial highways department appealed to motorists to stay off the highways in all snow-plugged areas unless their cars have chains or good snow tires.

'Nobody Prepared'

One Duncan report said traffic jams were blamed on the fact that "snow tires are not enough here . . . everybody understands how serious it is but nobody was prepared for it."

Cars slid off roads and into ditches all over the valley but injuries were minor.

The Cowichan school board called out its entire maintenance crew to work all day Sunday shovelling snow from school roads, most of which are flat, so the schools can reopen Monday.

Occasional showers of mixed rain and snow were the two-day outlook in the Duncan and Nanaimo areas.

Nanaimo's two feet of snow began to turn to slush Saturday

'500' Turkey Shoot Sea Breezes Help Fund

While the rest of Canada was buried in snow, balmy sea breezes provided the best weather conditions ever for the annual Victoria Gun Club Christmas Turkey Shoot at Albert Head.

The only white to show at the meet in aid of the Colonist 500 Fund came from the clay pigeons that winged across the five firing ranges.

HIS FIRST SHOOT

The range is reached by going through Colwood on the No. 14 highway to the Albert Head-Metchosin road junction. Less than two miles along this road the driver comes to the trap grounds which are on the left overlooking the sea.

Saturday was the first trap shoot for Dr. W. D. Kirtland, who left his orthodontics practice (dentistry dealing with irregularities of the teeth) at 2 p.m. to see what trap shooting was all about. He won his first contest.

The doctor was still blasting away as night approached, having moved up from Class D to C.

WOMEN'S SQUADS

"We are hoping to organize some women's squads today," said Doug Beaumont, club secretary.

These will be strictly for amateurs and will not include the only active woman shooter with the club, Mrs. Bonnie McCall, 6358 Central Saanich Road.

To shoot for a turkey, a contestant is teamed up with four others. Each takes 10 shots in turn. At $2.25 plus $1 for shells a person can enter as often as he wishes. Shotgun are provided free.

In addition to the shoots, there are wheel spins for turkeys.

Off Icy Sooke Wharf

Young Mountie Drowns In Patrol Car Plunge

A young RCMP constable was drowned Saturday night when he was trapped in a patrol car that plunged off a wharf into the ocean in Sooke.

The constable, believed recently arrived from eastern Canada, was dead on arrival at Royal Jubilee Hospital about 11:30 p.m.

A spokesman for Victoria detachment said an investigation would be started today.

The constable was apparently driving the patrol car on the wharf when it went over the end into the ocean. The wharf was believed "extremely icy."

RCMP said it had not been determined why the constable could not get out of the car. The car and the body were brought to the surface shortly after 11 p.m.

The fishermen's wharf is located near Maple Avenue and Sooke Road.

Deportation Order 'Payoff Cover-Up'

TORONTO (CP)—The Telegram says Onofrio Minaudo claims his deportation to Italy from Canada last March was a government attempt to cover up a payoff he made to "somebody powerful enough to push the immigration department around."

The report from Custonaci, northwest Sicily, where Minaudo lives, says the former resident of Windsor, Ont., Detroit and Cuba declined to name names and reveal the amount he says he paid because he still hopes to return to Canada.

The Telegram quotes Minaudo saying: "Whether I paid a member of Parliament or a government official, and I'm not saying which it was, certainly it was somebody powerful enough to push the immigration department around."

The alleged payoff took place in 1960.

Minaudo is quoted as saying he wrote External Affairs Minister Paul Martin several months ago about re-entering Canada but never received a reply.

Night Blaze Levels Kiln

WILLIAMS LAKE (CP)—A dry kiln was wiped out early Friday in a 12-hour blaze at the P and T planer mill at Glendale, just outside the Williams Lake city limits.

The kiln and 50,000 feet of finished lumber inside were lost. No cause was immediately established and there was no estimate of the loss.

No Sign of Heart Trouble

Johnson Fit for Four Years

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson approaches his inauguration in excellent health and with a good chance of weathering the next four strenuous and demanding years, says one of his personal physicians.

"There is no health reason why he should not continue an active, vigorous life for many years," Dr. James W. Cain said in an exclusive weekend telephone interview.

Cain, with the Mayo Clinic of Rochester, Minn., added that he has examined Johnson in the White House within the last two weeks.

The 56-year-old president not only shows no adverse effects from the recent, rigorous political campaign, but also "I think he's in better health than I've seen him in years," Cain said.

The campaign ended with Johnson's election Nov. 3 for a four-year term. He will be inaugurated as president for the new period next month.

Cain is one of several physicians who periodically see the president, in addition to Rear Admiral George C. Burkley, personal physician to Johnson who has the president under daily observation.

Asked especially about the health outlook for Johnson during the next four years, Cain said of the man who suffered a severe heart attack in 1955: "I see no reason why he should not stand it (the job) very well. His job is very demanding—physically and mentally—but I see no reason why it should be any more dangerous (to health) in his case than in that of anyone else, because his health is excellent."

"His heart is doing very, very well. All signs of the old heart attack are gone. If you did not know he had that old attack, seeing him now and examining him now would give you no . . . (clue) . . . that he had had a previous heart attack."

Cain said he was not called to the White House to make the recent examination—but did so while he and his wife were visiting Washington.

He said he found the president's blood pressure, urinalysis, various blood tests and tests for his tolerance to exercise all normal.

He said the president now weighs around 200 pounds but doctors would like him to shave off about 10 pounds.

Rain Big Threat

B.C. Telephone reported some trouble on long distance calls and some line difficulties in rural areas. Flights out of Cassidy airport were cancelled but ferries were on schedule.

The 18-plus inches of snow on Nanaimo Lakes Road and a blizzard blowing at the lodge stopped Green Mountain skiing. The road is expected to be plowed by Tuesday, with daily skiing from then until Jan. 3.

One of the few areas reporting traffic injuries was the Alberni Valley, where the snow total was eight inches and the four-day freeze ended about noon.

Rex Milliken and Albert Cramb, drivers in a head-on collision on slippery Faber Road, escaped with minor injuries. So did Howard Stuart Grant, 9, who ran into the side of a car at 11th and China Creek Road.

MacMillan, Blodel and Powell River shut two of its Alberni area logging camps, throwing 750 men out of work. A company official said he did not know when operations would resume.

Traffic troubles were many in the Comox Valley, where an area with a two-foot snowfall. Only two inches were reported from Tofino, four from Port Hardy and one from Estevan Point.

Rain or wet snow also were forecast for Greater Vancouver and the Lower Fraser Valley. A foot of snow made transit buses up to an hour late, stopped many Air Canada flights and delayed others for hours, jammed freeways and caused a taxi dispatcher to say, "If we had 2,000 cars, we couldn't handle all the calls we're getting."

Police in New Westminster warned drivers to stay off any grades and in West Vancouver to stay off the streets entirely.

The three B.C. deaths all occurred during the cold wave which preceded the snow. The lone Vancouver Island victim, logger Harvey Jorgenson, 54, died of carbon monoxide poisoning Friday while sitting in his snowbound car in the Campbell River area awaiting help. Prince Rupert, however, went through its 36th hour Saturday night without new snow after a 10-day light to keep moving despite falls totalling three feet.

The B.C. weather office in Vancouver said it was still too early to say anything about a white Christmas.

Large Enemas No Answer To Recurring Constipation

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD
Dear Dr. Molner. My wife evidently is a misguided expert on keeping everyone in the family healthy. We have two daughters, aged 15 and 17, who have spells of binding constipation. As soon as their mother becomes aware of either girl's inability to have a bowel movement, a full 2 1/2 quart enema is administered.

She also embarrasses the girls in front of their friends by telling them to excuse themselves because she is ready to give them an enema.

When I suggest other remedies, I am told that girls are always constipated as they grow up, and that having enemas will keep them cleared out and healthy.

Over the years my wife has been a constant user of the enema herself. How do you deal with such a person?—B.C.

I'm dreadfully sorry for these girls, but I don't know how to deal with such a person except by presenting the facts and hoping that she will listen to reason.

Girls are not always constipated. There is no reason why they should be constipated at all, provided they are given a reasonably good diet.

If the girls are truly constipated, something is wrong and you'd better have your doctor take charge.

BEYOND REASON
However, you tell me nothing to convince me that they really are constipated at all, but rather only that, if they don't happen to have a bowel movement when their mother thinks they should, she thereupon decides arbitrarily that they are "constipated" and must be subjected to a brutally large enema.

The amount you describe is beyond all reason, and besides the soapuds will be irritating and serve no good purpose anyway.

The added indignity of hauling these young ladies away from their friends, and with-out even the decency not to blab that they must have their enemas—this I can interpret in no other way than to feel that the mother, for some distorted emotional reason, is really punishing the girls.

LIFE-LONG MISERY
The mother herself seems to have a strongly established "enema habit" which she intends to force on her daughters to their life-long misery.

It sounds to me as though this cruel insistence on huge and unnecessary enemas must be neurotic.

For the welfare of the girls, I think their bowel habits should be supervised by your doctor—and only by him.

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter is 21. The outer layer of skin of her lower lip is always peeling off. What could cause this?—MRS. C.N.

Does she have a habit of biting her lip? You might well consider also the possibility of an allergy to lipstick.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can prune juice be the cause of having arthritis pain?—B.D.

Mouse Nest Blamed In 20 Deaths

FOUNTAIN TOWN, Ind. (CP)—A mouse nest could have caused the fire that destroyed a 60-year-old nursing home, killing 20 elderly patients, a state fire inspector said Saturday.

Howard Boegholtz, deputy state fire marshal, said the furry nest could have been above an oil furnace where he believed the blaze started. Heat from the furnace could have ignited the nest.

The pre-dawn blaze spread through the two-story, frame McGraw Nursing Home so quickly Friday that most of the victims were trapped in bed.

SIX KILLED
Meanwhile, a raging house fire broke out in the northeast Detroit suburb of Warren early Saturday killing six children and critically burning their mother. Three other children escaped.

Dead are Martha Ann Cox, 10; Mary Jo, 8; Charles, 11; Diane, 9; John, 14, and Jimmy, 3.

Their mother, Mrs. Marie Cox, 35, is listed in serious condition in Holy Cross Hospital.

At Marked Tree, Ark., five children, ranging in age from seven to 16, died Saturday when fire destroyed a rural frame home.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwain D. Lafferty escaped with seven other children, four of them under five years of age.

Police identified the victims as: Raymond Lafferty, 16; Laird, 10; Darrin, 9; all boys, and Stacey, 7, and Dorren, 8.

LONDON — Bert James applied to the ministry of pensions for a sickness benefit and they sent him maternity benefits instead.

Bert wrote to the ministry: "For me to become a mum would be a remarkable achievement. I am 56 years old, supposedly male, and a grandfather twice."

German Aid to Africa

Millions Wasted

RONN (AP)—With millions of marks wasted, West Germany is taking a hard look at its help to new countries in Africa. It plans to concentrate on major development projects.

Walter Scheel, head of the economic development ministry, says the West German government will emphasize economic aspects of development plans and de-emphasize political aspects.

Foreign ministry officials privately admit West Germany frequently has approved financial aid for African states in fear that Communist-ruled East Germany might come up with similar aid, tempting the receiving country to recognize the East Berlin government.

OUTRIGHT GIFTS
Since 1960, when the West Germans started to tackle the development aid problem on a big scale, the government has earmarked or actually shelled out a total of 12,000,000,000 marks ($3,000,000,000).

A tenth of this went to Africa or is about to be handed to the Africans in the form of outright money gifts or long-term loans at low interest.

German money has been scattered among 383 projects in 30 African states.

CRITICIZE QUANTITY
Too little for too many projects, critics of West Germany's development aid to Africa are saying.

A spokesman for Scheel's ministry said a recent roundup by the magazine Der Spiegel correctly reflected the situation.

The roundup said German financial aid to Africa was frequently invested in nonsense projects. Spiegel found $15,000,000 of Germany's $25,000,000 aid to Nigeria was squandered on widening a bridge in Lagos to six lanes from four.

Such misuse of German marks in Africa show the government has had poor advice on how to invest its development aid, said Spiegel.

Misleading Answers

PRIME MINISTER PEARSON is quoted as flatly denying in the Commons that he had deceived the House "either inadvertently or deliberately" in his replies on Nov. 24 to questions about when he first learned of allegations of bribery and coercion against ministerial assistants.

That he did not purposefully misinform the House is readily accepted. So is his statement that he had forgotten Mr. Favreau mentioning the allegations Sept. 2, when he indicated he was told of the matter on Nov. 22.

But it must be suggested that Mr. Pearson is in no position to deny inadvertently misleading the Commons. This depends entirely on whether the members of Parliament were misled. They patently were, and the public may judge how from the relevant passage from Hansard:

"Hon. D. S. Harkness (Calgary North): Mr. Speaker, I should like to direct a question to the Prime Minister in order to clear up what appears to me to be an ambiguity, as I am sure it appears to other hon. members, consequent upon some of the answers given to questions today. Was the Prime Minister informed by the Minister of Justice of any of the circumstances of this case, which is now going to be investigated, prior to those circumstances being brought out in this house yesterday?"

"Mr. Pearson: I think the Minister of Justice has dealt with this matter, Mr. Speaker."

"Mr. Harkness: Mr. Speaker, the reason I asked the question is that it appeared from questions and answers that the Prime Minister had not been informed about his parliamentary secretary. It was not clear whether he had been informed about any of the other circumstances, and my question is this. Was he informed by the Minister of Justice in regard to any of the other circumstances of this case prior to those circumstances being brought out in this house yesterday?"

"Mr. Pearson: I was informed by the Minister of Justice of some of the circumstances shortly before his estimates came before the house. He told me this matter would be before the house during the consideration of his estimates. He told me the facts of the matter. My parliamentary secretary, who has just resigned, has already indicated in his statement that he had not informed me of this matter until this morning."

"Mr. Harkness: Mr. Speaker, the Prime Minister's answer touched upon the ambiguity I mentioned, which was the reason for my question. When the Prime Minister said he was informed before the minister's estimates were put before the house, does he mean he was informed yesterday or a week ago? When was he informed?"

"Mr. Pearson: Mr. Speaker, I think I was informed on the day before his estimates were brought before the house."

The prime minister's answers, it will be observed, could in no case be regarded as untruthful. But by being inadvertently given less than the whole truth, the House was led to a wrong conclusion. Or does Mr. Pearson suggest, in a most remarkable quibble, that it deceived itself?

Element of Doubt

IN A MUNICIPALITY as sprawling as Saanich, it is commendable that all steps should be taken to make voting as simple geographically as possible.

Yet despite the fact there were 13 polling stations in the recent election, little more than 20 per cent of the voters cast their ballots.

This disinterest in the affairs of the fastest growing section of Greater Victoria is distressing; but also a matter of some concern must be the possibility of malpractice which the easy-going multi-ballot station system as presently practised lays open.

Each of the 13 polling stations carries a full voters' list. The elector can choose his or her voting station, and his or her name is crossed off as the ballot is handed over by the polling station official.

Apart from individual honesty there is nothing to prevent a person from moving to another polling station and taking out another ballot. Presumably this could be repeated for each polling station.

As no signature is asked it would be extremely difficult for the municipal returning officer to prove a charge that an individual had voted more than once.

There is no evidence that any such multiple-voting is practised in Saanich, but the system lends itself to abuse, and is one which should be given serious study by the municipal affairs department.

In federal and provincial elections where there are many polling stations in each riding, the polling place is pre-determined for each voter and there is no possibility of "cheating."

Saanich is now big and important enough to institute a system which will bring it into line with normal electoral procedure.

Do It Yourself

IT SOUNDS almost as if Vancouver police were really despairing in their losing battle against rising accident tolls, and preparing to throw up their hands in total defeat. An account of a meeting of the safety council there starts off with mention of the declining ratio of traffic officers to motor vehicles and finishes up with the information that in February, parking squad jeeps will carry signs saying, "Police your own driving."

Well, c'mon fellows, it's not that hopeless! Certainly, though, one could hardly blame the policemen in Vancouver, in Victoria, in other communities and on the highways if they did sometimes feel utterly discouraged. They are forever being reminded of what more they ought to do. They ought to be patrolling in greater numbers. They ought to be investigating accident causes more thoroughly. They ought to be on every downtown corner to control car and foot traffic in the Christmas rush. They ought to be cracking down on impaired drivers, on cars with defective headlights, on bicycles with none at all. And quite simply and obviously, there are not enough of them.

The growth of the forces of the law in most cases has not kept pace with the wave on wave of additional traffic appearing each year on the streets and highways of the province, and without adequate enforcement the prospect must be that accidents will continue to mount out of any semblance of proportion to the population.

"Police your own driving" in the way it will really be intended when the Vancouver jeeps display the message is excellent advice, and if everyone would follow the do-it-yourself course there would be more space in the hospitals, fewer unhappy homes and greatly reduced insurance rates. But too many won't. And a tight purse-string on having the job done for these by experts is a most dubious form of saving.

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes, and ships,
and sailing men.

By TOM TAYLOR

A SENATOR says troops in the first war weren't worrying about the flag they served under.

I should think not, for they had other matters in mind. Such as dodging a bullet. The day was past when armies waved their banners in the breeze to let the enemy and themselves know who was who.

And in the trenches the idea was to stay out of sight and not draw needless attention. A periscope was risk enough.

Anyway the troops took their emblem for granted, and the front line was no place for a debate on the subject.

Instead, the senator said, what concerned the troops was when the rum ration was coming up and when certain little insects that inhabited one's shirt would buzz off.

There was a cure, partial at least, for the latter. The soldier could rub soap along the seams or run a lighted match beneath the unwelcome colonies. There was the risk of setting fire to the shirt, of course, but this seemed the lesser evil of the two.

The rum, naturally, was of different genre. It warmed a bloke, just as it would the other night for frozen Victorians.

In my own experience 'twas more often lemon juice and not rum. This cooled the blood instead of heating it, but the ills, alas, were absolutely similar.

There was a piece on this page the other day about loving one's work, which prompted a local versifier to send me a quote.

I'd tell you his name except he's a modest chap, but the co-operative know him as an ebullient insurance man who can rip off a rhyme at the drop of a hat. Or even without the hat.

And it was an old coddler gentleman he quotes, viz:
"When I works I goes hard;
when I sits I sits loose;
and when I worries I goes to sleep."

Not a bad philosophy if one can manage it.

I have a library card even if I don't use it as much as I would. Libraries, in a way, are in my bones.

As a small boy I'd run a mile to a district branch so I could sleep myself to its treasures. As a matter of fact when overseas some years ago I wrote a "ships and shoes" column in the very room where I'd often sat as a youngster.

For all I know I scribbled at the very same desk.

It was there I lunched, along with the books I absorbed, the warning to make no noise that today makes me enter the Yates and Blanshard institute almost on tiptoe.

But a library is for quiet souls anyway, especially when the service provided is as helpful and courteous as one could desire.

The Victoria public library is of this quality, which is why I am glad to congratulate John Lort and his staff on its 100th birthday.

Comes a note from London: the "Beat" is on the way out. Not surprising this, of course. The fads in music are like the widths of men's trousers—they enjoy an eccentric but temporary term of favor.

It will not be the beat itself that's becoming demode, just the Beatle hairdo and the antics that accompany the electric guitars. Beat per se is simply keeping time to the rhythm of a musical sound. It is permanent. But the yeah, yeah, yeah theme and its collateral has become boring, as it was bound to.

What will take its place? Even Tin Pan Alley doesn't know yet. But something a little less raucous, I hope.

From the Scriptures

Say to them that are of a fearful heart, Be strong, fear not: behold your God will come and save you.—Isaiah, 35:4.

For TV Showing

Packaged Education

A NEW technique of pre-packaging educational television programs to meet the special needs of audiences in developing areas has been shown to experts from 13 countries at a conference in London.

About 100 programs, each about 20 minutes long, have already been pre-packaged by the Centre for Educational Television Overseas—a body backed by three foundations, Nuffield, Ford and Thomson, and the BBC.

A script and special film is prepared, a dummy run is recorded with an English commentator and the whole package is sent out to a local television station with directions for use. The local producer then copies it, using a local commentator.

Programs made to this pattern range from school lessons on mathematics and English to welfare series on how to bring up baby. They have been sent to 21 countries in Asia, Africa and the Caribbean. A nominal charge is made to cover printing costs.

By JOHN ARDAGH from London

The centre's present task backed by a £140,000 grant from Ford, is to associate other countries like the U.S., France and Japan in its work.

The main United States overseas effort, so far, has been to disperse, free, programs made for U.S. domestic audiences and often unsuitable. The French are doing quite a bit in the ex-French parts of Africa; but they are resentful of co-operation with any scheme that does not accept the sovereignty of the French language. The Italian "Telescuola," brilliant though it is, cannot easily be transferred to non-Italian areas.

The Japanese overseas effort has been limited so far to technical help on a commercial basis. Unesco, though it has an elaborate film department, has so far shown little interest in television.

Educational television often finds it hard to get a foothold, because many governments,

By ERNEST CHISHOLM THOMSON from London

quivers with almost unlimited information.

What has this to do with the Palace of Westminster? Maybe I am over-optimistic, but if all the facts ever committed to paper about the origins of the Mother of Parliaments could be fed into a master computer, I can imagine my suitcase model producing a resultant brew good enough to answer the question we are all talking about. The problem is, what really happened on Jan. 20, 1265?

Most of us accept this as the date when the British Parliament was born. In the royal speech opening the country's 299th Parliament on Nov. 3 last, Queen Elizabeth II said Parliament's 700th anniversary would be recorded in this session. Without the aid of a computer, I have been looking up some of the authorities.

What we are reasonably certain about is that in January 1265, one of King Henry III's most powerful subjects, Simon de Montfort (1208-1265), organized a gathering at Westminster famous for being the first in Britain's history to which the representatives of towns were summoned.

Not only were earls and barons and bishops called upon, as was customary, but writs went out requiring the attendance of two knights elected by their respective shires, while a large number of boroughs and cities were each asked to send two representatives, since the king "greatly needed their presence and that of other faithful subjects."

The first Ptolemy's library which had reached 700,000 scrolls was burned in Caesar's time and replaced partially by Cleopatra. In 310 AD, Theodosius the Great ordered it burned and the next library was destroyed in 541 by order of Caliph Omar.

It all adds up, apparently: Egypt is just not a suitable place to establish a library.

Simon de Montfort, it seems, was having some pretty tough wrangles with the King over the functions of government, but if we have the facts right, his bid for a primitive democracy won considerable support. A widely-held view today, expressed by the modern historian, R. F. Trevelyan, is that, although Simon de Montfort's conception was too far in advance of his time to have been successful, it was his achievement to stamp the idea of Parliament as a primarily political assembly upon Britain's political consciousness for ever.

As I write, we are waiting to see how this momentous anniversary will be marked. Mr. Charles Pannell, minister of public building and works, has considered a display of documents and an effigy of Simon de Montfort. Apparently there are two snags. First, the earliest surviving record of the presence of the Commons is dated almost 10 years later than Simon's Parliament; it consists of a writ of summons to the first Parliament of Edward I, dated December 28, 1274, ordering the attendance of knights, citizens, burgesses and "other honest men" from cities, boroughs and trading towns.

The second snag is the non-existence of an authentic likeness of our hero. One of the few memorials to de Montfort seems to be the coat-of-arms in the north aisle of Westminster Abbey. Sir Anthony Wagner, Garter King of Arms, has drawn attention to the picture of a mounted figure with Simon de Montfort's shield and banner in a window of Chartres Cathedral in France. Simon was Earl of Leicester, in the English Midlands, and an observant Leicester citizen has referred the authorities to his statue — "knighly and handsome and resolute" — on the city's Clock Tower.

"Handsome is that handsome does," as the old saying has it. What Simon de Montfort looked like matters less than what he did.

No computer, stacked though it may be with every known truth for a 1,000 years, could ever reveal the full story of this extraordinary man. The popular songs of the period show he could arouse legendary devotion, and the fact that his ambition and efficiency made him unpopular among many of his contemporaries is a point in his favor. If Westminster is the "Mother of Parliaments," surely we may hail Simon de Montfort as the father.

Entertainment Needed

I WOULD like to air my views on entertainment for a teenager in Victoria.

It seems to me that the main concern is to attract tourists and take care of pensioners. The city has either forgotten or overlooked the teenagers. Elderly people are provided with many recreational centres such as the new Senior Citizens Centre and the societies such as Silver Threads.

For the people over 21 a variety of hotels are provided for their leisure time. We can't go to the community centre and see for the evening—that would deprive the elderly people of this pleasure. We are forbidden to enter a hotel or place of entertainment which serves liquor...

We have been given a skating rink—two in fact—and this is supposed to compensate. But in all truthfulness, a skating rink does not make a teenager's entertainment complete.

The show is fine for a once-in-a-while occasion, but not all teenagers wish to spend every Saturday night at a show. In fact, after the stores close, Victoria is dead.

People remark how rowdy teenagers are. I have heard them say a place for us is a waste. But I say it is a necessity. Victoria teenagers are resorting to drink and immorality. Why? Nothing else to do? What is really needed is a place for teenagers to dance on Friday and Saturday night with police or other adult supervision to weed out the undesirable. This we'd gladly accept.

DESPERATE TEEN-AGER.

Death Penalty

Mr. Cadwallader, defending the death penalty for murder, quotes Exodus 21:12, "He that smiteth a man so that he die, shall be surely put to death." Would he accept the law, five verses lower, which reads: "He which will result in an even worse service and greater loss than at present.

A very large number of bus patrons are elderly people who cannot afford, or are beyond driving a car. A raise in fares will force them to use public transit use of the buses, and will further encourage young people to make even more use of their cars.

A better way would surely have been, and would yet be, to decrease the fares, and improve the schedules to the extent that it would be cheaper or more convenient to ride a bus than to drive a car to work. Any loss by the buses under those circumstances should be covered by the city and municipalities and the province on a per capita basis.

E. W. ABRAHAM,
1125 Faithful Street.

Losing Votes

Mr. Bennett says he hopes when and if a federal election comes up the Social Credit party will get more seats in the federal Parliament. Well, I am afraid that unless Mr. Bennett does something about the bus fares he will lose a lot of voters.

There are 18,000 old age pensioners in B.C. and thousands of mothers of school age children and students, who will not vote for a man or his party who says bus fares should go up to 20 cents for adults, 15 cents for students and 10 cents for children.

If the Social Credit party loses all those votes in B.C. they will be finished, so why doesn't Mr. Bennett instead of sending millions of dollars down to Quebec use it to help keep the bus fares as they are now in B.C. He can do it just as he took the toll off all the bridges in Vancouver; they are both transportation, so why take it off one and put the fare up on the other.

Mr. Charles Pannell, minister of public building and works, has considered a display of documents and an effigy of Simon de Montfort. Apparently there are two snags. First, the earliest surviving record of the presence of the Commons is dated almost 10 years later than Simon's Parliament; it consists of a writ of summons to the first Parliament of Edward I, dated December 28, 1274, ordering the attendance of knights, citizens, burgesses and "other honest men" from cities, boroughs and trading towns.

The second snag is the non-existence of an authentic likeness of our hero. One of the few memorials to de Montfort seems to be the coat-of-arms in the north aisle of Westminster Abbey. Sir Anthony Wagner, Garter King of Arms, has drawn attention to the picture of a mounted figure with Simon de Montfort's shield and banner in a window of Chartres Cathedral in France. Simon was Earl of Leicester, in the English Midlands, and an observant Leicester citizen has referred the authorities to his statue — "knighly and handsome and resolute" — on the city's Clock Tower.

"Handsome is that handsome does," as the old saying has it. What Simon de Montfort looked like matters less than what he did.

No computer, stacked though it may be with every known truth for a 1,000 years, could ever reveal the full story of this extraordinary man. The popular songs of the period show he could arouse legendary devotion, and the fact that his ambition and efficiency made him unpopular among many of his contemporaries is a point in his favor. If Westminster is the "Mother of Parliaments," surely we may hail Simon de Montfort as the father.

Tortuous Parade

From Colonist Files

"SEVEN hundred and 21 Saucos, forming a procession that took more than 30 minutes to pass a given point, made a 22-mile tour of the city, Oak Bay and Saanich while their occupants viewed the homes decorated to take part in the Christmas lighting contest arranged by the Junior Chamber of Commerce," 25 years ago.

"The parade, one of the largest that has ever been held in Victoria, was like a leaguelong serpent wending a tortuous way through the district, the headlights of the cars making a sinuous trail of light."

"In every respect the caravan was a complete success, from the point of view of those taking part in it — though it must have caused other motorists held up at intersections to use hard words..."

City council made available 400 lots at $50 each to encourage home-building in Victoria. Under the National Housing Act, 50 per cent of construction cost could be obtained, and tax rebates of 100 per cent the first year, 50 per cent the second and 25 per cent of improvement taxes the third year were offered.

Cabinet ministers W. J. Bower and W. R. Ross returned from a tour of the southern interior of British Columbia confident of the future good behavior of the Doukhobors, 50 years ago.

Mr. Bower advised large gatherings of Doukhobors at Grand Forks and Brilliant, and "explained very fully what was expected of them in the matter of their observation of the laws of the country, and, in the whole, found them in a mood which is full of promise for correct action on their part in the future."

An advertisement of lots for sale on Esquimalt Road and "Cathlamet Bay Road (Fort Street extension)" gave glimpses of the state of Victoria's development 75 years ago.

What Next?

The senior citizen, it is suggested, might be asked to carry a card with his or her photo! What next? Will Premier Bennett have us all fingerprinted, to get a free ride on his bus service?

What is puzzling to the public at the moment is the premier's responsibility in this horrible mess. Mr. Bennett never let the public know he was going to "take over" the B.C. Electric. Nice work, if you can keep it up. But the Senate of Canada, those old senior citizens, smell a rat. Time for a change in our "dynamic capitalism."

Bank Verdict Argument for Reform

How Strong Are 17 Senators?

By IAN STREET

The bank stalemate provides a good argument for reform of Canada's Senate.

At the moment the Senate banking and commerce committee is preventing the wishes of the B.C. legislature from being discussed by the Commons.

Does this mean 17 senators, political appointees like all members of the upper house, are more powerful than the 52 elected members of the B.C. legislature?

It is to be hoped this isn't the case, but what other conclusion can be reached if the bill is not forwarded to the Commons?

There is still a chance, of course, this will be done. The committee must report to the Senate as a whole and give its reasons for rejecting the bank of B.C. application. This will be done, we are told, early in the New Year.

Premier Bennett said he is hopeful that when the full Senate learns that all objections raised by members of the banking committee during its drawn-out hearing of the B.C. bid have been met, they will pass it on the Commons.

There are signs, however faint at the moment, that this could happen. Several prominent eastern senators, both Conservative and Liberal, have supported the bank in committee.

But Mr. Bennett is a political realist. He knows that the final disposition of the B.C. bill will depend upon the decision of the Liberal majority in the Senate. Mr. Pearson, hard-pressed by the just-completed flag issue and the burgeoning scandal involving cabinet ministers, obviously would rather not have the bank issue dropped into his lap.

CAPITAL REPORT

Two smaller bank applications from Western Canada were passed by the committee in recent weeks.

B.C., I think, has every right to charge that it is fear of competition from what will be a financial giant with headquarters in Vancouver that is prompting opposition in Ottawa.

Citing the constitutional difficulties which may arise has been termed "the last refuge of the weak-minded."

In the case of the bank of B.C. it makes a mockery of those super-Canadians who proclaim that we should control our own economic affairs. This bank is the only one ever to go before the Senate with 100 per cent Canadian backing.

among themselves, but it is generally accepted that when the Senate was set up it was to protect the established order. This meant taking a "sober second look" at the measures passed by the political upstarts in the Commons.

But it was never intended that the Senate, whose members have no claim to their position beyond political preference, should hold veto powers on the first look.

Several members of the banking and commerce committee are directors of the large national banks with headquarters in Eastern Canada. They did not vote on the B.C. bill, but during the hearings they were present in good array. And, as someone drily observed, "they didn't undertake not to foment."

I wouldn't mind betting that if the B.C. bank had $20,000,000 to $30,000,000 capitalization instead of $100,000,000 or more, it would have passed the Senate.

Also, there is the delicate question of the stand taken by B.C. Liberals, who voted solidly (and alone) against the bank at the last session of the legislature.

The national government, having once embarrassed the provincial party by going against it on the Columbia River treaty, surely isn't anxious to do it again on the bank.

So much for the chances of the B.C. bill before the Senate, which at the moment do not look bright.

Political scientists will argue

Pretty Poor Show, Indeed

By A. H. MURPHY

If people got the government they deserve Victorians would have a municipal council about one-fifth as effective as it is.

And when four out of five voters don't think it worthwhile to exercise their franchise the electorate has no cause to moan if its legislators do not give satisfaction.

This, on top of the fact that one elective office was left unfilled, adds up to what ex-alderman Frank Mulliner recently called "a pretty poor show."

There were no election issues of importance in Victoria but surely this is no justification for an 82 per cent abstention from the polls.

CITY HALL COMMENT

I realize that people close to city hall are liable to overemphasize the importance of civic matters, but it is disturbing to find that contempt for the democratic process is so widespread that only one voter in five thinks it important to vote.

But perhaps it isn't contempt. Perhaps it is just plain laziness.

ness (or apathy, if you prefer the polite term).

I often wonder just how deep this disinterest is. What percentage of eligible voters could name the mayor and members of city council?

Put someone on the idiot box like George Lincoln Rockwell and you hear screams from every direction about infecting our youth with the virus of neo-fascism — screams from the same people who didn't think it worth their while to get out and vote on election day.

We were lucky this time. Eighteen per cent or not, we have a pretty sound council. It might not always be so.

'Impossible to Be Neutral'

Missionaries Fail To Identify With New Regimes

(London Sunday Times, from London)

An English missionary addressing his African colleagues in Ghana recently called on them to throw away their clerical garb—collars, gowns, robes—and wear their native dress.

"What do you want to do—turn us into good little Africans?" shouted back an outraged middle-class Ghanaian parson.

The remark, though understandable, epitomized the difficulties of what forward-looking missionaries in Africa regard as their central problem: To stop producing "Black Englishmen" and create instead truly indigenous churchmen.

But the stress produced by conflicting European and African cultures goes deeper than dress. The presence of large numbers of missionaries in Africa leads to inevitable political tensions.

The result is that despite their desperately needed work—hospitals, clinics, teacher training colleges, agricultural projects—missionaries are often among the first to feel the whiplash.

A Protestant ex-missionary who has lived in many African countries said last week: "The trouble is that many missionaries have made little attempt to 'identify' with the African people. They claim to be 'non-political' but this almost always means that they are not sympathetic to freedom movements and pan-Africanism."

"It is simply not possible to be neutral in the emerging countries of Africa. Either you are openly for the new regimes or it is concluded that you are against them."

Attitudes, of course, differ from sect to sect. The highly trained missionaries of the main traditions—Catholic, Anglican, Methodist, Presbyterian, Congregationalist and Baptist—tend to be reasonably progressive, but there is a huge and variable fringe.

The Congo itself—one of the main focal points of missionary endeavor—has representatives of 46 different Christian churches, sects and societies.

David Smithers, a missionary-journalist, who formerly edited an inter-denominational magazine in Africa, says: "The African clergy became an elite identified with the dying colonial regimes. And when Africans achieve power, they feel they must destroy all colonial hangovers."

A significant contrast is the extraordinary success enjoyed by Muslim missionaries to Africa in recent years. These are mainly Pakistani promoters of the Ahmadiyah Islam sect.

Though they have copied the methods of Christian missionaries, with schools and medical work, they adopt the mode of life of the people among whom they are living—often marrying African wives.

While this may not be possible for European missionaries, the fact remains that there have been no reports of Ahmadiyah missionaries being persecuted or expelled from the new African states.

In fairness, the annual reports of many missions show a trend towards handing over the reins, though not financial control, to the nationals. Out of about 2,500 ordained Protestants in the Congo, two-thirds are colored.

Many people think the day of the professional missionary is fast ending. The Peace Corps, Voluntary Service Overseas and other secular agencies have demonstrated to Africans the advantages of having partners with specific expertise to offer.

Racers Did 95 Down Douglas

Slippery streets didn't stop two drivers from drag racing down Douglas Street Saturday morning at 95 miles an hour.

But Saanich police were also undeterred by conditions. They pursued and caught both drivers who pleaded guilty to dangerous driving Saturday in Saanich magistrate's court.

Magistrate Harold Alder fined Terrance Robinson, 1080 Tulip, $150, and barred him from driving for six months. He said

Robinson "started the race" by trying to pass the other car. James Matthews, of Duncan, was fined $100 and was forbidden to drive, except for business purposes, in the next six months. Matthews said: "You know how it is when someone passes you. I was doing 90 but I was not driving dangerously."

Prosecutor John McIlree said Robinson pulled over shortly after pursuit began but Matthews was stopped about two miles further on.

A well-dressed Vancouver man, Harry Harit, was fined $100 after he pleaded guilty to stealing a carton of cigarettes from a supermarket.

The cigarettes were worth $3.56.

Christmas Rush Nation-Wide

By CANADIAN PRESS

Canadians are being caught up in the last-minute rush of Christmas preparations, flooding the stores for gifts and making travel arrangements to join family and friends for the holiday.

Store owners in most large centres report business increased over last year and extended closing hours to accommodate the expected rush.

Air, railway and bus transportation offices in many of the larger cities have scheduled additional vehicles to handle the thousands of Christmas travellers.

Air Canada said this likely will be the "heaviest holiday season ever experienced" in the eastern provinces.

STREAMS OF MUD

Scientists have discovered huge streams of mud have carved massive canyons 2,000 feet below the surface of the Indian Ocean.

spokesman for Canadian National Railways in Toronto said there is a "big demand" for train accommodation this year. Hotels, lounges and supper clubs are advertising special entertainment and parties for Christmas and house parties are becoming increasingly popular.

Prospects of liquor being available for celebrants in Quebec by Christmas are not very bright as contract negotiations between employees of government-controlled liquor stores and the government continue in an attempt to settle a strike by the 3,200 workers that began Dec. 4.

Impaired Crackdown

Magistrate Bans Another Driver

A city magistrate's crackdown on impaired drivers continued Friday with one outright driving ban and warning that only "very special circumstances" will warrant partial lifting of licence suspensions in two other cases.

Impaired drivers David Lewis, 343 Robertson, and Louis Parker, 3064 Irma, both asked Magistrate William Ostler to relax licence suspensions to allow them to drive while at work.

Lewis is a driver in his trucking firm and Parker is a truck driver for another company. Magistrate Ostler has already ruled one professional driver off the road in a crackdown on impaired driving.

He ordered pre-sentence reports on both truckers, who had pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

A third impaired driver, Murray M. Pitre, 20, of RR 2, Victoria, was banned from driving and fined $300.

Word to U.S.

France Disclaims Protege's Role

BONN (Reuters) — Gen. Pierre Billotte, an adviser to French President de Gaulle, said here Saturday that the United States must make a "spectacular step forward" to share defence responsibility with Europe.

Billotte, in an interview published in the newspaper Neue Rhein Zeitung of Essen, West Germany, said it is grotesque to believe that France would leave the Atlantic alliance. "Of course, we need the Americans; without them, nothing can be done," he said.

"We do not want to be proteges only but allies. Europeans and Americans should have an equal share in the shaping of strategic plans."

The general advocated a meeting between de Gaulle and U.S. President Johnson.

Trees Grow Ornaments

WASHINGTON (AP)—A new Christmas tree that grows its own ornaments of decorative cones is being developed by U.S. scientists.

Growers will get the first young trees for field testing in 1967.

The new tree—a cross between two pines—has been developed at the agricultural department's Institute of Forest Genetics at Placerville, Calif., in co-operation with the California Christmas Tree Growers Association.

"From its thick dark green foliage this made-to-order tree grows its own decorative cones at five years of age just as it reaches Christmas tree size," the department said.

Camera catches the spirit of Christmas in this delightful shot of child's joyous wonderment.

Christmas Best Time To Snap Great Pictures

At Christmas, cameras have the happy habit of catching people at their best.

Christmas is the most heavily photographed event on record because it is the closest you can come to being assured of great pictures. Everything is at its photographic best.

Here are four suggestions to help you heighten holiday fun with pictures:

- Get candid shots. The pictures that become the most treasured are usually those in which the youngsters are busy just being themselves. Avoid posing subjects when you have all the natural excitement of Christmas to provide spontaneous situations.

- Take a tip from the professional photographers and shoot a few pictures of each situation. Even the experts don't always get what they want the first time.

- Change your camera angle for more lively pictures. Step up on a chair for an over-all shot; stoop down to catch the excitement in a child's eyes. Choose the best view before you shoot.

- Keep a pictorial guest book. Record in pictures the friends who come to visit during the Christmas season.

Legendary Thorn Tree Blooms for Christmas

Every Christmas Day, a sprig of flowering thorn is sent to the Queen from Glastonbury, Somerset, one of the most sacred and historic spots in Britain. It is sent jointly by the vicar and the mayor of the town.

Legend tells how St. Joseph of Arimathea, travelling the world after the crucifixion of Jesus Christ, reached Glastonbury with 11 disciples on Christmas Day and there stuck his staff into the ground. At once it changed into a living thorn tree and burst into bloom.

Although there is no historical proof of this legend, there is still a thorn tree at Glastonbury which never fails to bloom at Christmas.

There is much to support the claim that Christianity in England had its beginnings at Glastonbury. Some historians claim that the old wattle and daub church which used to stand there was the oldest church in Britain.

This early building is thought to have been originally a primitive church connected with the Celtic civilization of Wales, Cornwall, Ireland, and across the Channel, Brittany, which flourished in the region till it was dispersed by the Saxons.

Excavations have brought to light pre-Christian villages, and experts believe that long before Christianity, Glastonbury was a holy place for the people of the locality.

Conqueror of Deafness Off to China

U.S. Surgeon to Help Reds

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Communist China is lifting the bamboo curtain for a U.S. surgeon to learn how he has restored the hearing of thousands of deaf persons.

Except for one or two journalists, Dr. Samuel Rosen of New York is one of the few Americans to be extended an invitation to visit Red China. Dr. Rosen will demonstrate the operation hearing his name.

It involves surgical correction of one of the most common causes of deafness.

Rosen stumbled on the technique in 1953. Since then, he has restored the hearing of about 14,000 persons and demonstrated the operation to doctors in 27 nations.

With the patient under local anesthesia, Rosen opens the ear to the stapes in the middle ear. Deafness is usually caused by calcium deposits at the base of the stirrup-shaped bone.

The calcium causes rigidity, keeping the stapes from vibrating, thus blocking the hearing process.

To correct this, Rosen flexes the bone in some cases, nicks it in others and sometimes replaces it with a plastic substitute.

In successful operations—90 per cent of the time—hearing is instantly restored to the conscious patient.

"It's a terrific sensation for me and the patient," said Rosen.

Word of the operation travelled to Red China with R. K. Nehru, Indian ambassador to Peking.

"I performed the operation on Ambassador Nehru in Hong Kong. He told me later that Chou En-lai and Mao Tse-tung were amazed at the improvement in his hearing," Rosen said.

Why is Rosen going to China?

"As far as I'm concerned, I'm a doctor and if they want to learn the operation, it's my duty. I'm a Jew, but I've travelled and taught in many Arab nations.

"I stick to a proverb which just happens to be Chinese: 'If every man would mend a man, all the world would be mended.'"

Safety Locks Cut Crime

BONN (Reuters)—The introduction of safety locks in cars is one of the principal reasons why West German teen-age crime figures dropped in 1962, according to the latest figures.

Crime among 14- to 18-year-olds in 1962 dropped by 4.8 per cent, compared with the preceding year.

Thefts of cars fell from 8,830 to 7,050—mainly, police say, because the safety locks prevented teen-agers from stealing cars.

Novelty Value!

WASHINGTON (TNS)—One year after Lee Harvey Oswald killed President Kennedy with an Italian Carcano rifle, bought by mail order for $119.95 (with telescopic sight) nothing has been done to restrict the sale of such weapons.

The powerful lobby of the National Rifle Association (600,000 members) has squelched any new gun laws. The Carcano rifles, which now have novelty value as Oswald's weapon, are selling like hot cakes.

Soloists, Choir To Sing Messiah

By NERT BINNY

Three events remain before old 1964 departs to join and increase the sum of our memories. Tomorrow and Tuesday evenings Handel's Messiah will be sung by the Victoria Choral Society, conducted by Rodney Webster. Both performances are at 8 p.m., the first at Christ Church Cathedral and the second at St. Andrew's Cathedral. This is the 31st year that the Choral Society has presented the Messiah.

The soloists are soprano Pamela Paver, contralto Eleanor Duff, tenor Peter Yelland and bass Derek McDermott. The organist is Richard Proudman with trumpet by David Fisher.

After Tuesday all's quiet until Boxing Day when there are two openings or, to be more precise, an opening and reopening. The children's play, Beauty and the Beast, has its first performance at Oak Bay Junior High School Saturday at 2 p.m. with another showing the same day at 8 p.m.

Tony Burton is the director for the Bastion Theatre Studio and further performances are scheduled for Dec. 28, 29 and 30 at 8 p.m. as well as Dec. 30 at 2 p.m.

Then, linking the old year to the new, as it were, there are showings both at 2 and 8 p.m. on New Year's Day and Jan. 2.

The cast has Stella Yoxall, the highly successful Dick Whittington of last year's pantomime, as Beauty with Larry Eastick as the Beast. There's a Wizard played by Wayne Fines and a baby dragon—name of Mickey—played by Julie Petersen.

The parts of Jessamine and Jonquille are carried by Wendy Packard and Toni Burnett and Clive Yoxall is Mr. Clements.

Backstage, Wolfgang Baba is stage manager assisted by Laurie Westendale.

Ballet Fans Lose Operation Tonsil

LONDON (AP)—Culture quiz: Which is better box office—the ballet or the Beatles?

Early this month the singing Beatles' mop-haired drummer, Ringo Starr, went into University Hospital to have his tonsils out. There were so many thousands of phone calls from worried fans that a special switchboard had to be set up.

Thursday Rudolf Nureyev, 26-year-old dancer of the Royal Ballet and long-haired darling of London's balletomanes, went into a London clinic to have his tonsils out. He slipped in at 8 a.m., said a spokesman, "to avoid any fuss like Ringo."

The operations was a surgical success, but a failure at the box office. The clinic said phone calls inquiring about Nureyev's condition totalled no more than two dozen.

Artie Shaw Branches Out

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Artie Shaw visited Hollywood last week in his new capacity of movie producer.

Bald, intense and brimming with ideas and projects, the great music stylist of the 30s and 40s is distributing a new film titled "Seance on a Wet Afternoon."

He's also publishing his second book. The new one is I Love You, I Hate You, Drop Dead, a trio of three short novels which he describes as a literary cocktail, or marriage on the rocks.

Beneath his reputation as a musician and much-married playboy Shaw is essentially an intellectual who has invaded movies as a medium of expression, reasoning that film offers greater scope, broader audiences and more profit than music, books or paintings.

Always a storm centre of controversy, Shaw expects his movies to cause a stir.

"I've been a controversial figure because I've done and said what I think is right," Shaw said.

"Fortunately I'm in an economic position where I'm not dominated by finances. Money doesn't determine what I do or don't do."

"I have three movies planned for production, and I don't have to worry about making them just for profit. I wouldn't make a picture that I'm not deeply interested in."

dence arises from royalties on his recordings which still bring in a sizeable income.

He no longer participates in music, but he is keenly interested in modern jazz, the Beatles and the entire spectrum of music. He seldom thinks about or discusses his heyday as a musician.

Paris Circuses Victims of TV

PARIS (LAT)—Two more nostalgic symbols of Parisian glamour are threatened by the fate which already has demolished the Moulin Rouge dance hall, the Grand Guignol theatre and the Cafe de Paris.

The Cirque d'Hiver and the Cirque de Montmartre (known as the Cirque Medrano in its palmy days) are to be closed after the year-end holidays. Their owner, Joseph Bouhassine, blames his decision on television.

"I can't fight any longer," the owner said in announcing his decision to close the century-old institutions. "The competition from television is killing me."

One Reason New Waterway Needed

Canal Too Vulnerable

WASHINGTON (AP) — The vital importance of a trans-isthmus canal linking the Atlantic and Pacific will continue undiminished far into the future, say American military strategists.

This, it is pointed out, is in addition to the even greater value of the canal to the commerce of the United States and the world, as emphasized by President Johnson in announcing the proposal for building a new sea-level waterway across Panama or adjacent areas to replace the 50-year-old, lock-bound Panama Canal.

A U.S. Navy spokesman agreed that it is true 24 of the Navy's attack carriers cannot get through the existing canal but added that "it can hardly be said that the true strategic importance of the canal is less today than it has been in the past."

A sea-level route, with wide channel and no locks, would open the trans-isthmus route to all U.S. naval craft and cut hours off the time.

Another defence official commented that he believes the primary military reason for building the sea-level canal is not the fact that bigger ships could use such a waterway but that it would not have the high vulnerability of the present canal to sabotage.

An essential component of the Panama Canal is Gatun Lake, which stands between the locks at the Atlantic and Pacific ends. That lake, 82 feet above sea level, is created by a simple earthen dam impounding the waters of several rivers and small streams.

MISSILE TARGET

An ordinary conventional explosion, not a nuclear blast, is all that would be needed to sabotage the whole canal system. This defence official said it would take two years to refill the lake to navigable level if the dam were destroyed.

In addition, the locks themselves stand as a target for sabotage or missile fire from enemy submarines.

Compromise Parley 'Inconclusive'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk Saturday held "inconclusive" talks with Soviet foreign minister Andrei Gromyko on a compromise plan to break the deadlock on Russia's $2,000,000 UN debt.

But a U.S. spokesman said of the plan, introduced by General Assembly president Alex Quins-Sackey of Ghana: "That idea is still alive."

Rusk and Gromyko, in their fifth meeting this month, also ranged over disarmament, Southeast Asia, and other questions.

U.S. sources said the United States brought up the questions of observation posts on both sides of the Iron Curtain, mutual reduction of arms budgets, and the non-proliferation of nuclear weapons in the arms talks.

He noted also that $750,000,000 worth of military installations stand along the canal zone — air bases, army depots, navy facilities.

Huge Magnet Studies Tiny Atoms

CHICAGO (AP) — Scientists at Argonne National Laboratory have constructed the world's most powerful supermagnet of its size to help study the behavior of the fragments of smashed atoms.

The magnetic system, consisting of three concentric coils, can operate at a field strength of 67,000 gauss—134,000 times as strong as the magnetic field of the earth.

The Argonne system weighs only 800 pounds but is as strong as conventional magnets that weigh several tons and require for their operation enough electricity to power a small city.

The Argonne supermagnet, however, can be "charged" by a small power supply unit and then operate for months without additional power.

to be given at the University of Victoria beginning Jan. 16.

The Saturday morning lectures and discussion groups are designed to give high school students a sampling of university life.

At least five delegates from each high school in the Greater Victoria area are expected to attend the lectures.

ART LECTURE

The first will be on 40,000 years of art, which will be given by Professor Anthony Emery of the history department.

It will be followed by the arts of the humanists, a lecture to be given by Dr. Sydney Jackman, also of the history department.

Dr. A. R. Fontaine of the biology department will give the third lecture on biological progress and social evolution.

The last three lectures, to be given by Dr. R. E. L. Watson of the department of anthropology and sociology, include magic, mothers-in-law and society. Dr. S. A. Jennings will lecture on mathematics.

Board of governors member, Dr. Geoffrey Homer will lecture on Man, Medicine and Society. The lectures will last 50 minutes followed by questions and a discussion.

How Can You Quit Doing Nothing?

By JIM MURRAY

Once upon a time there was this nice man. His name was Ford Frick and he was president of the National League which was a nice job because all he had to do was what Branch Rickey told him.

He changed his socks every day. He never kicked any sleeping dogs and he never, never said "No" to Mr. Rickey. Or anyone else.

One day a committee came to him and said "How would you like to be czar of all baseball?"

WICKED MAN

So, they made him czar of all baseball and one of the committee said, "Now, look. We used to have this terrible old man who was czar of all baseball and he wouldn't let anybody do a single thing they wanted to. You couldn't move franchises or go to the race track or hide players from the draft. Now, you don't want to be a wicked old czar like that, do you?"

Just in case he answered "Yes," they put in a law that no action taken by a vote of the club owners could be construed as "detrimental to baseball," not even if they voted to go Communist.

GOT CONFUSING

"Then we had this other czar who was a politician and governor of Kentucky and one thing and another. He wouldn't let Clint Murchison in the game because he had an interest in a race track, and he protected the league from this kind of inquiry by letting Del Webb, who owned gambling casinos in Las Vegas, own the best club in the game. So we bought up his contract and he became governor of Kentucky and went to the race track on Derby day every year and got very confusing. You don't want to be confusing, do you?"

So, just in case he got confusing, they tied him in a closet and put a gag in his mouth and said, "There! now, we have a czar who is a czar!"

And they moved franchises and expanded the leagues and changed laws and when they got through, somebody said "Don't you think we ought to tell the czar?" Everybody said "Why wake him up just for THAT?"

And, anyway, Walter O'Malley was on the phone to him every day, telling him what ties to wear.

And one day the czar said, "look, can't I do ANYTHING around here?" and his subjects said "sure! you can call off any world series game where the field is wet enough. Just check with Walter O'Malley first." And he said, "I don't mean THAT! Anybody knows enough to come in out of the rain. I want to do something about baseball!"

This puzzled them. "What do you want to do?" they asked suspiciously. "I want to put an asterisk after Roger Maris' name!" he screamed. "After all, Babe Ruth was a friend of mine!"

And one owner whispered to another, "who is Roger Maris?" and another owner said, "never mind that, WHO is Babe Ruth?" And they said, "O.K., Ford. Go ahead and put an asterisk after Roger Maris' name." And they said, "shucks, let him have a little fun!"

IN CLOSET

And CBS bought the Yankees and Milwaukee wanted to move to Atlanta, and they found out it was not only immoral, it was also illegal. And someone said, "where was the commissioner on this?" And the answer came back, "where else? Tied in a closet!"

So finally, the czar of all baseball said, "look, this is silly. What is the sense of being a czar of something they are systematically destroying beneath you? If you want a czar, why doesn't O'Malley buy a tape recorder? All I get to sign is Christmas cards."

BACK IN THERE

"Well," they said, "you got to put an asterisk after Roger what's-his-name's record, didn't you? And you got to call off five games in the 1962 world series. Get back in the closet. What do you think we pay you $75,000 a year for?"

And the czar said, "I think I'll quit." At first baseball wondered how you could quit doing nothing, but someone said, "look, things are a mess. Milwaukee got caught sneaking out the fire escape and now they have to spend another year with a town they tried to murder in its sleep and television owns the American League, and maybe we should really have a czar." And someone said, "What's the matter with the one we got—Walter O'Malley?"

THAT'S ANARCHY

But they finally said, "O.K. we will remove the restriction that a czar can't overrule the owners and we will forbid the owners to sue the czar over a ruling." "But that's anarchy!" someone said. "Bolshevism!" cried another.

Hello, Walter

Big Game In Boston

BOSTON (AP)—The whole season will be wrapped up in one game for two teams today when Buffalo Bills and Boston Patriots meet for the championship of the Eastern Division in the American Football League. (No TV here).

The winner will oppose the Western champion San Diego Chargers for the league title Dec. 26.

The Patriots have been picked as 2½ point favorites by the odds-makers, primarily because the game will be at Boston's Fenway Park and because the Patriots defeated the Bills 36-28 in their Nov. 15 meeting.

OUTDOORS

with Alec Merriman

Pacific Trollers' Association has come up with a plan for Gulf of Georgia salmon fishing which could pave the way for the banning of all inside waters to commercial fishing, leaving the area as a vast sports salmon fishing playground.

We feel sure that Pacific Trollers' doesn't mean to see its plan for an inside and outside troll licence system work that way, but it would be a simple adaptation to the plan to issue inside troll licences to the estimated less than 150 fishermen who now earn their full living from area 13 to 20 waters, and then not re-issue licences as these fishermen retire or drop out of the fishing business.

By a process of elimination, members of the inside commercial fleet would get fewer and fewer and the waters from Campbell River to Sooke would fulfill their ultimate destiny as a multi-million-dollar sports fishing area.

This area now provides 55.3 per cent of British Columbia's salmon catch, but only 15.7 per cent of the province's total sports and commercial catch. In the overall picture it wouldn't be a big loss to the commercial fishing industry, but it would be a terrific impetus to the sports fishing industry.

Pacific Trollers' Association, representing a bulk of west coast trollers, plumps heavily for a system of licence restriction as the only solution to the problems of the federal fishing department.

The Pacific Trollers' plan is aimed at the estimated 2,000 moonlighters (people who hold down other jobs but take out commercial $1 fishing licences to supplement their incomes, to beat the sports fishing limits and/or obtain sales tax concessions) and the dual fishermen (gillnetters who partake of east coast troll fishery prior to the start of the gillnet season and trollers who fish this area during its peak production and then move to other areas.)

These are the groups who will gain by the proposed changes (3½-month closure of commercial trolling time and reduction to four salmon of the sports catch limit) in that they will place a more concentrated effort on the fish present.

That is the opinion of Pacific Trollers' president Dick Williams of Victoria.

The Pacific Trollers' Association suggests: "That an inside commercial troll licence be available for areas 13 to 20 (Campbell River to Port Renfrew) inclusive, wherein a fisherman would troll for salmon in those areas for that current year, with no closed periods other than necessary to protect specific runs of salmon, such licence would include the covenant that no other salmon fishing licence could be obtained in that year."

"All licences would be issued with the provision that renewal of such licence in 1966 and thereafter be subject to the applicants proving that they made at least 80 per cent of the previous year's earnings from fishing."

"We are confident that such a licence would weed out the moonlight fishery in one year and would stop other opportunists in the fishing industry from destroying the established inside troll fishery. We feel such a licence for the inside troll will give some 150 fishermen and their families the opportunity to continue their chosen way of life at a better existent level than in the past," says a Trollers' brief.

The proposals are aimed at helping the about-150 bona fide fishermen who have retired from the rigorous areas of the fishing industry and the residents of the Gulf area who are dependent on trolling for their livelihood.

By simply not issuing new licences and waiting until these fishermen retire one by one, the Gulf of Georgia could become a sports fishing area, with little hardship to anyone.

Most frightening is the warning of over-exploitation following the proposed 3½-month winter closure.

The Pacific Trollers warn that with prospects of fat catches after a winter closure, the west coast troll fleet, troll equipped gillnetters and hundreds of moonlighters will concentrate on Gulf of Georgia waters as soon as they re-open. They would remain in the Gulf for longer than usual, as long as good fishing continues.

The Gulf fleet would jump to more than 450 boats from 50 to 100 boats until the depletion of the blueback industry. The Pacific Trollers point out that even at last year's fleet size 40 per cent of the blueback harvest was taken during the first two weeks of July, before other fisheries were in full swing and while most of the fleet concentrated on the Gulf of Georgia.

The new proposals of Pacific Trollers would stop this early over-exploitation, at a loss to the west coast trollers themselves.

Saanich Inlet Boatmen's Association members indicate they would be more understanding to the proposed sports catch limit cut, if they could get assurance that all salmon and herring net fishing be stopped in the Gulf of Georgia.

Utah Wins Indoor Contest

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Ron Coleman, a speedy halfback with more moves than a chess master, led explosive Utah through West Virginia's porous defenses for a 32-6 victory Saturday in college football's first indoor bowl game, the sixth annual Liberty Bowl inside spacious Convention Hall.

A crowd of 6,059 watched the nationally televised game in a comfortable 60-degree atmosphere. The temperature outside the oceanfront auditorium was 31.

HOUSTON (AP)—Jerry Rhyme, Tulsa's pass wizard, ignored a series of hard knocks administered by a tough Mississippi defence while passing and running his Hurricanes to a 14-7 victory Saturday over the favored Rebels in the sixth Bluebonnet Bowl football game.

Mississippi was an 11-point favorite.

Ale is not another name for beer. (It's brewed bottoms up.)

We know Ale is different from beer, because we brew both. Beer yeast works willingly at the bottom of the vat. But our stubborn Ale strain starts its career at the top. So we brew our Ale upside down—with a notable difference in flavour. Will you enjoy the difference? Only one way to prove it. Same way we brew it. Bottoms up.

Chelsea Boots Big Chance As Manchester U. Idled

LONDON (Reuters)—Fog and frost, which wiped out five English League soccer matches, hit Manchester United Saturday. Its game against Leicester was postponed, but it still headed the first division when nearest rival Chelsea lost 3-0 to lowly Sunderland.

United maintained its lead on goal average as Leeds United, promoted this season, scored a 1-0 away win over Olverhampton to join the Manchester club on the 34-point mark. Chelsea is a point behind.

Chelsea was far from impressive on a frost-bound pitch at Sunderland. Dominic Sharkey and Martin Harvey shot Sunderland, now fourth from bottom, into a 2-0 halftime lead and George Hird got the third goal in the second half.

Five points behind Chelsea comes Nottingham Forest, 3-2 winner over fifth-placed West Ham, which has 26 points. Also with 26 points are Blackburn Rovers and Tottenham Hotspur.

Tottenham drew 2-2 with Everton in London's big match. Jimmy Greaves scored both Tottenham goals and Fred Pickering, the England centre-forward, got the two Everton goals.

with leaders Newcastle and Northampton both winning. Newcastle was a 1-0 away win over Southampton and Northampton scored a 2-0 home win over Manchester City.

Cassius Gets New Manager

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Angelo Dundee, who has been heavyweight boxing champion Cassius Clay's trainer, was named his manager by the Louisville sponsoring group. Dundee, 43, replaces William Faversham, who gave up the job after being hospitalized with a heart ailment. Dundee will continue as trainer and Faversham will remain a member of the sponsoring group, composed of 10 men and one woman, the group said in a statement Thursday night.

Cringing at Christmas

Or, I Guess I'm Just Another Noel Coward

By TED GASKELL.
What is your biggest Christmas worry?
That you'll have too much turkey? Not enough liquor?
Where does the money go?
Where is it coming from?
Or is it that you'll forget to send cards to the people who always send to you?
That's my big problem, always.
Hence the following:
I'm rather scared of Christmas cards
With reason for my fear.

And consequently conscience pricks
About this time of year.
The people who remember me
Are those whom I forget
And every year December sees Me break out in a sweat
I find my worries piling high
(I should compile a list)
Cards come from Henry,
Joe and Cy.
The very ones we missed.
I thank them when we meet again.
It's all that I can do.

Except of course apologize.
"We only send a few."
"I thought my wife had written yours."
And she thought it was I
And consequently you were missed.
Along with Joe and Cy."
The mail becomes a fear-some thing
It frightens me to death
In case the latest bundles brings
A card from Clem and Beth.
They didn't send us one last year

But we remembered them.
And so this year, we left them out.
No card for Beth and Clem.
We ought to have a special rule
To cut our worries down
And only send out Christmas cards
To people out of town.
No cards at all for local folk.
No sentimental rhyme.
Instead the greeting, face to face.
"The best at Christmas Time."

'Shock, Challenge'

Sunday School Course Under Fire

Dr. Rowell

By IAN ARROL.
Dr. J. B. Rowell, pastor emeritus of Central Baptist Church, Victoria, has criticized the new Sunday school course of the United Church and some Baptist churches as an assault upon the Bible.
Dr. Rowell, 350 Foul Bay Road, pastor of Central Baptist for 31 years, feels the new curriculum "questions, denies, or casts doubt on the miraculous virgin birth of Our Lord; the literal resurrection of Jesus Christ; the early chapters of Genesis; the scripture account of David and Goliath, and also the account of the flood."
The Bible student terms the new teachings "a shock and a challenge to those who believe the Bible to be the word of God."

He calls "akin to blasphemy" such statements as are found on Page 9 of the Primary Teacher's Guide: "The first 11 chapters of the Bible are not history in the usual meaning of the term. Rather the stories there belong to the category known as myths."
Such statements are regarded by Dr. Rowell as comparable to the writings of "infidels," such as Thomas Paine, who sought to undermine faith by taking away the foundations of belief.
The new curriculum guide books are now being used by the United Church across Canada and the churches of the Baptist convention of Ontario and Quebec.
OUTCRY HEARD
However, Dr. Rowell said that an outcry and protest against the liberal and modernistic teachings in these study textbooks is being heard right across Canada.

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP)—An inquisitive five-year-old boy had a narrow escape when he tried to discover one of Santa's secrets.

German Skipper Visits Victoria

He's Had Five Careers

By DON GAGE
You meet the most interesting people at Ogden Point — like Capt. Karl Friedrich Kroplin of the West German freighter Erna Oldendorf.

Artist, writer, Baltic sea pilot, Luftwaffe navigator, the 57-year-old skipper can lay claim to all of these careers in addition to his seafaring life which began in 1922 behind the mast of a lumber-carrying tugboat.

"I'm still in the same business," said the captain, whose ship is picking up 700,000 board feet of lumber before sailing Monday afternoon.

The captain has an English accent picked up after the war when he was piloting Royal Navy destroyers through the Baltic Sea.

His son Nils has a Canadian accent from calling at east coast ports, he said. He's an able-bodied seaman on the Jobst Oldendorf, sister ship of the Erna. Another son is chief mate with the Star Line.

DROPPED SUPPLIES
Twenty-two years ago the captain was navigator on long-range reconnaissance flying boats of the Luftwaffe operating out of Tromsø, Norway. "We parachuted supplies to weather ships near the small islands off Greenland," he said. "The Americans had weather ships just 30 miles away. It was a gentleman's agreement that we not bother each other."

WRITES ARTICLES
In his spare moments at sea, after the daily routine is over, the captain writes articles for the German shipping magazine Sea Chest. He illustrates them with pencil drawings.

Right now he's working on a story of the Erna Oldendorf's maiden voyage two years ago.

"I'm describing your province," he said. "It's true what you have on your automobile licence plates—beautiful British Columbia."

He's working on pencil sketches of Chemainus, Victoria and Port Alberni.

Capt. Kroplin was in B.C. for the first time in 1940 on the Erna Oldendorf. He has brought the 4,395-ton Erna Oldendorf to the coast three times this year, twice to Victoria.

The bulk carrier will call at Port Alberni to top off her cargo of 2,550,000 board feet for Puerto Rico which she began loading at Chemainus.

Kiwanis Villa Real Home

'Talk Happiness' Key Rule

By BOB DONAHUE

"Talk happiness" is just one of the house rules at Kiwanis Villa — the others are "just common sense."

"That is probably why most of the 52 senior citizen residents feel this is really their home," says Mrs. V. L. Hawkins, the administrator of the Villa.

Whatever the reason, the atmosphere inside the home indicates that although the inhabitants have retired from the world they have not retired from life.

It is quiet there, but always one can hear happy voices somewhere within the sprawling complex on Cook Street.

"When people grow old their attitudes don't necessarily change — they just don't care what their next door neighbor thinks about them," said Mrs. Hawkins.

"There are some problems among the residents, but no more than the average home. It is amazing considering their ages and the different environments they have come from.

"The one thing most of them have in common is they love to be entertained. Musical entertainment is the favorite."

The Villa has its share of "characters." One of them, affectionately called The Maestro, is a former musician who usually sings from morning until night.

Average age of the residents is 82 years. The youngest is 68 and the oldest 94.

About three years ago two of the residents got married. She was 88 years old and he was 86 years old. The couple is now staying at a private nursing home.

'We Are All One Family' Says Pearkes' Message

Christmas greetings have been extended to all residents of B.C. by Lieutenant-Governor A. R. Pearkes.

"While families gather around the festive board on Christmas Day I hope they will spare a thought for the less fortunate who may be alone and far from human friends," Mr. Pearkes' message said.

"We are all members of one great family bound together by God's gift of His Son who came to live with men on Christmas Day, bringing good tidings of joy which, as the Christmas message of old said, 'shall be to all people.'

"This is the joy and the blessing of the Christmas season. May God bless you all with the knowledge of this joy stored deep within your hearts as you keep the festival."

Service Subscriptions

2,800 Applications Received By Victoria Ambulance Firm

A Victoria ambulance company has received 2,800 applications for subscriptions to its year-round service following a story in Friday's Colonist.

"We've had inquiries from as far away as Winnipeg and Montreal," said John Hanrahan of Garden City Ambulance Ltd., "as well as from Vancouver and the state of Washington."

Welensky Resigns Opposition Post

SALISBURY (UPI)—Sir Roy Welensky, the burly ex-premier of the Rhodesian Federation, resigned Saturday night as leader of the opposition Rhodesia party.

The 57-year-old Sir Roy's resignation could end the career of one of the most dynamic, colorful and controversial politicians in African history.

In a letter to party chairman J. A. Clark, Sir Roy said he resigned because of ill health and because he found it "impossible" to lead his party while he held no seat in parliament. Welensky lost a parliamentary byelection in August to end his attempted political comeback.

FRAGMENT

The Rhodesia Party is the leading white opposition to the government of Premier Ian Smith, which has indicated it might seize independence from Britain in an attempt to perpetuate its all-white rule. Sir Roy's retirement was considered certain to fragment the party and weaken the campaign against a unilateral declaration of independence.

Sir Roy said his resignation would take effect immediately. Son of a Lithuanian Jewish hotel owner, Sir Roy quit school at 14 and went to work on the Rhodesian railroads. A campaign against anti-Semitism led him into railway union work and later into politics—with time out to become Rhodesia's heavy-weight boxing champ.

OPERATION

He helped form the Rhodesian Federation in 1953, then saw it die during the past two years with independence under African rule of two of the three partners, Malawi and Zambia.

Sir Roy underwent an operation in London last month. He said Saturday he expected to spend six to nine months recuperating fully.

Sir Roy Planning Visit to Victoria

Sir Roy Welensky, former prime minister of the now defunct Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland, will visit Victoria some time in March, 1965. The former prime minister is slated to make a speaking tour of Canada and the United States this spring.

In Victoria, he will visit his sister-in-law, Mrs. D. J. Hopkins, 157 Cambridge, and his niece, Mrs. D. E. Bower, 1613 Rockland.

When the central African federation collapsed just over a year ago, Sir Roy retired to his farm in Rhodesia until he was persuaded to take over the leadership of the former United Party, at whose helm he served as prime minister of the Federation for its last seven years.

Russians Too Vague

West Favors Talks About All Berlin

BERLIN (UPI)—The United States, Britain and France have told the Russians they are willing to hold informal four-power meetings in Berlin on matters concerning the entire city, an Allied spokesman said Saturday.

The Allied statement was made Thursday to the Soviet liaison officer in East Berlin in reply to vague Russian suggestions for setting up regular contacts on Berlin problems. The Russian suggestions were so vague they might not still be in existence.

The Western Allies made it clear they were not interested in meeting the Russians to discuss only West Berlin. The Russians have long claimed East Berlin is part of "sovereign" East Germany and not a four-power occupation city.

Western officials said they suspected the Russians were attempting to gain some influence on matters concerning West Berlin where the three Western powers are the occupation powers. The Russians occupy East Berlin.

The Russians say they no longer have any responsibility for each development in East Berlin as the Communist Wall. The Allies say the Russians are solely responsible and refuse to deal with the East Germans on East Berlin problems.

Wall Opened For Christmas

BERLIN (AP)—The Christmas reunion of persons separated by the Berlin Wall began Saturday as tens of thousands went into the Soviet sector of the divided city.

East German border guards opened the wall before dawn and by late afternoon about 70,000 West Berliners had passed through.

Children Kidnapped To Promote Begging

MOSCOW (AP)—Moscow police have arrested a woman accused of kidnapping three children to help her beg aims, the newspaper Soviet Russia reports.

The account said Miss V. Kaminskaya used the children to attract pity. They were returned.

Famed Store Ravaged

DALLAS (AP) — Neiman-Marcus, the Dallas specialty store known around the world for its fashions and merchandising techniques, was smoke-streaked and water-soaked Saturday after a fierce five-hour fire that ravaged its upper floors.

Vice-President Edward Marcus estimated damage as in excess of $5,000,000.

More than 400 firemen and 20 pieces of equipment fought the blaze.

Clouds of black smoke shrouded the Dallas skyline as firemen poured tons of water into the seven-story building, which was heavily stocked for Christmas shoppers.

Dense smoke obscured the upper three floors for hours after the alarm was sounded about 3:30 a.m.

Cause of the fire had not been determined when firemen subdued it about 9 a.m.

Associated with artistic embellishments for the new Queen Victoria Inn is Susan Im Baumgarten who arrived in the city four months ago from Switzerland.

Builder Peter Hartnell commissioned her to make up designs for the tile frieze which will go around three sides of the children's swimming pool.

Miss Im Baumgarten came up with animals—one strip of African animals and one of Canadian ones. A third strip will be of sea life.

These will be displayed on the three-foot high, 42-foot long pool walls.

In Switzerland Miss Im Baumgarten has done murals for a new kindergarten.

She has worked in ceramics, mosaic and sgraffito—a form of ornamental plastering.

A current project for the artist at her home at 1450 Mt. Newton Crossroad is making Christmas cards for her new friends in this country.

She is planning water and oil paintings of her new land in the New Year.

But mostly she is looking forward to more commissions such as she has received for the Queen Victoria, preferably mural and mosaic work.

New motor inn may open in June

Questions . . . . . . Answers

By CHARLES TAYLOR

Q. We built a new home which has ceramic tile in the shower stall. Where the water flows over the tile, the grout has turned brown. Is there anything that can take it off, and if there is, where can you get it?

A. Mortar has a tendency to absorb dirt. Try scrubbing with a household bleach, using a toothbrush. If the results are not satisfactory then rake out the grout with a sharply-pointed screwdriver or chisel. Brush out all loose powder, wet the inside surfaces and fill with a stain-resistant grout now available at some hardware, paint and department stores. Then wipe off all cement smears from the surface of the tile with a damp cloth.

Q. We live in the lower-floor unit of our two-storey apartment house, and would appreciate some suggestion on how to deaden the sounds that come from our tenants up stairs.

A. Construction of a false ceiling would help. The framing for it should be fastened to the walls and not in contact with the existing ceiling. A thick blanket or batt-type of insulating material should be placed between the framing members and the new ceiling, which can be finished with wallboard. Another method is to cover the floors above with a carpet cushion and then wall-to-wall carpeting. Either method involves considerable expense.

Q. Can a table top of plastic laminate be painted, and if so, what type of paint should be used?

A. It is not recommended, because paint will not adhere satisfactorily to the slick, non-porous plastic surface.

By IAN ARROL

A separate swimming pool for the children connected to the adult pool by a waterfall will be one of the features of the Queen Victoria Inn, now stretching up to its eight storeys across from Thunderbird Park on Douglas Street.

The motor inn itself will provide a vision of glass and tile, two tones of white for the tower and turquoise elsewhere.

BALCONIES
Each of the 90 units — 72 bachelor, 12 one-bedroom, six two-bedroom suites — will have a balcony.

"A roof-top lobby with marble floor is planned for small conventions, perhaps for dancing," said Peter Hartnell who with Vincent Patterson constitute the owners, Carmel Holdings Ltd.

"The upper lobby room will have a fireplace and outside will be a roof garden."

Back to the first level. In addition to the swimming pools, parking space for 45 cars will be provided. The next level will also take 45 cars.

THE VIEW
"The view from the deck will be of Thunderbird Park and the Inner Harbor beyond. We should be able to accommodate about 150 in relaxed atmosphere."

"The guests will also be able to observe the swimming pools from a coffee bar area."

Two elevators will service the floors.

Mr. Hartnell said tourists are getting more demanding and there is not much general acceptance now for accommodation less than the best.

$1,000,000
The Queen Victoria Inn is a $1,000,000 project. Contractors are Patterson Construction Ltd. The architects are Peterson and Lester.

"We are hoping to open in June," said Mr. Hartnell.

Guantanamo Has Its Own Water

Weather Halts Building Boom

Rebels Given Amnesty

SANTO DOMINGO (Reuters)—The Dominican government announced that all persons arrested in last December's abortive rebellion will be freed under an unconditional amnesty.

Victoria's building boom shuddered to a stop last Wednesday.

High winds, cold and snow kept outside construction men off the job the rest of the week, too.

"Some work was carried on, but mainly in enclosed areas," said one building spokesman.

All hope for a return of typical Victoria weather tomorrow so projects can be resumed.

Separate Accidents

Drivers Badly Hurt As Roads Jammed

City and highway traffic accidents Saturday left two drivers in hospital with serious injuries.

A two-car collision at 10 a.m. on the corner of Bay and Rose injured retired naval officer David (Dan) Rigg, 3442 Henderson.

David Johnston, of 1476 Edgeware, was hurt in a two-car collision on Patricia Bay Highway about half a mile south of Mount Newton Cross Road during the noon hour.

DOZEN REPORTED

They were the most serious of a dozen accidents reported as hurried police coped with heavy shopper traffic throughout the Victoria area.

Mr. Johnston was the driver and only occupant of a car that collided head-on with another vehicle at 12:45 p.m. He received undetermined back injuries and was admitted to Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Mr. Rigg received serious head injuries and was in fairly good condition later Saturday in St. Joseph's Hospital.

NOT INJURED

Driver of the second car in the Rigg crash was identified by city police as Mrs. Elizabeth Woloschuk, 4079 Tuxedo Drive. She was not injured.

Second driver in the Patricia Bay Highway crash was Robert Johnson, 639 Foul Bay Road, said Central Saanich police. He was not hurt, they added.

KNEE CUTS

In another city accident, Mrs. Pearl Thomson, 644 Fairways, received knee cuts at about 3 a.m. when her car struck a parked vehicle in the 400 block

Dallas. She was detained for treatment at St. Joseph's Hospital.

A woman pedestrian escaped serious injury when brushed by a hit-and-run car at Broad and Yates shortly after 3 p.m.

City police were seeking a vehicle driven by a youth accompanied by two other young men.

University Carollers Out Tonight

University of Victoria carollers will tour homes of the faculty members starting at 6:30 p.m. today.

Singers will gather in the Gordon Head campus parking lot prior to boarding eight buses which will take them on the tour which ends at Government House.

Colwood RCMP Checking Cars

'Tis the season for road checks, say Colwood RCMP.

They conducted their first of the season on the Trans-Canada Highway at Portage Inlet Saturday night.

A check of between 200 and 250 vehicles resulted in no actual charges laid, "but there are some possible charges," said a spokesman.

Food Stall Fills Gap for Neediest Families

Spectre of Hunger Brushed Aside for Holiday

By AL ARNASON

The spectre of hunger was temporarily banished Saturday for the neediest of Victoria's needy.

In its monthly flurry of controlled giving, the volunteers and donors of the city's free food stall won a three or four-day victory over their traditional enemy.

For a pre-Christmas crowd, the people lined up to the door of the Elks Club building on Cormorant Street wasn't much bigger than average.

They spoke little. Handouts scar the ego—even when they are given in love and kindness.

Mostly women without husbands—through death or desertion—they try to ignore the lash of pride. It can be done when the alternative is hungry children.

On the other side of the makeshift counter volunteer workers check cards issued by welfare authorities to the food seekers. Without cards, none receive food.

The meat, bread, fruit and canned goods are placed in bags in quantities dictated by the size of the family to be served.

All are on welfare. But it isn't easy to pay rent, food, clothing, heating out of $147.50 a month. That's the welfare payment for a family of four.

The free food stall just fills the worst of the gap between the welfare cheques. Welfare workers know which families are the neediest. They issue the stall's cards to these.

Food stall workers are paid off in satisfaction. Like the old city firm that supplies a truck, a driver and a swamper for making pickups from grocery retailers and wholesalers, they prefer anonymity.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Harper are not young. Mr. Harper retired from 24 years' service in the RCMP before his wife took on the food stall a dozen years ago.

Today it is a way of life. It is their burden and their delight and it consumes most of their time. They feel they are well rewarded by the knowledge of the importance of the food to those who receive it.

Even after 12 years, their charity has not cooled. There was no note of condescension in Mr. Harper's voice when he urged the waiting people to crowd into the warmth of the stall building.

They sensed it. It seemed to make it easier.

Boar's Head... Turkey... Caviar

By TED GASKELL

The old time Christmas tradition will be observed for the 16th year at the Olde England Inn where mine host Sam Lane has a full house for his turkey dinner party.

The major domo will wear a tri-corn hat and carry a beadle's staff while the waiters, clad in Elizabethan costumes, bring in the boar's head and the yule log.

Featured in the dinner is Prince Philip's game soup, specially imported from Scotland and consisting of partridge, pheasant, grouse and venison.

Dinner starts at 6 p.m. and continues to 10 p.m. with entertainment provided by organist Jack Lanigan, magician Frank Scott and travel slides of Britain, Greece and Yugoslavia by Mr. Lane.

The Empress also goes traditional with costumed carollers parading through the hotel.

First parade is at 9 a.m. Then at 7 p.m. the carollers parade again while the yule log is brought in and burned.

The choristers go to the various dining rooms where 500 guests will dine and hear carols by soloists and the choir.

Guests are from 53 different cities including Portland, Oregon, which is sending 78 guests.

At present the Empress is employing four girls just to handle reservations which must be refused.

Traditional dinners with entertainment are also scheduled for the Dominion and Oak Bay Beach hotels.

The city establishment will have Bert Potentier, organist, playing Christmas Day, Boxing Day and Sunday for the dinner period.

The Oak Bay hotel has Jerry Gossley's Show '64 Christmas

Day and carollers in the evening, Christmas Eve.

The Grouse Nest plans no entertainment in addition to its regular four-piece orchestra. Here the menu gets special attention.

Filet mignon is the Christmas Day luncheon item while dinner includes caviar, turtle soup, filet of sole, turkey, plum pudding and log cake.

Pate de fois gras is on the New Year menu with salmon steak and filet mignon.

Harbor Light Opening Door

Persons wishing to attend are asked to telephone Major Austin Miller at EV 4-3386.

His hobbies are curling, golf and fishing.) ... Dean Robert Wallace at the university Christmas dance ... Thomas Derby greeting the postman ... ### Santa's Job Not Easy

Most Believed—One Screamed

By GARY OAKES

He's a little fat and looks unkempt but everybody loves him.

And don't knock his job, it's tough work.

I know, I tried it.

For almost two hours Saturday afternoon I played Santa Claus in Eaton's Toyland.

Faith Restored

It was a difficult task but a lot of fun and certainly restored my faith in jolly St. Nicholas.

While the real Santa was busy elsewhere I slipped into one of his spare suits, borrowed a beard and a pillow and for a while became the childhood idol.

Most of the kids from 2 to 7 believed in me while the younger ones didn't understand and the older ones scoffed and chuckled at this short fat cat with the beard and funny red costume.

'You're Not ...'

"You're not Santa Claus," one little darling remarked.

"You're just some guy with a beard."

Then there was the 210-pound wisecracking teenager who wanted to sit on Santa's knee.

Of course a few sweet young things made up for the wise guys.

A Bit Warmer

"Hey Santa baby," a 36-22-34 lovely cooed, "you're kind of cute." It was a little warm under the suit.

"I believe in you, Santa," two fluttering blue eyes said sincerely. Boy, was it getting hot under that suit!

The real Santa would have blushed at the remarks of some of the older women—boy, do they dig Santa Claus!

'Why, Santa?'

But this Santa got in a few of his own licks as well.

"Why, Santa?" gasped the elevator operator after I wished her a very Merry Christmas.

The kids who believe, how-

ever, were the most enjoyable.

They have faith but most of them are very sharp.

"How are you going to get down the chimney?" one little boy demanded. "We got an oil stove."

Outsmarting

"Dad won't let me," he replied, obviously happy that he was outsmarting old Claus.

"We'll work something out," I muttered and moved off to some more appreciating kids.

"And what do you want for Christmas, little boy?" I asked of a six-year-old.

'Just Told You!'

"I just told you 10 minutes ago," he answered. "Did you forget already?"

"No," I replied. "I just wanted to see if you were on your toes."

One of the clerks asked me to stick around the toy department because all the kids were especially good when Santa was there.

Stopped Shooting

"They've stopped shooting the guns and running the cars," she said.

Most of the believers swore

they had been good but under intensive cross-examination admitted a little badness.

"We don't fight very often," two young brothers pleaded.

Treat Waiting

Many children are deeply in love with Santa and several wanted to hug and kiss him.

"We have some porridge for you at our house," a blond-haired boy beamed.

Some ran up to Santa and threw their arms around him; others approached shyly and then blurted out requests for toys.

Santa's image was tarnished a little when a toddler began screaming just at the sight of him.

Time to Go

But now it was time to go and a perspiring Santa slipped into a phone booth, changed to reporter's clothes and stepped back into reality as mild-mannered Gary (Clark) Oakes of the Daily Metropolis.

It was great fun and the mild-mannered reporter has warm memories of the Christmas spirit.

'Ho, ho (unhand the threads, Kid) ho'

'Thank You Grandfather, for the Snow'

By EILEEN LEABOYD

The snow and ice that came this week and made the adult population of Victoria shiver—and glare in frustration at frozen car batteries—has brought untold delight to the children.

But no children have been happier than some little visitors from San Salvador, Central America.

Last Tuesday at the height of the blizzard, Wendy, Nora and Susan Hempton arrived via the Tswassen Ferry. They came with their mother, Mrs. E. Hempton, and were met by her parents, Dr. and Mrs. S. R. Richardson of Arsenault Place, where they will spend the holiday season.

Wendy, Nora and Susan, age three, four and five, had never before in their lives seen snow. The first two were born in Salvador and the third in Venezuela.

There was a blinding wind as the children came off the ferry. It took two hours for Dr. Richardson to drive the visitors safely home. It snowed. It blew. It was hard to see. There was one accident after another on the highway. Cars slid into ditches. Trucks skidded into other trucks.

It was a nightmare drive for Dr. Richardson. It was sheer heaven for the little Hemptons.

They "oh'd" and "ah'd" and hugged themselves with joy all the way home.

As Dr. Richardson struggled to keep the car on the road, his granddaughters expressed their unbounded happiness.

"Thank you, thank you, dear grandfather," they cried in gratitude. "We had not dared to hope for snow. You have given us the most wonderful Christmas present in the world."

"Hurray!" they chorused as another car went off the road. "How we envy you living here, such fun."

"Santa Claus has given us everything we could wish for," they sighed in bliss. Almost a whole week of snow has simply made the trio happier and happier. They can hardly bear to go to bed at night, but stand at their windows with the lights out, pressing noses on the glass, drinking in the rapturous sight of white grass, white roads, white trees, and white drifting in the skies.

The children who go to Spanish schools, were three weeks in England before coming here. They will leave Victoria January 1 for a new home—alas in which once more there will be no snow. They go to live in Cali, Columbia, South America, where their father has been transferred for the Bank of Montreal.

"We have had the children

Grandfather not only brought them the snow, but he took them to the Ice Capades too. Here, Nora, Susan and Wendy from Central America, meet star Gabrielle, who comes from Garmish, Germany. —(Robin Clarke)

here before," said Dr. and Mrs. Richardson, "but we are now enjoying an all-time popularity. Each night at bedtime, we are thanked again for the snow."

"Thank you dear grandfather and grandmother," they say, "the snow is so beautiful. Wouldn't it be lovely if we have more blizzards before we go?"

Dr. Richardson who lives at the bottom of a steep hill, has a hard time to answer that question with honesty. But he is a most indulgent grandfather and is having quite a struggle with himself as to whether he will arrange more snow, or not—for Wendy, Nora and Susan.

Queen's Own Rifles Ready for Christmas

As in most Victoria homes, families of officers and men of the Queen's Own Rifles are busy making preparations for Christmas.

But there is difference for most of these families as most of the children had one or two Christmases in Germany.

The QOR came back to Victoria in the autumn of 1963, barely in time to appreciate the holiday season. This year is different, everyone is having fun and games getting ready for the visit of Santa Claus.

Approximately 275 children now have dual citizenship, as they were born in Germany during the QOR sojourn in that country.

Doing The Town

with DOROTHY FRASER

Why can't men... be more like us?...

Let's face it, most men are born procrastinators when it comes to Christmas shopping for their nearest and dearest... maybe it's the crowds that scare them... or the bewildering array of merchandise on every hand... If your Santa Claus has that harried, perplexed look on his face... clip this out for him and head him in the direction of W. & J. Wilson... He'll shop leisurely and in comfort... and is bound to come out with something you'll adore... There's a white velvet hatbox gown with an all-over silver design that's dreamy... Gorgeous Dynasty velvet "at home" gowns with slim skirts... sit up to there at the sides... Pure mohair Italian sweaters in "way-out" designs and delicious color combinations... to wear with knit almas which echo any one of the sweater colors... Floral print sweaters from West Germany, which also have co-ordinated knit almas... The handbags from Spain are pure beauty and luxury... there's a camel-colored suede and black calf bag which even the sales ladies... who presumably have seen everything... are drooling over... And if you're still with us, girls, we remind you that Wilson's men's department has very fine white or colored shirts... which don't cost a penny more than anywhere else... W. & J. Wilson Limited, 1231 Government Street, 283-1177.

Light and lacy knit dresses, edged with crocheting, are very new looking.

These slippers are glamour-pusses!...

Delving back in history... we realize that scarcely a Christmas has passed that we haven't received a pair of bedroom or "at home" slippers as a gift... and we still recall the glow of pleasure with which we've always unwrapped such offerings... The thing is, no matter how many bedroom slippers a woman already owns... another pair is always welcome... particularly if they're glamorous as well as comfy... So we hasten to tell you about the really exciting collection of slippers at Munday's... Well-known makes like Daniel Green and Complices... in practically every material known to man... There's a multi-color brocade with gold trim that's sheer delight... Rich glowing colors to underline a pretty housecoat or lounging slacks... warm shearing foot warmers... mouton mules with gold straps and heels... imitation leopard skin chameleons that could fool the beasts of the forest... soft calfskin... shimmering satins... gold or silver boudoir mules from Italy... Slippers that are tailored or tantalizing... They all come in a wide range of sizes, and prices start at $3.95... You simply can't go wrong saying Merry Christmas with slippers... so do see the collection at... Munday's, 1263 Douglas Street, EV 5-2211.

The bouffant evening gown is definitely on the way back.

Festive frocks for a gay Yuletide...

Well, now that you've done most of your Christmas shopping and got everything under way... how about a new dress for the holidays... a present from you to you? You don't even need much money to acquire one of the delightful little dresses we saw at Miss Frith's this week... we particularly liked the short party dress with black crepe skirt, white ribbed bodice, and a bright green satin belt bowed in the front to the waist... Costs only $29.98... and for the same price you can have a slim black dress with all-over sequined blouse... or a red sheer with slim skirt, floaty ruffle around the neck and diamante straps... There's a beautiful green and blue brocade which looks like a two-piece dress but isn't... this particular color combination is very rich-looking... certainly belies its low price tag of $29.98... More expensive, but very lovely, is the black cloque dress... skirt with camisole top... short over-blouse edged all around with a jet and bead trim... A black matelasse dress with tiered skirt is most attractive... and only $25... Miss Frith's have a very good selection of half size dresses, too... all types for every occasion... Miss Frith's Millinery and Fashions, 1617 Douglas Street, EV 3-4912.

Make yourself a natty little pillow stuffed with old-cut stockings and lingerie. Wonderfully soft and easily washed.

The scents of Christmas...

Of all the gifts from man to maid... husband to wife... even friend to friend... perhaps the most flattering of all is a gift of fine perfume... It's an implicit compliment to the femininity of the recipient... a long-lasting reminder of the love and thoughtfulness of the giver... One of the best collections of perfume in Victoria... (many of these scents cannot be found elsewhere)... is at Douglas Pharmacy, just south of City Hall... New this Christmas is the well-loved Arpege in "natural spray" purser... won't leak or spill, and dispenses the precious contents in their natural undiluted state... There are perfumes by Patou, Lubin, Werthe, Chanel, Raphael, Hartnell, Caron... those exciting Spanish perfumes by Myrurgia... delightful scents from Hawaii, by Brown of Honolulu... Many nice gift sets... newest of which is Faberge's trio... Aphrodite, Woodhew and Treasures, in intoxicating containers... and priced at only $3.75 the set... And let's not forget the men in our lives... An intriguing tip decanter bottle of Faberge's "Brut" after-shave lotion... 3 different sizes, each beautifully packaged... Our idea for "the man who has everything"... Douglas Pharmacy, 1612 Douglas Street, 385-1541.

Sprinkle stardust (bottled variety) in your hair when you saunter forth of an evening.

Candy's always dandy...

Somebody on Christmas last got you stymied?... A box of Welch's delicious chocolates and candies could fill the bill beautifully... And if you really want to do it up proud... there are special gift boxes gay as Christmas itself... topped with pretty Yuletide corsages the recipient can wear on her dress or coat... Of course it's what's in the boxes that really counts... and in this department, Welch's can't be beat... Their chocolates and candies are made fresh daily... from the finest and purest of ingredients... Close to 150 different varieties to titillate every quirk of sweet tooth... Welch's will deliver anywhere in the city... so you need only phone your order in... they'll mail out-of-town, too... though it's getting a bit late for this... Naturally you'll want plenty of candy around the house for your own Christmas festivities... A few chocolates at every place setting around the festive board is a nice touch... Welch's Brilliant Christmas Mix, of colorful hard candies, is perfect for filling tree containers or to help stuff stockings... Candy comes for the tree, too... "gold" coins and such... A box of imported liqueurs, in the shape of tiny bottles, could go well in a masculine sock... Welch's Candy Shop, 755 Fort Street, 383-6432.

Long jackets and flaring bias skirts loom large in Italian fashions.

Yuletide at Discovery Inn...

If you'd like a really nice place away from home... (but not too far away)... to spend Christmas... or to dance the New Year in... do give a thought to Discovery Inn at Campbell River... where they're planning to do the holiday season up proud... Specially reduced rates in effect from Dec. 21 to Jan. 3 inclusive... just $7 per day, double, for the regular $10 rooms... $5 single... and they'll get a child's cot in your room for free... There'll be all the Christmas atmosphere you could wish for... holly and tinsel and trees... (mistletoe, too, for all we know)... and epicurean food at every meal... A very special Christmas dinner that the chef has been laboring over for weeks... and won't it be nice to have someone else do all the planning and cooking and washing-up while you just relax and enjoy yourself?... If you're energetic, and weather permits, you can play golf nearby... We're told the fishing (steelhead) is good... and if you're brave enough to walk the few yards from room to pool, you can defy the polar bears and swim in beautifully warm water... Big dance on New Year's Eve... for which you'll need reservations... So pick up the phone now... call collect to... Discovery Inn, Campbell River, V.I., 287-7125.

A leading parfumeur reminds us: Perfume is valuable only when in use!

Catin's take the chore out of moving...

Guess nobody can work up much enthusiasm for moving at this time of year... (although we ourselves did that very thing this time last year)... But it's a fact that come January, a lot of people will be moving themselves and their possessions from here to there... across the street, across the city, or across the continent... and should that time come for you, one of your most important decisions will be your choice of movers... Because the right movers... men with experience and savvy... and a keen interest in their job... can make all the difference between a smooth, painless move... and chaos, frustration and harassment... That's why we so wholeheartedly recommend Catin's for any sort of moving job... even if it's just a few things you want transported... Not only have we personally experienced their careful moving... but from numerous talks with the Catin people (most of whom are co-owners)... we know just how dedicated they are to their jobs... the pride they take in their work... and the lengths to which they'll go to spare you fuss and ado... Catin's storage facilities are tops, too... and you can be sure anything you entrust to them will be safe and well cared-for... Catin's Moving & Storage, 743 Pembroke Street, EV 5-3476.

New Careers in Science Open for Women

By BRENDA LARGE
OTTAWA (CP)—More women would enter scientific occupations if they were encouraged to do so early in life, says a special report issued by the federal labor department.

The survey of careers for women in the physical sciences and mathematics was done for the women's bureau of the department by Alice Griffiths of Ottawa, a former librarian. A 1937 graduate of the University of Toronto in history and library science, she is married to Ottawa broadcaster Stuart Griffiths and has two sons.

Mrs. Griffiths found that one basic reason for the small number of women in such fields as astronomy, physics and geology is that little is done by most parents and teachers to stimu-

Hundreds of careers are now opening up for Canadian women in physical sciences and mathematics—fields which have long been traditional male preserves. Geologist Alice Payne of Ottawa uses slide rule in radioactivity laboratory of the federal department of mines, working alongside W. Dyke, who is operating the radioactivity counter.—(CP) late girls to take an interest in science while they are young.

The few women who have succeeded in the physical sciences attribute their early interest to the encouragement of parents or teachers who have recognized their scientific or mathematical abilities.

In interviews with numerous women scientists, Mrs. Griffiths got answers like these, when she asked why women had chosen their particular professions:

A research chemist wrote: "My father was an enthusiastic communications engineer . . . some of his enthusiasm rubbed off onto me. I also had a natural inclination towards scientific subjects, especially mathematics, at school. I was determined to become a scientist from the age of 14."

BOOKS AS STIMULANT
A paleontologist, whose father was a sea captain, said her early environment had great influence on her science career. Her father brought home from his world travels many interesting objects of the sea and curiosities from far-away lands.

A woman astronomer said her interest in science was stimulated in her home from childhood, especially by the gift at Christmas and birthdays of books, often adult books not fully read or comprehended at the time, but proudly possessed and partly understood.

A woman geologist attributed her success in studying and undertaking geology as a career to her father, whose passionate hobby was the study of the natural sciences. His children accompanied him on his excursions and were accustomed to having their home crowded with specimens of rocks, plants, insects and even the occasional snake.

From these interviews it is obvious, Mrs. Griffiths concluded, that scientifically inclined girls need, and respond to, encouragement from their families and teachers.

"For girls particularly, the personal contact with women scientists, a chance to meet and talk with a woman who already has achieved some measure of success, may be valuable."

TRIPS USEFUL
Also important are trips to museums, observatories and planetariums. These are especially effective when there is a direct relation to school study or science hobby.

Girls as well as boys should be encouraged to take part in school science and mathematics clubs.

At one point in her 41-page report, Mrs. Griffiths summarizes what she believes are the basic attributes women scientists must have in order to succeed.

"The success of a woman in science will be in large measure due to her ability to carry out plans for obtaining the best education possible in her field of specialization.

"Her next step will come when she chooses science as a 'career,' not just a 'job' to put in time before marriage. As a result, her chances of obtaining and maintaining a satisfying position will be increased."

Quiet Wedding

About 40 people attended the wedding reception at Victoria Lawn Tennis and Badminton Club which followed the quiet wedding ceremony for Susanna Mummery and Mr. Robin G. Parker.

Rev. J. A. Roberts read the marriage service in St. Paul's Anglican Church for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Mummery of Toronto and the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Parker of Langham Court, Victoria.

A knee-length white brocade dress and short veil centred by a white rose, was worn by the bride. She carried a corsage of pink roses.

Miss Carol Stone, maid of honor chose a coral suit with white carnation corsage.

Mr. Jackson Flitess was best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker will reside in Esquimalt.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: It's difficult to remain silent when I see trouble ahead but if you say so I will.

The girl who lives next door is 32 years old. (We went to high school together.) Bella is a sweet person, but very plain, and I'm afraid she's not very smart about the ways of the world.

She has taken a tumble for a bus driver who is handsome, sweet-talking and a total heel. The man is married and has a family but it doesn't interfere with his social life one bit. I've seen women pass up buses in bad weather just to ride with him.

My neighbor's parents have been away for several weeks and the bus driver has been a frequent visitor.

Shall I do Bella a favor and give her a run-down on this rat's history or should I keep my mouth shut?—LITTLE BIRDIE

Dear Birdie: Bella doesn't want to be tipped off, so keep quiet. Let's hope she gets smart before she finds herself stranded in the boondocks—with no transfer.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband's mother lives in a neighboring state. In the 15 years Clyde and I have been married she has never once put my name on a card or letter. She often underlines the word Mr. to make sure I won't open the letter by mistake.

The only time my mother-in-law mentions me is when I am ill. Then she writes "Please tell Evelyn I hope she is back on her feet soon so she can do her housework and be a wife to you."

I've never failed to send my mother-in-law a gift on Mother's Day and on her birthday. (She spends Christmas with us.) Not once has she remembered me or the children on any occasion whatever. Am I a fool to have remained silent all these years? Maybe I should blow my top and tell both Clyde and his mother how I feel.—PRESSURE COOKER

Dear Cooker: Then what would you have—beside a blow?

nothing out of the way occurred? And is it respectable for two working girls to have two young men in for dinner? Is it proper for a young woman to go to a young man's apartment and prepare dinner for just the two of them? I need answers. Fast.—NAIVE

Be thankful the doll lives in a "neighboring state." Some wives have it next door.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 23-year-old college graduate who should know all the answers but I don't.

Please list some ground rules for working girls who have their own apartments. I'm confused about what is right and what is wrong when young men visit.

Some of my girl friends have given parties that went on so long the fellows became exhausted and fell asleep on the floor. By the time they woke up they decided it was silly to go home so they went to work from there.

No matter how you look at it these boys stayed all night. Is this wrong or right—even if

And is it respectable for two working girls to have two young men in for dinner? Is it proper for a young woman to go to a young man's apartment and prepare dinner for just the two of them? I need answers. Fast.—NAIVE

Dear Naive: I am typing as fast as I can and I hope this letter reaches you in time. It is NOT proper for guests (male OR female) to fall asleep on the floor and stay all night. Anyone who gets too tired to sit up should go home.

Thumbs up on having young men in to dinner. How else can a girl show off her cooking? Thumbs down on going to a man's apartment to cook dinner for him. And the girl who does not know why usually finds out too late.

Christmas Fete For Symphony

The Victoria Symphony Society Women's Committee held their annual Christmas party and dinner recently in the Duke of Kent room at the Empress Hotel.

There was singing of Christmas carols and gifts were exchanged. Mrs. Ronald Hackney and Mrs. E. Webster were convener.

Monsieur Jean Anfer, concert master of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra, won the raffle. It was also announced that proceeds of the giant rummage sale amounted to $640.

More Women Competing

There will be 40 women, ten more than 1963, competing in the 11th annual Christmas Tree Trophy championships at Royal Colwood Golf Course on Boxing Day.

Both Mrs. Edna Hay, Colwood Ladies Captain and Mrs. Sheila Morgan, vice-captain, will be playing this year.

A gay, golden daffodil will be presented to each lady participant, courtesy of The Daily Colonist.

Again this year there will be a prize for the most attractive costume.

CHIP AND DIP

Blend well-seasoned chili sauce and horseradish to taste. Add 1/4 to 1/2-inch cubes of cooked turkey. Serve in bowls with a supply of food picks for guests to spear the savoury tid-bits. Pass small crackers or potato chips as an accompaniment.

The first tee-off for women will be at 9:15 a.m. (Draw on sports page.)

Half-way round the course, the Colonist will provide refreshments and hot coffee. A roast beef luncheon will also be held in the clubhouse.

Woodward's Santa will have an assortment of attractive gifts for every competitor and silver prizes will be awarded by the Colonist to champions of both gross and net.

TV's Hazel Tells How To Find Friends

By KITTE TURMELL

How can you get acquainted with the girl next door, the boy across the street, the celebrity, the new-comer, or the old-timer in your neighborhood?

To swing into the holiday good-will spirit, here are seven pointers for friend-making close to home—wherever you live—from actress Shirley Booth, who makes and keeps friends wherever she goes, as a TV, Broadway, and show-tour star.

Here is her friendly-neighbor philosophy, starched with her humor—and independence.

To star as a neighbor:
• "Do let things happen naturally, and don't force anything. Wait for the first opportunity to meet, that's apt to pop up any minute. Sometimes it's a fountain that bursts when someone hits the water hydrant, or the scream of the fire-sirens, that gets everybody outside in a hurry, running to see what's happening. Or maybe you're all going out — for a community event or benefit program or Christmas church-service.

• "If you're in the crowd, you'll get to know everybody around you. It can be as unplanned—and transitory—as that. Then to pursue the acquaintance follow through, find a casual, easy way to show you want to be friendly.

• "Don't stand on ceremony or try to set things too far ahead or strain to make social events formal. If you feel the urge to ask someone over on short notice, or invite someone who drops in to stay for dinner, do so. Some of those impulse-invitations spark the most fun.

• "If you drop in, don't linger unless asked to stay awhile. And then, don't for long. For good timing, for uninvited visiting, I was trained never to stop in anywhere during the hour before mealtime. Or too soon after mealtime to give time to clear up. Now, there's not much time for visiting after the dinner hour, with TV, unless you want to sit in on the family's favorite TV shows.

• "Be friendly, but don't overdo it. If some people don't respond after three or four invitations, drop them until they find time to pay some attention to you.

• Don't form habits of borrowing. If you're close to a store and can go out and have money to pay for what you want, do that. Don't borrow unless you need something you can't get by yourself—or are in real trouble. How can you discourage borrowing? Just give them the asbestos curtain—drop it down meaning that's all there is, there isn't any more—then ignore the slow-burn reaction.

• "Do show interest—and be interesting. First, listen well. Then, to interest others, keep your talk chatty and pithy, packed with good news. Skip the Misery Talk—there's time enough for that after you get to know each other, for better or for worse.

• "Don't waste words about how long it's been since you said 'Hi,' or how seldom you meet. Make the time you do happen to have together, right then, interesting, worth every minute of it. That way you can do as my best friend and I do—without seeing each other then one phone to say 'Let's go shopping' and away we go—with no back-talk about how long it's been since we've been together.

• "If in doubt about when you might or might not be welcome, as a self-invited visitor, phone to ask if the one you apply to visit is busy. That applies, even if you live next door.

• "Don't just wander around, dropping in on neighbors at odd times, merely because you have nothing else to do or can't bear to be alone." Miss Booth cautions "some who are that restless bother busy people who would like to get things done—or just be alone, doing nothing for a restful bit.

• "If you have no reason to go visiting, except you're at loose ends, try to find something else to do on your own. There's always reading. I did plenty of that—as an only child and as a 'loner' moving all over."

During the holidays—and every day—do you know how to show how friendly you want to be? For Kitten Turmell's free leaflet on friend-making, send your self-addressed stamped envelope. Ask for "HOW DO YOU RATE AS A FRIEND?"

British Groups Head This Way

By CATHY LOWTHER

Another influx of British talent is due as everyone who is anyone in England has just been, is in or is going to North America.

The Beatles are arranging a third tour, the Rolling Stones a second. New groups fresh on North American charts, such as the Nashville Teens and the Zombies, will make it for the first time.

Dusty Springfield and the Searchers will return and Brian Epstein is sending some of his acts, once attached to Beatle tours, out on their own, notably Tommy Quickly, the Rebel Rousers and Sound Incorporated.

On Dec. 14 the Dave Clark Five played the last rock 'n' roll concert to be allowed in Cleveland. Beat groups have been legally banned there because of the "Beatle riots" in that city.

Hit singles here: I Feel Fine—She's a Woman by the Beatles; again in first place, followed by Sha La La, Manfred Mann; Any Way You Want It, Dave Clark Five; Mr. Lonely, Bobby Vinton; Love Potion No. 9, the Searchers; Come See About Me, the Supremes; Shaggy Dog, Mickey Lee Lane; and Pink Dailynoe, the Newbeats.

Hit LPs: Beatles '65 is on top and following are Early Ray Orbison, Elvis' Roustabout, the Kingmen Vol. 2, Trini Lopez Live at Basin Street and the Rolling Stones' 12 by Five. What's ahead? A favorite is Downtown by Petula Clark. Later! And Merry Christmas, too.

Teen-Age Letters

Be Honest and Sincere

"Dear Kitten Turmell: I have had a few dates with this girl. She is a junior and I am only a sophomore. I don't know how she feels about me but I love her no end. Should I tell her just how I feel? Or should I just play along until I find out how she feels about me? Don't put my real name in print . . . just say this is from 'What to Do'."

Dear "What to Do": Tell her how you feel, next date, but don't over-dramatize it if she indicates she'd prefer to date you on a friendship-basis. Don't "play along"; dating, like friend-making, should be on an honest and sincere basis.

Confidential to Diana: Give your "lost" boy friend time to write or phone you and tell you his new address, before you report him missing. Studies show that most who "vanish" don't want to be found by their ex-girl-friends.

Dear Kitten: My aunt gave me a good-looking sweater but it's too small. It's in a box from a well-known store here. Should I just take it back and exchange it, to save her the bother? "Midge"

Dear Midge: No. Phone your aunt today and explain. Then let her suggest whether you should bring it back to her or take it to the store. It is possible she brought it some time ago, and would have to verify the purchase, or got it elsewhere and just used that box for gift-wrapping because it was attractive or handy.

Q: "What's correct to wear for dinner and evening, for a girl on a cruise ship? 'Alice' "

A: Degree of formality varies with your choice. You may wear a long or short dress, with or without sleeves. Whatever would be suitable for dinner at a country club or a resort hotel is correct. The longer the cruise the "dressier" clothes are apt to be. Evening clothes are not worn on the first or last nights, on evenings when your ship is in port or leaving port in the late afternoon, and on Sundays. But, at least "freshen up" with a change of clothes before dinner.

Confidential to "Side-Liner": Don't expect that a basketball player to pay tall attention to you after the game—he may be too tired for lively date-talk—statistics show the basketball player runs five miles in the average game.

Balcer

Quebec Tory May Defect

OTTAWA (CP)—Leon Balcer said Saturday he may resign his position as Quebec Conservative lieutenant to sit in the Commons as an independent.

He said in a phone interview from his home in Trois-Rivieres, Que., that he is actively considering such a move but first must raise the matter with his constituents.

Mr. Balcer said he will announce his decision before Feb. 15, when the Commons is scheduled to reconvene.

Mr. Balcer, 47-year-old former Conservative transport minister, split openly with Opposition leader John Diefenbaker on the flag issue.

On Dec. 9 Mr. Balcer stunned most other Conservative MPs by inviting the Liberal government to apply closure to end the flag debate.

VOTED FOR CLOSURE

When the government did indeed apply closure last Monday, Mr. Balcer and three other Quebec Conservatives voted for it.

On the flag vote itself, Mr. Balcer led seven other Quebec Conservatives voting for the flag while Mr. Diefenbaker and 72 other Conservatives voted against it.

Blizzard Crash Kills Airmen

STEPHENVILLE, Nfld. (UPI)—Five men were killed Saturday when a U.S. Air Force tanker crashed into a small lake near Harmon Field during an early morning blizzard.

The dead were identified as Capt. Robert V. Carlisle of North Hollywood, Calif.; the pilot, Capt. Gary L. Gaffner of St. Petersburg, Fla., the co-pilot, Lt. Michael S. O'Leary of Buffalo, N.Y., the navigator, T. Sgt. James R. Bill of St. Petersburg, Fla., the boom operator; and T. Sgt. Lawrence F. Laine of Lansing, Mich., the flight engineer.

A howling blizzard blowing freshly fallen snow with gusts to 50 miles an hour prevented recovery of the wreck, which Strategic Air Command bomber in muddy water 200 feet from the runway's end.

An air force team of special investigators was expected on the scene to conduct an inquiry into the crash.

The air force said the prop-driven tanker was making a visual landing during the height of the storm which ripped into the province late Friday. It apparently did not explode when it skipped off the runway and plunged into the ice-covered lake.

"It just went right out of sight," said a U.S. Air Force spokesman. "Firemen who got to the waters edge a few minutes after the crash couldn't find a thing."

Notre Dame 2, Goldfarb 0

NEW YORK (AP)—20th Century-Fox has failed in its court struggle to bring its $46,000,000 comedy, John Goldfarb, Please Come Home, to movie screens by Christmas Day.

Appellate Judge Bernard Boland of the State Supreme Court refused to stay a temporary injunction obtained by Notre Dame University forbidding distribution and showing of the film.

The university obtained the injunction two days ago. It objected to scenes showing Notre Dame football players drinking, feasting and watching belly dancers in an Arabian harem.

Hearing by the five-man appellate bench is set for Jan. 5.

A spokesman for 20th Century-Fox said the movie will not be shown in Canada until the New York injunction is removed.

Horsburgh Threatens Suit

CHATHAM, Ont. (UPI)—Rev. Russel Horsburgh, who is appealing convictions on five counts of contributing to juvenile delinquency, has warned he will sue the Park Street United Church board if it doesn't honour a pledge to pay his legal fees.

Mr. Horsburgh, 47, on $2,500 bail pending the appeals, was convicted of encouraging and providing for juveniles to have sexual intercourse in his church. "I hope it will not be necessary to sue and I am still carrying on negotiations in hope that we can reach a satisfactory settlement," he said.

Before his trial, the church board voted 35-32 in favor of paying the minister's legal costs. These have now mounted to $7,200. The board voted 62-20 against the payment Dec. 1, due to what was termed "a serious financial crisis" at the Park Street church.

United Church of Canada moderator Rev. Ernest Marshall Howse said the decision could be appealed from congregation to presbytery and finally to the general assembly which is the church's "supreme court." Meanwhile, Mr. Horsburgh is working on a book about his trial and the issues which led up to it.

Threats Cancel Carols

THE HAGUE (Reuters)—Dutch Justice Minister Ynze Scholten cancelled a prison Christmas carol concert at which a Jewish woman was to sing before a German war criminal who condemned her to the gas chambers.

He made the decision after former Dutch Nazis threatened the woman, Mrs. E. Kolthoff-Grellingen, a 76-year-old singing teacher.

Now She's Welfare Worker

Lady Hunted Heads

KUCHING (UPI)—Princess Fatima Wan Abdul Rahman practised headhunting in her youth.

Now she's a welfare worker in the Malaysian city of Kuching on the island of Borneo in Sarawak.

Twenty-three years ago the Japanese occupied Malaya. Princess Fatima of the royal family of the Dyaks was a mere 15 at the time but she was a guerrilla fighter against the Japanese.

The Dyaks had been ardent headhunters for centuries and practised extensively on Japanese invaders.

The princess—enthroned in the jungles of Borneo with a group of Dyak guerrillas—recently related how she won initiation as a headhunter.

She said one night her group of guerrillas stumbled upon 24 Japanese soldiers struggling in a river rapids in dugout canoes. The Dyak band assaulted the Japanese. After the Japanese soldiers were bound, the leader of the Dyaks asked the princess to "wet her hands."

In Dyak—"wetting one's hands" means taking the heads of one's enemies.

The princess said she took her parang—a razor-like Dyak knife—and beheaded four Japanese.

Princess Fatima said it was necessary for her to perform the act and added: "Of course, I did it swiftly. I did not want to torture them."

If Indonesian President Sukarno attacks Malaysia, this formidable woman will take to the jungles again to defend her land.

But the practice of headhunting among the Dyaks has been replaced by more constructive endeavors, although Princess Fatima says there is always some vendetta being settled in the traditional Dyak fashion.

The princess, twice married, is the mother of 15 children. She is married to a member of the Malaysian parliament.

In 1961, Fatima and some other ladies organized the Kuching Women's Home Welfare Association. The organization cares for indigent people, operates kindergartens and teaches basic housekeeping to Malaysian women.

The princess also is active with the girl scouts.

Her work day begins at eight each morning, when she paddles a small sampan across the Sarawak River to the Red Cross office in Kuching.

The princess organizes handicrafts and the housekeeping classes.

She says Malaysia "is a democratic country and everybody should at least try to do something."

The princess says her prime ambition when she grows old is to write a book. She said she has "a good story to tell."

Morale Booster

After hearing that lonely GIs have been complaining about the shortage of pin-up pictures, pretty Pat Blair of the TV show Daniel Boone rushed down to a photo studio to make her contribution to military morale.

Japanese May Help Centennial Project

Approval of six centennial projects in Alberta and Saskatchewan has been announced by the centennial commission.

Largest project of the six was a Japanese garden in Lethbridge which qualified for grants of $30,000 each from the Alberta and federal governments. This $305,000 project will also get a $37,000 federal winter works grant, and may receive grants from the Japanese government.

Other projects approved, with combined federal and provincial grants in order:

Alberta: Bowmans, senior citizens' lounge, $28,000; $18,000; Williams, sports field and race track, $3,100, $2,825; Bigstone, sports field and campsite park, $4,528, $2,028.

Saskatchewan: Brocksmehl, community hall, $12,000; $2,207.57; Rodgers, monument to pioneers, $1,665, $1,387.50.

Alberta

Ald. Roy Deyell succeeded in ending a three-hour talkathon by two colleagues and enabled Calgary council to approve construction of a $6,300,000 bridge project in the western part of the city.

The move to end the filibuster, however, was not early enough to enable council to deal with any other business and a special session is scheduled.

As the meeting started, Ald. Ernie Stary warned he would debate all afternoon and into the night to oppose the west crossing. He and Ald. Roy Farran worked in shifts, putting questions to city department officials.

Ald. Deyell's motion was based on a city bylaw which stated that in cases of a filibuster, the council should follow House of Commons procedure. He moved a motion to put the question on the original motion which ended debate.

"It was closure," he said after the meeting.

Approval for two winter works programs has been given in Edmonton.

First comes a sewage system survey and second a ditching and grading program. The survey is expected to be completed by the end of December, but the ditching and grading won't be finished until summer.

Construction will start early in 1965 on a $500,000 500-seat arts centre in Lethbridge.

Funds will be provided from winter works credits and under the federal Municipal Loan and Development Act.

A change in the Telephone Act to allow wiretapping by specified agencies may be introduced during the next session of the Alberta legislature.

Alberta Minister of Telephones Raymond Reinson says his department is studying an amendment to the Act.

There is moral justification for wiretapping if it helps to prevent a more immoral act, such as narcotics trafficking or prostitution, from being perpetrated, Reinson said.

The Canadian Wheat Board plans to ask the United States to stop slapping wheat prices, W. C. McNamara, president of the board has told the Farmer's Union of Alberta.

The United States recently sold its surplus durum wheat abroad at cut-rate prices, which has hurt the world market for Canadian durum, said Mr. McNamara.

Saskatchewan

For more than half a century the village of Pense has suffered from a shortage of water.

Now, more than 100 homes and businesses can get all they want at the turn of a tap.

The village's $205,000 water and sewer utility is finally operating after years of friction between the progressive element and the die-hards who figured a bucket and a pump were good enough.

The Saskatchewan Wheat Pool is to build a farm service centre in Weyburn.

This is the second centre for the district announced within two weeks.

The two developments will cost approximately $400,000.

Manitoba

After a number of meetings with teachers' representatives the Winnipeg school board has rejected demands from 2,050 teachers for salary increases totalling $625,000 in next year's contract.

The board's policy, said finance chairman Andrew Robertson, is to maintain the status quo so far as teachers' salaries are concerned.

Ald. Crawford of Winnipeg says he doesn't see any escape from increased taxation next year.

He justified Winnipeg's withdrawal from the Manitoba Urban Association by saying it would "lead to more effective representation" when the city approached other governmental bodies.

Death Camp Trial

Horrors Still Unfold After Full Year

FRANKFURT (AP)—The horrors of Auschwitz have been unfolding before a West German court for a year now.

The judges and jury have at least another month to go, with no verdict expected before March.

Of the 21 defendants on trial, 14 were free on bail when the sessions began Dec. 20, 1963. Of these, nine have been imprisoned on the basis of incriminating evidence given in the courtroom.

The other five never knew when testimony will imprison them, too.

More than 250 witnesses have testified about deliberate savagery at the German extermination centre in Poland.

Millions Died

Documentary evidence shows that during its five years of operation, untold millions perished in Auschwitz—Nazi Germany's biggest and smoothest functioning death factory. They were victims of mass gassings, burnings, hangings, shootings, torture, starvation, disease and overwork as slave laborers.

The majority were civilians—Jews, Slavs and Gypsies considered undeserving of life in the Third Reich.

But they also included Canadian, American, British, French and Russian prisoners of war, forced at pistol point to shed their uniforms minutes before entering the gas chambers.

Presiding Judge Hans Hofmeyer weeps unashamedly on hearing witnesses tell such details as this:

Defendant Wilhelm Boger tore babies from their mothers' arms and tossed them alive onto gasoline-sprayed piles of burning bodies "where they rolled around like little fire balls."

Defendant Peter Broad shot raven-haired, teen-age Jewish girls after sexually molesting them.

"Doctor" Josef Klehr, a day laborer before becoming an elite SS (elite guard) medical aide, forced young boys to hold their struggling fathers while the defendant stabbed their elders' hearts with a hypodermic needle containing lethal carbolic acid.

Judge Hofmeyer will be joined in his deliberations by two assistant judges and four jury members.

Shakes Fist

Most of the trial spectators are teen-age students. They cried out "no, no," while Boger boasted about the effectiveness of the "beating machine" he developed at Auschwitz.

The defendant turned toward the young people, shook his fist and screamed:

"If it were used on you, there'd be a lot less juvenile delinquency."

Detailed Reports

Coverage of the trial by Frankfurt newspapers has been highly detailed. The appearance of trial stories in the rest of the German press depends largely on their dramatic content.

But even this seems too much for many Germans. Letters to the editors frequently contain reader demands that the past be forgotten. Many also write that the defendants were soldiers who carried out orders.

Erwin Schuele, head of West Germany's central agency for tracking down war criminals, has been especially interested in testimony from former SS men who got themselves transferred from Auschwitz so they wouldn't have to participate in inhuman crimes there.

A number of such cases have now been documented before the court.

"It now has been shown that it was possible to get a transfer from Auschwitz, that it was not necessary to carry out criminal orders," Schuele says.

Members Plan Renovation Of Stolen Church

WINDERMERE, B.C. (CP)—The old wooden pews of the Stolen Church will be decorated with ribbons and fir boughs Christmas Day and the altar will glow with candles. A fir tree, cut from the frosty forests nearby, will stand in one corner.

It will be the last Christmas before a major revision for St. Peter's Anglican Church, placed on a hillside more than 60 years ago by a man who stole it for his devout wife.

MOVED 115 MILES The tiny wooden church, nestled in the snow-covered western foothills of the Rockies, still looks much the same as it did when it was moved 115 miles through the wilderness by rail, wagon train and barge.

The congregation of some 25 families is trying to raise $700 to give St. Peter's its first major renovation since it was stolen in 1898.

It still will be the same church that Rufus Klinton absconded with, says Rev. G. M. Rumsby.

In 1890 St. Peter's stood in the town of Donald, then a railway divisional point, more than 100 miles north of here along the Canadian Pacific mainline.

PROUD COUPLE Rufus and Celina Klinton were proud of their church. They were married in it, their two sons were christened there and their first child was buried from it.

Rufus, a businessman, was a warden of St. Peter's. Celina was a devout church worker.

PIECE BY PIECE In 1937 the railway announced that division headquarters would be moved to Revelstoke. One day he returned to Donald and began dismantling St. Peter's without permission from church elders or Anglican authorities in New Westminster, B.C.

He moved the entire church, piece by piece, to Windermere via railway car, horse-drawn wagons and barge down the Columbia River and across a portion of Lake Windermere.

Two Rooms Guttled

Cigarette Blamed For Colwood Blaze

Two rooms of a Colwood cottage were gutted by fire early Friday morning but no one was injured.

Firemen attributed cause of the blaze in a one bedroom cottage at 3018 Pickford to a cigarette on a chesterfield. They said they attended a similar fire there last Aug. 16, when a rocking chair burned.

Occupants of the cottage owned by Robert C. Bennett of Duncan were Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Hamilton. Mrs. Hamilton apparently was out of town at the time.

Firemen said the cottage was already ablaze when they were called out at 4:50 a.m. Mr. Bennett's mother-in-law, Mrs. J. H. Nicol, 910 Brock, said the cottage was covered by insurance but that its furnishings were not insured.

SOON PAID FOR

"He has owned it for three or four years... another 13 months and he would have had the house paid for," said Mrs. Nicol.

She said Mr. Hamilton moved into an auto court near Colwood Corner after the fire.

Island Shoppers Race Deadline

Snow Helps Some Stores

Special to the Colonist

Heavy snow Saturday in the four major upper Vancouver Island centres seemed to hurt business in only one, and even helped trade a little in another.

Merchants in Duncan weren't able to report the people were spending record amounts of money but said plenty of buyers were around.

COMMON PRACTICE

An Eaton's official said he thought Cowichan Valley residents had decided to brave the two feet of snow to shop in Duncan rather than follow the common practice of buying Christmas presents in Nanaimo or Victoria.

'QUITE BUSY'

Food stores in all areas reported business was at least average because, as one spokesman put it, "people have to eat."

Store owners in both the Alberni and Comox valleys said they were "quite busy" despite around eight inches of snow in the Alberni and more than two feet in Courtenay, Comox and Cumberland.

But some merchants in Na-naimo estimated losses in the thousands of dollars if heavy snow continues, turns to slush or freezes.

Hardest hit in Nanaimo were clothing stores and shops where last-minute Christmas goods are bought.

Few people ventured downtown because of slippery roads.

Some businessmen said they will be short of space for incoming spring stock if Christmas goods are not sold.

Elsewhere on the Island, the pressing Christmas deadline overcame most shoppers' dread of the weather.

OUT REGARDLESS

Nanaimo's weather also slowed Salvation Army collections in downtown kettles. The Christmas cheer fund has more than $3,000 and a goal of $5,000, and the kettles will be out Monday through Thursday regardless of the weather.

Schools, churches, service clubs, other organizations, RCMP members and some businesses have donated enough food for more than 300 food hampers for needy Nanaimo families. Another 100 hampers are expected before delivery by the Salvation Army.

Copter Solves Gift Problem

COMOX—A helicopter from 121 Search and Rescue flight at RCAF Station Comox will solve the Christmas transportation problem of the people of Holberg, who adopted children of an Alert Bay school as a Christmas project.

The copter, complete with a Santa, will fly to Holberg from Comox Boxing Day to pick up the gifts for the 72 children of St.

Michael's residential school at Alert Bay.

The gifts are the result of a campaign in Holberg, whose people collected sufficient cash to fulfill every request from the Indian children. The requests ranged from bobby pins to transistor radios.

The copter will then land near the Alert Bay school where Santa will present the 72 gifts.

Nuclear Shield for Asians Top Policy Problem for U.S.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. policy-makers soon must face up to the question of whether the United States should offer some non-nuclear countries—namely India and Japan—scientific protective guarantees against China's developing nuclear power.

The problem, officials say, is primarily one for President Johnson's committee on non-proliferation of nuclear weapons, headed by Roswell Gilpatric, former deputy defence secretary.

ASSURANCES GIVEN

The Johnson administration already has given assurances both public and private to the governments in New Delhi and Tokyo; the question now is whether some more permanent kind of nuclear shield should be provided.

The problem of how to provide assurances to India and Japan was posed immediately after the Chinese tested their first A-bomb last October.

The initial move was to give assurances through diplomatic channels and to make an explicit public statement. The statement was contained in a speech which Johnson gave in the latter part of October.

"Nations that do not seek nuclear weapons," the president said, "can be sure that if they need our strong support against some threat of nuclear blackmail, then they will have it."

Such a presidential declaration, while a firm statement of policy, does not have the permanent binding effect of a formal treaty. But the negotiation and drafting of the treaty brings up a variety of complicated problems, including the extent of defence commitments, their acceptability to foreign governments and their acceptability to the U.S. Senate.

Lighting Entries Reduced

Jaycees have received only 23 entries for the lighting contest, eight less than last year.

Judging of the four categories, house, door, group of houses and message will be carried out Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and winners will be announced Christmas Eve.

The list of entries was not available Saturday.

There are prizes for first, second and third place in the house, door and message categories, and for first-year entries.

A special award will be made for the group winners and there are prizes for the photo contest winners.

Light and Sight

"Let me take it to the light," you often say when you want to see something more clearly. Whether you wish to read a telephone book, thread a needle or buy a piece of cloth; good clear light helps you to see it in its true detail and colour. Adequate illumination is one of the first requisites of good seeing. Normal eyes need it, and suffer ill effects without it. But nearsighted eyes demand an abnormal amount of light, to give sharpness to their vision. Proper lighting can do much to preserve your vision, but it is only one factor. Your eyes deserve the most careful and regular checkups. Have your eyes examined regularly and you will be rewarded with the greatest gift of nature—good vision.

Has CPR Gained 'Control' Of Mac-Powell?

VANCOUVER (CP)—The CPR may have gained five per cent control of MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. with a recent purchase of 750,000 shares worth $26,000,000 to $27,000,000.

A Vancouver newspaper says shares were purchased with money realized in the recent sale of timber rights along the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway to Mac-Powell and Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd.

The purchase brought CPR holdings in Mac-Powell to 1,020,500 shares, about 1/20 of the company's 20,846,255 shares outstanding.

SHARE TRANSFERS

The report says the purchase was made through transfer of shares from a number of holders. It adds the CPR may be interested in accumulating more shares and still holds timberland in the southern Island.

The newspaper says a Mac-Powell was senior partner in the timber rights deal, which was completed last month, and put up an estimated two-thirds of the $56,000,000, or about $36,000,000.

Army Chiefs Purge Viet Nam Council

SAIGON (AP)—South Viet Nam's powerful high national council was dissolved Saturday in a swift purge carried out by leaders of the Vietnamese armed forces. Many political figures were arrested.

The leaders of the purge did not remove either the chief of state or the prime minister. Nor is the cabinet affected.

South Viet Nam's leading Buddhist layman, Mai Thuy, was among those arrested.

Cubans Narcotic Agents Grab Kingpin

MIAMI (AP)—Two expensively-dressed Cubans were handcuffed Saturday as they stepped from a plane here and United States federal narcotics agents think they now have the kingpin in one of the largest narcotic rings in the U.S.

Narcotics agents, who secretly flew with the pair from Honduras, took the two men into custody. With the arrests, nine of the 11 accused of being part of the ring are in custody.

The men arrested were Alberto Maurice, 36, and Vincente Casas, 44.

U.S. narcotics officers said the ring was one of the largest narcotics operations seen in the U.S. in years. He said the ring was conducting a multi-million-dollar business in New York and westward as far as Chicago and Cleveland.

Reliable sources said the plane was shot down by Russian-made MIG fighters of the United Arab Republic Air Force.

The Behlra governorate police, however, denied the plane was shot down, saying it was forced down. There was no explanation.

The incident occurred over the town of Rosetta, near Alexandria. The police said the plane belonged to the Esso Oil Company of Aden.

Everyone knows it's been cold in Victoria recently. Even fish in that state have grown fat. To keep warm—or so the fishermen of Victoria say—fishermen are displaying 15-pound mackerel from their boats.

Elks and Lions in the Cowichan Valley called off Christmas parties while B.C. Telephone, B.C. Hydro and Macmillan, Blodell and Powell River cancelled annual dances.

Some church services today were cancelled in outlying parts of the valley.

City work crews struggled early Saturday morning to clear snow from the roadsides to the arena parking lot so snow removal equipment could operate more efficiently.

Police urged motorists to take the bus but Nanaimo Transit buses were 15 to 40 minutes behind schedule.

Some Nanaimo streets will be closed from 1:30 to 9 p.m. for sleigh riding—Sebastian from Halliburton to the city boundary, Franklin from Kennedy to Priddy, Princess Royal from Esplanade to Chestnut, Blythe as far as Townsville, and Eberts from Millstone to Arbutus.

B.C. Hydro crews worked all day repairing line breaks caused when snow-laden trees fell over lines. The Hammond Bay area was the worst affected as power went out twice.

Snow gives Duncan shopping plaza deceptive fairyland look

The worst possible weather forecast was issued Saturday night for the snow-shrouded sections of Vancouver Island and the rest of the B.C. coast—rain, some of freezing and some just plain wet.

Road conditions, already treacherous, were expected to become nigh-impossible as predicted showers of rain or wet snow today and Monday follow two days during which:

Victoria escaped with little snow which is likely to vanish in weekend rain.

Three of the other four major population centres on Vancouver Island were hit by about two feet of snow which cancelled many activities, clogged roads and choked off power. (See also Page 44).

Airline flights were cancelled, ferries were delayed, bus schedules were disrupted and main roads on the Island were kept open, with few accidents but hundreds of traffic tieups.

There was so much snow on Nanaimo Lakes Road that skiing at Green Mountain was stopped because cars could not get through.

Vancouver recorded its worst traffic mix-ups in years.

Death totals blamed on the weather totalled three in B.C., seven in Washington state and 20 along the U.S. west coast.

The vagaries of storms charging down from the Gulf of Alaska gave Victoria and most of Vancouver Island's west coast a breather Saturday, and are expected to bring light rain and above-freezing temperatures in the next two days.

Flights Cancelled

Snow crept as far south as Patricia Bay, where Air Canada cancelled all scheduled flights until today. Runways were cleared last night.

Ferries to and from Swartz Bay were reported having no problems but Vancouver Island Coach Lines buses to other Island points were running late.

One bus due in Victoria from Nanaimo at 5:30 p.m. did not arrive until after 7:30. The driver was not able to reach Duncan until 6 p.m.

RCMP called the Malahat "treacherous sport" but said it and all main Island roads were open, although snow tires or chains were needed—or both.

The provincial highways department appealed to motorists to stay off the highways in all snow-plugged areas unless their cars have chains or good snow tires.

RCMP in the Cowichan Valley turned back motorists going to Victoria Saturday morning until the highway was ready for use.

The Cowichan Valley and the Nanaimo district seemed to be the hardest hit on Vancouver Island.

In the valley, Duncan, Shaliman Lake and Mill Bay had about 20 inches of snow, Ladysmith 24 inches and Lake Cowichan 26. Chemainus "escaped" with 15 inches.

Nuclear Shield for Asians Top Policy Problem for U.S.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. policy-makers soon must face up to the question of whether the United States should offer some non-nuclear countries—namely India and Japan—scientific protective guarantees against China's developing nuclear power.

The problem, officials say, is primarily one for President Johnson's committee on non-proliferation of nuclear weapons, headed by Roswell Gilpatric, former deputy defence secretary.

A major objective of any guarantee system would be to make it unnecessary for India, Japan or any other country which came under the U.S. nuclear umbrella to build its own nuclear power.

The Johnson administration already has given assurances both public and private to the governments in New Delhi and Tokyo; the question now is whether some more permanent kind of nuclear shield should be provided.

The problem of how to provide assurances to India and Japan was posed immediately after the Chinese tested their first A-bomb last October.

The initial move was to give assurances through diplomatic channels and to make an explicit public statement. The statement was contained in a speech which Johnson gave in the latter part of October.

"Nations that do not seek national nuclear weapons," the president said, "can be sure that if they need our strong support against some threat of nuclear blackmail, then they will have it."

Such a presidential declaration, while a firm statement of policy, does not have the permanent binding effect of a formal treaty. But the negotiation and drafting of the treaty brings up a variety of complicated problems, including the extent of defence commitments, their acceptability to foreign governments and their acceptability to the U.S. Senate.

The Telegram quotes Minaudo saying: "Whether I paid claims his deportation to Italy from Canada last March was a government attempt to cover up a payoff he made to 'somebody powerful enough to push the immigration department around.'"

The report from Custonaci, northwest Sicily, where Minaudo lives, says the former resident of Windsor, Ont., Detroit and Cuba declined to name names and reveal the amount he says he paid because he still hopes to return to Canada.

Minaudo is quoted as saying he wrote External Affairs Minister Paul Martin several months ago about re-entering Canada but never received a reply.

The alleged payoff took place in 1960.

Minaudo is quoted as saying he began to turn to slush Saturday afternoon as temperatures rose above freezing for the first time in four days. Officials said road conditions were "terrible."

No Sign of Heart Trouble

Johnson Fit for Four Years

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson approaches his inauguration in excellent health and with a good chance of weathering the next four strenuous and demanding years, says one of his personal physicians.

"There is no health reason why he should not continue an active, vigorous life for many years," Dr. James W. Cain said in an exclusive weekend telephone interview.

Cain, with the Mayo Clinic of Rochester, Minn., added that he has examined Johnson in the White House within the last two weeks.

The 56-year-old president not only shows no adverse effects from the recent, rigorous political campaign, but also "I think he's in better health than I've seen him in years," Cain said.

The campaign ended with Johnson's election Nov. 3 for a four-year term. He will be inaugurated as president for the new period next month.

Cain is one of several physicians who periodically see the president, in addition to Rear Admiral George C. Burkley, personal physician to Johnson who has the president under daily observation.

Asked especially about the health outlook for Johnson during the next four years, Cain said of the man who suffered a severe heart attack in 1955: "I see no reason why he should not stand it (the job) very well. His job is very demanding—physically and mentally—but I see no reason why it should be any more dangerous (to health) in his case than that of anyone else, because his health is excellent."

"His heart is doing very, very well. All signs of the old heart attack are gone. If you did not know he had that old attack, seeing him now and examining him now would give you no... (clue)... that he had had a previous heart attack."

Cain said he was not called to the White house to make the recent examination—but did so while he and his wife were visiting Washington.

He said he found the president's blood pressure, urinalysis, various blood tests and tests for his tolerance to exercise all normal.

He said the president now weighs around 200 pounds but doctors would like him to shave off about 10 pounds.

City work crews struggled early Saturday morning to clear snow from the roadsides to the arena parking lot so snow removal equipment could operate more efficiently.

Police urged motorists to take the bus but Nanaimo Transit buses were 15 to 40 minutes behind schedule.

Some Nanaimo streets will be closed from 1:30 to 9 p.m. for sleigh riding—Sebastian from Halliburton to the city boundary, Franklin from Kennedy to Priddy, Princess Royal from Esplanade to Chestnut, Blythe as far as Townsville, and Eberts from Millstone to Arbutus.

B.C. Hydro crews worked all day repairing line breaks caused when snow-laden trees fell over lines. The Hammond Bay area was the worst affected as power went out twice.

Mouse Nest Blamed In 20 Deaths

FOUNTAIN TOWN, Ind. (CP)—A mouse nest could have caused the fire that destroyed a 60-year-old nursing home, killing 20 elderly patients, a state fire inspector said Saturday.

Howard Boegholtz, deputy state fire marshal, said the furry nest could have been above an oil furnace where he believed the blaze started. Heat from the furnace could have ignited the nest.

The pre-dawn blaze spread through the two-story, frame McGraw Nursing Home so quickly Friday that most of the victims were trapped in bed.

SIX KILLED

Meanwhile, a raging house fire broke out in the northeast Detroit suburb of Warren early Saturday killing six children and critically burning their mother. Three other children escaped.

Dead are Martha Ann Cox, 10; Mary Jo, 8; Charles, 11; Diane, 9; John, 14, and Jimmy, 3.

Their mother, Mrs. Marie Cox, 35, is listed in serious condition in Holy Cross Hospital.

At Marked Tree, Ark., five children, ranging in age from seven to 16, died Saturday when fire destroyed a rural frame home.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwan D. Lafferty escaped with seven other children, four of them under five years of age.

Police identified the victims as Raymond Lafferty, 16; Laird, 10; Darrin, 9; all boys, and Stacey, 7, and Dorren, 8.

German Aid to Africa

Millions Wasted

BONN (AP)—With millions of marks wasted, West Germany is taking a hard look at its help to new countries in Africa. It plans to concentrate on major development projects.

Walter Scheel, head of the economic development ministry, says the West German government will emphasize economic aspects of development plans and de-emphasize political aspects.

Foreign ministry officials privately admit West Germany frequently has approved financial aid for African states in fear that Communist-ruled East Germany might come up with similar aid, tempting the receiving country to recognize the East Berlin government.

OUTRIGHT GIFTS Since 1960, when the West Germans started to tackle the development aid problem on a big scale, the government has earmarked or actually shelled out a total of 12,000,000,000 marks ($3,000,000,000).

A tenth of this went to Africa or is about to be handed to the Africans in the form of outright money gifts or long-term loans at low interest.

German money has been scattered among 383 projects in 30 African states.

CRITICIZE QUANTITY Too little for too many projects, critics of West Germany's development aid to Africa are saying.

A spokesman for Scheel's ministry said a recent roundup by the magazine Der Spiegel correctly reflected the situation.

The roundup said German financial aid to Africa was frequently invested in nonsense projects. Spiegel found $15,000,000 of Germany's $25,000,000 aid to Nigeria was squandered for widening a bridge in Lagos to six lanes from four.

Such misuse of German marks in Africa show the government has had poor advice on how to invest its development aid, said Spiegel.

How Can You Quit Doing Nothing?

By JIM MURRAY

Once upon a time there was this nice man. His name was Ford Frick and he was president of the National League which was a nice job because all he had to do was what Branch Rickey told him.

He changed his socks every day. He never kicked any sleeping dogs and he never, never said "No" to Mr. Rickey. Or anyone else.

WICKED MAN

So, they made him czar of all baseball and one of the committee said, "Now, look. We used to have this terrible old man who was czar of all baseball and he wouldn't let anybody do a single thing they wanted to. You couldn't move franchises or go to the race track or hide players from the draft. Now, you don't want to be a wicked old czar like that, do you?"

Just in case he answered "Yes," they put in a law that no action taken by a vote of the club owners could be construed as "detrimental to baseball," not even if they voted to go Communist.

GOT CONFUSING

"Then we had this other czar who was a politician and governor of Kentucky and one thing and another. He wouldn't let Clint Murchison in the game because he had an interest in a race track, and he protected the league from this kind of iniquity by letting Del Webb, who owned gambling casinos in Las Vegas, own the best club in the game. So we taught up his contract and he became governor of Kentucky and went to the race track on Derby day every year and got very confusing. You don't want to be confusing, do you?"

So, just in case he got confusing, they tied him in a closet and put a gag in his mouth and said, "There! Now, we have a czar who IS a czar!"

And they moved franchises and expanded the leagues and changed laws and when they got through, somebody said "Don't you think we ought to tell the czar?" Everybody said "Why wake him up just for THAT?"

And, anyway, Walter O'Malley was on the phone to him every day, telling him what ties to wear.

And one day the czar said, "look, can't I do ANYTHING around here?" and his subjects said "sure! you can call off any world series game where the field is wet enough. Just check with Walter O'Malley first." And he said, "I don't mean THAT! Anybody knows enough to come in out of the rain. I want to do something about baseball!"

This puzzled them. "What do you want to do?" they asked suspiciously. "I want to put an asterisk after Roger Maris' name!" he screamed. "After all, Babe Ruth was a friend of mine!"

And one owner whispered to another, "who is Roger Maris?" and another owner said, "never mind that, WHO is Babe Ruth?" And they said, "O.K., Ford. Go ahead and put an asterisk after Roger Maris' name." And they said, "shucks, let him have a little fun!"

IN CLOSET

And CBS bought the Yankees and Milwaukee wanted to move to Atlanta, and they found out it was not only immoral, it was also illegal. And someone said, "where was the commissioner on this?" And the answer came back: "where else? Tied in a closet!"

So finally, the czar of all baseball said, "look, this is silly. What is the sense of being a czar of something they are systematically destroying beneath you? If you want a czar, why doesn't O'Malley buy a tape recorder? All I get to sign is Christmas cards."

BACK IN THERE

"Well," they said, "you got to put an asterisk after Roger what's-his-name's record, didn't you? And you got to call off five games in the 1962 world series. Get back in the closet. What do you think we pay you $75,000 a year for?"

And the czar said, "I think I'll quit." At first baseball wondered how you could quit doing nothing, but someone said, "look, things are a mess. Milwaukee got caught sneaking out the fire escape and now they have to spend another year with a town they tried to murder in its sleep and television owns the American League, and maybe we should really have a czar." And someone said, "What's the matter with the one we got—Walter O'Malley?"

THAT'S ANARCHY

But they finally said, "O.K. we will remove the restriction that a czar can't overrule the owners and we will forbid the owners to sue the czar over a ruling." "But that's anarchy!" someone said. "Bolshevism!" cried another.

Hello, Walter

Big Game In Boston

BOSTON (AP)—The whole season will be wrapped up in one game for two teams today when Buffalo Bills and Boston Patriots meet for the championship of the Eastern Division in the American Football League. (No TV here.)

The winner will oppose the Western champion San Diego Chargers for the league title Dec. 26.

The Patriots have been picked as 2½ point favorites by the odds-makers, primarily because the game will be at Boston's Fenway Park and because the Patriots defeated the Bills 36-28 in their Nov. 15 meeting.

with Alec Merriman

Pacific Trollers' Association has come up with a plan for Gulf of Georgia salmon fishing which could pave the way for the banning of all inside waters to commercial fishing, leaving the area as a vast sports salmon fishing playground.

We feel sure that Pacific Trollers' doesn't mean to see its plan for an inside and outside troll licence system work that way, but it would be a simple adaptation to the plan to issue inside troll licences to the estimated less than 150 fishermen who now earn their full living from area 13 to 20 waters, and then not re-issue licences as these fishermen retire or drop out of the fishing business.

By a process of elimination, members of the inside commercial fleet would get fewer and fewer and the waters from Campbell River to Sooke would fulfil their ultimate destiny as a multi-million-dollar sports fishing area.

This area now provides 95.3 per cent of British Columbia's salmon sports catch, but only 15.7 per cent of the province's total sports and commercial catch. In the overall picture it wouldn't be a big loss to the commercial fishing industry, but it would be a terrific impetus to the sports fishing industry.

Pacific Trollers' Association, representing a bulk of west coast trollers, plumps heavily for a system of licence restriction as the only solution to the problems of the federal fishing department.

The Pacific Trollers' plan is aimed at the estimated 2,000 moonlighters (people who hold down other jobs but take out commercial $1 fishing licences to supplement their incomes, to beat the sports fishing limits and/or obtain sales tax concessions) and the dual fishermen (gillnetters who partake of east coast troll fishery prior to the start of the gillnet season and trollers who fish this area during its peak production and then move to other areas.)

These are the groups who will gain by the proposed changes (3½-month closure of commercial trolling time and reduction to four salmon of the sports catch limit) in that they will place a more concentrated effort on the fish present.

That is the opinion of Pacific Trollers' president Dick Williams of Victoria.

The Pacific Trollers' Association suggests: "That an inside commercial troll licence be available for areas 13 to 20 (Campbell River to Port Renfrew) inclusive, wherein a fisherman would troll for salmon in those areas for that current year, with no closed periods other than necessary to protect specific runs of salmon, such licence would include the covenant that no other salmon fishing licence could be obtained in that year."

All licences would be issued with the provision that renewal of such licence in 1966 and thereafter be subject to the applicants proving that they made at least 60 per cent of the previous year's earnings from fishing.

"We are confident that such a licence would weed out the moonlight fishery in one year and would stop other opportunists in the fishing industry from destroying the established inside troll fishery. We feel such a licence for the inside trollers will give some 150 fishermen and their families the opportunity to continue their chosen way of life at a better existent level than in the past," says a Trollers' brief.

The proposals are aimed at helping the about-150 bona fide fishermen who have retired from the rigorous areas of the fishing industry and the residents of the Gulf area who are dependent on trolling for their livelihood.

By simply not issuing new licences and waiting until these fishermen retire one by one, the Gulf of Georgia could become a sports fishing area, with little hardship to anyone.

Most frightening is the warning of over-exploitation following the proposed 5½-month winter closure.

The Pacific Trollers warn that with prospects of fat catches after a winter closure, the west coast troll fleet, troll equipped gillnetters and hundreds of moonlighters will concentrate on Gulf of Georgia waters as soon as they re-open. They would remain in the Gulf for longer than usual, as long as good fishing continues.

The Gulf fleet would jump to more than 450 boats from 50 to 100 boats until the depletion of the blueback industry. The Pacific Trollers point out that even at last year's fleet size 40 per cent of the blueback harvest was taken during the first two weeks of July, before other fisheries were in full swing and while most of the fleet concentrated on the Gulf of Georgia.

The new proposals of Pacific Trollers would stop this early over-exploitation, at a loss to the west coast trollers themselves.

Saanich Inlet Boatmen's Association members indicate they would be more understanding to the proposed sports catch limit cut, if they could get assurance that all salmon and herring net fishing be stopped in the Gulf of Georgia.

Rhyme Conquers Rebels

Utah Wins Indoor Contest

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Ron Coleman, a speedy halfback with more moves than a chess master, led explosive Utah through West Virginia's porous defences for a 34-6 victory Saturday in college football's first indoor bowl game, the sixth annual Liberty Bowl inside spacious Convention Hall.

A crowd of 6,050 watched the nationally televised game in a comfortable 60° degree atmosphere. The temperature outside the oceanfront auditorium was 31.

Utah's heralded defence throttled West Virginia quarterback Allen McCune and rarely permitted the Southern Conference champs to mount an attack.

One of the men on that tough Utah defence was Rudy Reschke, a product of Vancouver junior football and a probable future linebacker for British Columbia Lions.

HOUSTON (AP) — Jerry Rhyme, Tulsa's pass wizard, ignored a series of hard-knocks

administered by a tough Mississippi defence while passing and running his Hurricanes to a 14-7 victory Saturday over the favored Rebels in the sixth Bluebonnet Bowl football game.

Mississippi was an 11-point favorite.

Drivers Badly Hurt As Roads Jammed

City and highway traffic accidents Saturday left two drivers in hospital with serious injuries.

A two-car collision at 10 a.m. on the corner of Bay and Rose injured retired naval officer David (Dan) Rigg, 3442 Henderson.

DOZEN REPORTED

They were the most serious of a dozen accidents reported as harried police coped with heavy shopper traffic throughout the Victoria area.

Mr. Johnston was the driver and only occupant of a car that collided head-on with another vehicle at 12:45 p.m. He received undetermined back injuries and was admitted to Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Mr. Rigg received serious head injuries and was in fairly good condition later Saturday in St. Joseph's Hospital.

NOT INJURED

Driver of the second car in the Rigg crash was identified by city police as Mrs. Elizabeth Woloschuk, 4079 Tuxedo Drive. She was not injured.

Second driver in the Patricia Bay Highway crash was Robert Johnson, 639 Poul Bay Road, said Central Saanich police. He was not hurt, they added.

KNEE CUTS

In another city accident, Mrs. Pearl Thomson, 644 Fairways, received knee cuts at about 3 a.m. when her car struck a parked vehicle in the 400 block

Dallas. She was detained for treatment at St. Joseph's Hospital.

A woman pedestrian escaped serious injury when brushed by a hit-and-run car at Broad and Yates shortly after 3 p.m.

City police were seeking a vehicle driven by a youth accompanied by two other young men.

University Carollers Out Tonight

University of Victoria carollers will tour homes of the faculty members starting at 8:30 p.m. today.

Singers will gather in the Gordon Head campus parking lot prior to boarding eight buses which will take them on the tour which ends at Government House.

Colwood RCMP Checking Cars

'Tis the season for road checks, say Colwood RCMP.

They conducted their first of the season on the Trans-Canada Highway at Portage Inlet Saturday night.

A check of between 200 and 250 vehicles resulted in no actual charges laid, "but there are some possible charges," said a spokesman.

Spectre of Hunger Brushed Aside for Holiday

By AL ARNASON

The spectre of hunger was temporarily banished Saturday for the neediest of Victoria's needy.

In its monthly flurry of controlled giving, the volunteers and donors of the city's free food stall won a three or four-day victory over their traditional enemy.

For a pre-Christmas crowd, the people lined up to the door of the Elks Club building on Cormorant Street wasn't much bigger than average.

They spoke little. Handouts scar the ego—even when they are given in love and kindness.

Mostly women without husbands—through death or desertion—they try to ignore the lash of pride. It can be done when the alternative is hungry children.

On the other side of the makeshift counter volunteer workers check cards issued by welfare authorities to the food seekers. Without cards, none receive food.

The meat, bread, fruit and canned goods are placed in bags in quantities dictated by the size of the family to be served.

All are on welfare. But it isn't easy to pay rent, food, clothing, heating out of $147.50 a month. That's the welfare payment for a family of four. The free food stall just fills the worst of the gap between the welfare cheques. Welfare workers know which families are the neediest. They issue the stall's cards to these.

Food stall workers are paid off in satisfaction. Like the old city firm that supplies a truck, a driver and a swamper for making pickups from grocery retailers and wholesalers, they prefer anonymity.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Harper are not young. Mr. Harper retired from 24 years' service in the RCMP before his wife took on the food stall a dozen years ago.

Today it is a way of life. It is their burden and their delight and it consumes most of their time. They feel they are well rewarded by the knowledge of the importance of the food to those who receive it.

Even after 12 years, their charity has not cooled. There was no note of condescension in Mr. Harper's voice when he urged the waiting people to crowd into the warmth of the stall building.

They sensed it. It seemed to make it easier.

Boar's Head... Turkey... Caviar

By TED GASKELL

Christmas will be traditional and sophisticated at the hotels this year.

City hotels are serving the traditional turkey, but up at the Grouse Nest Resort, the holiday menu includes such items as turtle soup, pate de foie gras and caviar.

The old time Christmas tradition will be observed for the 16th year at the Olde England Inn where mine host Sam Lane has a full house for his turkey dinner party.

The major domo will wear a tri-corn hat and carry a beehive's staff while the servants, clad in Elizabethan costumes, bring in the boar's head and the yule log.

Featured in the dinner is Prince Philip's game soup, specially imported from Scotland and consisting of partridge, pheasant, grouse and venison.

Dinner starts at 6 p.m. and continues to 10 p.m. with entertainment provided by organist Jack Lanigan, magician Frank Scott and travel slides of Britain, Greece and Yugoslavia by Mr. Lane.

The Empress also goes traditional with costumed carollers parading through the hotel.

First parade is at 9 a.m. Then at 7 p.m. the carollers parade again while the yule log is brought in and burned.

The choristers go to the various dining rooms where 560 guests will dine and hear carols by soloists and the choir.

Guests are from 53 different cities including Portland, Oregon, which is sending 78 guests.

At present the Empress is employing four girls just to handle reservations which must be refused.

Traditional dinners with entertainment are also scheduled for the Dominion and Oak Bay Beach hotels.

The city establishment will have Bert Potentier, organist, playing Christmas Day, Boxing Day and Sunday for the dinner period.

The Oak Bay hotel has Jerry Gosley's Show on Christmas

Day and carollers in the evening, Christmas Eve.

The Grouse Nest plans no entertainment in addition to its regular four-piece orchestra. Here the menu gets special attention.

Filet mignon is the Christmas Day luncheon item while dinner includes caviar, turtle soup, filet of sole, turkey, plum pudding and log cake.

Pate de foie gras is on the New Year menu with salmon steak and filet mignon.

Harbor Light Opening Door

The Salvation Army is staging an "old-fashioned Christmas" at Harbor Light, 516 Yates, Christmas Day.

"Our hospitality is not restricted to alcoholics or people without money," said a spokesman, "but to anyone who has nowhere else to go."

Persons wishing to attend are asked to telephone Major Austin Miller at EV 4-1386.

Santa's Job Not Easy

Most Believed—One Screamed

By GARY OAKES

He's a little fat and looks unkempt but everybody loves him.

And don't knock his job, it's tough work.

I know, I tried it. For almost two hours Saturday afternoon I played Santa Claus in Eaton's Toyland.

Faith Restored

It was a difficult task but a lot of fun and certainly restored my faith in jolly St. Nicholas.

While the real Santa was busy elsewhere I slipped into one of his spare suits, borrowed a beard and a pillow and for a while became the childhood idol.

Most of the kids from 2 to 7 believed in me while the younger ones didn't understand and the older ones scoffed and chuckled at this short fat cat with the beard and funny red costume.

"You're Not..." "You're not Santa Claus," one little darling remarked.

"You're just some guy with a beard."

Then there was the 210-pound wisecracking teenager who wanted to sit on Santa's knee.

Of course a few sweet young things made up for the wise guys.

A Bit Warmer

"Hey Santa baby," a 16-22-31 lovely cooed. "You're kind of cute." It was a little warm under the suit.

"I believe in you, Santa," two fluttering blue eyes said sincerely. Boy, was it getting hot under that suit!

The real Santa would have blushed at the remarks of some of the older women—boy, do they dig Santa Claus!

'Why, Santa?'

But this Santa got in a few of his own licks as well.

"Why, Santa?" gasped the elevator operator after I wished her a very Merry Christmas.

The kids who believe, how-

Santa unbearded

ever, were the most enjoyable.

They have faith but most of them are very sharp. "How are you going to get down the chimney?" one

'Don't You Remember'

little boy demanded. "We got an oil stove."

"Leave your bedroom window open," I fired back.

Outsmarting

"Dad won't let me," he replied, obviously happy that he was outsmarting old Claus.

"We'll work something out," I muttered and moved off to some more appreciating kids.

'Just Told You'

"I just told you 10 minutes ago," he answered. "Did you forget already?"

"No," I replied. "I just wanted to see if you were on your toes."

One of the clerks asked me to stick around the toy department because all the kids were especially good when Santa was there.

Stopped shooting the guns and running the cars," she said.

Most of the believers swore

they had been good but under intensive cross-examination admitted a little badness.

"We don't fight very often," two young brothers pleaded.

Treat Waiting

Many children are deeply in love with Santa and several wanted to hug and kiss him.

"We have some porridge for you at our house," a blond-haired boy beamed.

Some ran up to Santa and threw their arms around him; others approached shyly and then blurted out requests for toys.

Santa's image was tarnished a little when a toddler began screaming just at the sight of him.

Time to Go

But now it was time to go and a perspiring Santa slipped into a phone booth, changed to reporter's clothes and stepped back into reality as mid-manned Gary (Clark) Oakes of the Daily Metropolis.

It was great fun and the mid-manned reporter has warm memories of the Christmas spirit.

'Thank You Grandfather, for the Snow'

By EILEEN LEABOYD

The snow and ice that came this week and made the adult population of Victoria shiver—and glare in frustration at frozen car batteries—has brought untold delight to the children.

But no children have been jappier than some little visitors from San Salvador, Central America.

Last Tuesday at the height of the blizzard, Wendy, Nora and Susan Hempton arrived via the Tswassen Ferry. They came with their mother, Mrs. E. Hempton, and were met by her parents, Dr. and Mrs. S. R. Richardson of Arsena Place, where they will spend the holiday season.

Wendy, Nora and Susan, age three, four and five, had never before in their lives seen snow. The first two were born in Salvador and the third in Venezuela.

There was a blinding wind as the children came off the ferry. It took two hours for Dr. Richardson to drive the visitors safely home. It snowed. It blew. It was hard to see. There was one accident after another on the highway. Cars slid into ditches. Trucks skidded into other trucks.

It was a nightmare drive for Dr. Richardson.

It was sheer heaven for the little Hemptons.

The children who go to Spanish schools, were three weeks in England before coming here. They will leave Victoria January 1 for a new home—also in which once more there will be no snow. They go to live in Coli, Columbia, South America, where their father has been transferred for the Bank of Montreal.

"We have had the children

Grandfather not only brought them the snow, but he took them to the Ice Capades too. Here, Nora, Susan and Wendy from Central America, meet star Gabrielle, who comes from Garmish, Germany. —(Robin Clarke)

here before," said Dr. and Mrs. Richardson, "but we are now enjoying an all-time popularity. Each night at bedtime, we are thanked again for the snow."

"Thank you dear grandfather and grandmother," they say, "the snow is so beautiful. Wouldn't it be lovely if we have more blizzards before we go?"

Dr. Richardson who lives at the bottom of a steep hill, has a hard time to answer that question with honesty. But he is a most indulgent grandfather and is having quite a struggle with himself as to whether he will arrange more snow, or not—for Wendy, Nora and Susan.

Island Shoppers Race Deadline

Snow Helps Some Stores

Special to the Colonist

Heavy snow Saturday in the four major upper Vancouver Island centres seemed to hurt business in only one, and even helped trade a little in another.

Merchants in Duncan weren't able to report the people were spending record amounts of money but said plenty of buyers were around.

COMMON PRACTICE

An Eaton's official said he thought Cowichan Valley residents had decided to brave the two feet of snow to shop in Duncan rather than follow the common practice of buying Christmas presents in Nanaimo or Victoria.

'QUITE BUSY'

Food stores in all areas reported business was at least average because, as one spokesman put it, "people have to eat."

Store owners in both the Alberni and Comox valleys said they were "quite busy" despite around eight inches of snow in the Alberni and more than two feet in Courtenay, Comox and Cumberland.

But some merchants in Nanaimo estimated losses in the thousands of dollars if heavy snow continues, turns to slush or freezes.

Hardest hit in Nanaimo were clothing stores and shops where last-minute Christmas goods are bought.

Few people ventured downtown because of slippery roads.

Some businessmen said they will be short of space for incoming spring stock if Christmas goods are not sold.

Elsewhere on the Island, the pressing Christmas deadline overcame most shoppers' dread of the weather.

OUT REGARDLESS

Nanaimo's weather also slowed Salvation Army collections in downtown kettles. The Christmas cheer fund has more than $3,000 and a goal of $5,000, and the kettles will be out Monday through Thursday regardless of the weather.

Schools, churches, service clubs, other organizations, RCMP members and some businesses have donated enough food for more than 300 food hampers for needy Nanaimo families. Another 100 hampers are expected before delivery by the Salvation Army.

Copter Solves Gift Problem

COMOX—A helicopter from Michael's residential school at Alert Bay.

The gifts are the result of a campaign in Holberg, whose people collected sufficient cash to fulfill every request from the Indian children. The requests ranged from bobby pins to transistor radios.

The copter, complete with a Santa, will fly to Holberg from Comox Boxing Day to pick up gifts for the 72 children of St. 72 gifts.

Light and Sight

"Let me take it to the light," you often say when you want to see something more clearly. Whether you wish to read a telephone book, thread a needle or buy a piece of cloth; good clear light helps you to see it in its true detail and colour. Adequate illumination is one of the first requisites of good seeing. Normal eyes need it, and suffer ill effects without it. But nearsighted eyes demand an abnormal amount of light, to give sharpness to their vision. Proper lighting can do much to preserve your vision, but it is only one factor. Your eyes deserve the most careful and regular checkups. Have your eyes examined regularly and you will be rewarded with the greatest gift of nature—good vision.

Has CPR Gained 'Control' Of Mac-Powell?

VANCOUVER (CP)—The CPR may have gained five per cent control of MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. with a recent purchase of 750,000 shares worth $26,000,000 to $27,000,000.

A Vancouver newspaper says shares were purchased with money realized in the recent sale of timber rights along the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway to Mac-Powell and Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd.

The purchase brought CPR holdings in Mac-Powell to 1,020,500 shares, about 1/20 of the company's 20,846,235 shares outstanding.

SHARE TRANSFERS

The report says the purchase was made through transfer of shares from a number of holders. It adds the CPR may be interested in accumulating more shares and still holds timberland in the southern Island.

The newspaper says Mac-Powell was senior partner in the timber rights deal, which was completed last month, and put up an estimated two-thirds of the $56,000,000, or about $36,000,000.

Life-Saving Experiment At Patricia Bay Airport

by
CLEMENTINE PIPE

At Royal Oak, overlooking the city of Victoria, there lives and works a young man with a most unusual job, in fact a unique occupation; because Brian Davies is Canada's first and only professional falconer.

Since 1960 in this country $2,000,000 damage has been caused to aircraft by birds, mostly gulls. In the United States the loss of 123 lives in two airliner crashes has been attributed to this cause. When the National Research Council in Ottawa set up a committee to tackle the danger to jet aircraft one of the recommended items for investigation was the use of falcons to clear gulls from runways.

The well-known naturalist and artist, Frank Beebe, worked on the problem and recommended his assistant, Brian Davies, as the expert to put theory to practical test. Under government contract, the young man started flying his falcons at Victoria's International Airport for the gull-dispersal operation, thus becoming the country's first professional falconer.

Brian has been fascinated by falconry almost as long as he can remember. When he was only eight years old he took a fledgling Swainson's hawk from a nest near his home in Regina, but being a little boy with more enthusiasm than knowledge, he failed in his efforts to train it. The bird's only accomplishment was to scream for food, so he let it go.

In 1956, when he was just 14 he attended a talk on Raptores (birds of prey) and there met Richard Fyle (at present working with Northern Affairs in the study of peregrines and gyrfalcons) who in that year started the Saskatchewan Falconry Club. During its initial months there were only five members, with the boy one of them, and they were taught to catch and train their own birds. Brian's was a Prairie Falcon. 1956 was also the year that Raptores became protected in Saskatchewan and thereafter it was necessary to obtain a permit to trap and train wild birds.

"And that permit system is a darn good thing," Brian emphasizes.

He helped the Regina game department in banding birds of various kinds and learned and read everything he could about falconry. Then between 1959 and 1962 he served three years in the navy, and that of course is how he came to Victoria. But his first love remained dear to him and wherever he roamed in the Far East he tried to locate people who were interested in falconry. Alas, they seemed to be as difficult to discover as a dodo's egg, and, to his regret, he never did reach the shores of Europe.

"When I came out of the navy the first thing I did was to get a goshawk from up-Island," he relates.

By that time he had married blonde and pretty Dorothy MacMillan of Qualicum, and fortunately she too is interested in his exceptional work and helps in the rearing and feeding of the eight birds they now possess. Astonishing as it sounds, Brian had the good fortune to trap one of his birds, a beautiful gyrfalcon, within sight of the speeding traffic of Patricia Bay Highway.

"She had taken a gull and was eating it in the field right between our house and the highway at Royal Oak," he explains.

But it's not usual for a falcon to arrive on his doorstep. Normally he has to climb to the doorstep of an eyrie perched in a crevice perhaps 300 feet or more up an almost inaccessible cliff.

Where Falcons Clear Runways

Last year in July Brian, with Dave Hancock, who is doing research work on eagles at UBC, went by float plane to the Queen Charlotte Islands to collect Peale peregrine falcons to be trained for the gull-dispersal experiment at the airport. The young men tell of chilling adventures, like the time they tethered the plane to a kelp bed. After three hours of struggling up a cliff on the exposed side of Reef Island they returned to find a storm battering the plane's fragile floats against ramping rocks. They were marooned on that cold beach for three days without food.

By the end of October the birds had been trained for a "total set" on gulls and were ready for work at the airfield. Falcons (the females) are used in preference to tiercels (the males) because they are larger. From November 1 to March 31 two falcons, called "a cast," were taken to the airport once or twice a day for one or more flights to scare gulls from every part of the airfield where they alight during winter months to forage for earthworms.

BRIAN DAVIES

A peregrine's food is normally small shore birds. It is not as large as a glaucous gull and fights a strenuous battle to down one. The aim is to scare gulls, not to slaughter them, but a kill is the greatest possible deterrent.

In the early days of the experiment the gulls quickly learned of the new danger and, once scared, the flock became progressively smaller and those that did return stayed away for 24 hours so that it became necessary to fly the falcons only once a day, shortly after day-break.

There is much to keep Brian busy, quite apart from training, flying and feeding his falcons. He makes all his own highly specialized equipment, including lures, to which trained birds return, and heads—a hooded bird always remains at rest and can be handled quite easily.

His extraordinary duty is to repair damaged feathers. During its first year a young falcon's feathers are easily broken in a scuffle with its prey and power and speed are impaired. When a flight-feather is damaged it must be mended with a matching piece, usually saved from the moult of another bird. A wooden peg inserted into the quill and wrapped around with thread to form a splint was the method originally used. Steel pins about one and a half inches long are used nowadays and these are dipped in brine so that rust will form a grip. Brian's method, which he finds most satisfactory, is to insert half a hobbit's pin attached with contact cement. The bird is caused no distress because there is no feeling in feathers. Once replaced, feathers will last until the bird moults and grows a second set which do not break so easily.

... and his hooded falcon

"Birds certainly have different temperaments," Brian comments. "Each one has a personality. Some are good workers, others are lazy, some are screamers, some eat well and others don't."

Every one of his birds has a name. For instance, on a cold damp morning last March I watched Dinty and Speckles at work scaring gulls at the airport. As soon as the hood was removed from Speck's head, she weighed up the situation, then took off like an arrow from Brian's gloved hand. The gulls took flight and Speck instinctively picked out one with a weak wing, but after a display of evasive tactics the gull flew through a clump of fir trees to take refuge on the water beyond, where a falcon will not follow. Brian whistled and whirled his lure and the falcon was back on his hand. The whole exciting chase had lasted exactly two and a half minutes.

Brian has recorded every detail of each flight in his log-book, and by the end of March

Nowadays it seems that Christmas is with us in varying degrees of intensity almost the whole year round.

Scarcely have we recovered from the seasonal indulgences of one year before excess Christmas merchandise is on sale for the following year at greatly reduced prices. The Christmas card interests display a stir of activity about midsummer and Santa Claus himself is ushered in on the receding echoes of the last illegal Halloween firework.

I am certainly not prepared or willing to offer any judgment as to whether what is popularly known as "pushing the season" is good, bad or indifferent. There is far too much temptation to assess situations of this nature on the basis of what one is used to and I am as likely as the next one to fall into that trap. The catch lies in the fact that "what one is used to" is what happened in our growing and formative years and these, in my case, are some little distance back.

Nevertheless, pushed or not, Christmas gets here with exemplary regularity and absolute punctuality. It is not subject to governmental regulation like May 24 or the Queen's birthday which flit to and fro across a span of calendar with a whimsical disregard for human sensibilities. After all, the eyebrows of strangers are excusably raised when they hear us debating whether May 24 falls on the 18th or 19th. Next year, by some odd quirk of fate, May 24 actually falls on the 24th; the exception rather than the rule.

I think, however, that it must be an accepted fact that when these banner days do arrive, pushed or not pushed, decreed or naturally, they take on a lustre which time has failed to dim or circumstance to tarnish.

And especially so with Christmas.

HERE TO STAY

That well-worn adage: "Christmas comes but once a year," appears to have been coined, not by any of the "bards sublime" but by a comparatively unknown poet of the name of Thomas Tusser who flourished from 1524 to 1580. Said Thomas:

"At Christmas play and make good cheer,
For Christmas comes but once a year."

This was an excerpt from a Tusser opus entitled "The Farmer's Daily Diet" though, obviously, the application of the advice about Christmas is infinitely wider. Incidentally, many proverbs are traceable to Mr. Tusser's "Hundredth good pointes of husbandrie" in which he advised on matters agricultural, domestic and social. The nurture of farm animals, the tending of crops and the observation of Christmas were all included, side by side.

Years and years later another tolerably obscure author, Thomas Miller, wrote a whole poem with the title "Christmas Comes But Once a Year."

The saying itself is about 1,557 years younger than the event it deals with but it remains a pretty good reminder that, despite midsummer card sales, a great multiplicity of Santas and weeks of recorded or live carol-singing, Christmas itself comes but once a year and all the rest is trimming of one sort or another.

Here in Victoria it will be celebrated with undiminished vigor, occasioning a high mortality among adult turkeys and young trees, enhanced light bills and lowered resistance to a variety of temptations such as those connected with diet.

However, proceedings are not, in general, as they once were though there are exceptions even here. The Empress Hotel supplies one and the Old England Inn another. Customs of many years ago are annually revived and fit most harmoniously into modern surroundings.

At the Empress they start early, too. The "Order of a Merrie Yule-Tide" proclaims:

"AS ye do rise, at nine o'ye clock, WAITS in picturesque array, salute YE DAY in ancient song and Carol without thy sleeping quarters. And, later, sing again hard by ye portal of ye Dining Hall, as ye do break thy fast."

"Waits," or, if you prefer, "Waytes," are interesting folk. They started out as city watchmen, sounding the hours on some musical instrument such as the now extinct hautboy. They developed the musical side of their careers and the band of Waits at York is mentioned as early as 1272. Some became renowned as performers on stringed instruments, a departure from the hautboy which was essentially a wind instrument. The Waits at Norwich, for another instance, were famous for their singing. Waits acted as official or semi-official greeters (like our pipers or flower-girls down at the Causeway). From the 16th to the 18th centuries they were remarked as attending "at the Inns on the arrival of any guest who seemed likely to be able to recompense them" which wasn't half a bad idea from their point of view.

Of course, they serenaded the public vigorously at Christmas time and it is this particular phase of their activities that has caused the term, "Waits," to become rather restricted in its significance. Nowadays it suggests just carol-singers; actually it means (or meant) a great deal more.

Anyway, Waits there will be carolling through the corridors of the Empress Hotel—if not also, by reason of their present singularity, through the corridors of time.

Once, in the season of carols and holly, one's dreams all came true. And among the many good things was a special Christmas gift, a gift to cherish for all the Christmasses to come.

The baby girl who interrupted my television debut to make her own debut into the world is a year old now. She arrived on Dec. 18, 1963, which was the day I had promised to make a guest appearance on a television show.

A representative for the sponsor of the photo contest in which I had won top prize of $1,500 was to present me with a cheque, and my winning picture entry would be shown. I would chat with the host and hostess of the show. But baby Juliann had other plans for that day.

She was as exciting a prize as anyone could hope to capture—seven pounds of squalling humanity.

Another wish that came true was being able to come home for Christmas. When my husband, Peter, called for me on Christmas Eve, with Lorilee and Michael and a fragrant pine tree in the car, I had my two prizes—tiny Juliann in my arms, and the cheque in my pocket.

The presentation, complete with press photographer, nurses and baby Juliann, was held in the hospital sunroom when the baby was five days old.

Lorilee Makes a Wish is the title of the picture that took top prize in the Canada-wide contest. It shows my small daughter Lorilee, with blonde hair flying, blowing dandelion seeds on the wind. She had wished for a piano as she blew the seeds, and her wish came true. She has been taking music lessons for eight months now.

Her baby sister Juliann, walking now, loves the piano too, and when Lorilee plays Christmas carols, Juliann claps her hands joyously, making me glad all over again that she arrived at Christmastime, when wishes should come true, and sometimes actually do!

Christmas Tree

Now Millions Bedeck a Storied Symbol

The year was 1776 and the weather in this foreign land had been bitterly cold.

It was Christmas Eve and a group of homesick Hessian soldiers huddled forlornly around their campsite on the icy banks of the Delaware River at Trenton, New Jersey.

The last thing the Hessian brigade cared about this night was the outcome of the colonial struggle against the mighty power of England.

They were far from home and they sadly missed the good cheer—the traditional Gemütlichkeit—shared by family and friends at this blessed season of the year.

But gradually, as fir trees were chopped down and brought inside to be decorated with makeshift ornaments and lighted with candles in the centuries-old tradition of their forefathers, memories of happier holidays began to warm the wooden huts. And once again, as they gathered about the tree to sing the ancient Christmas hymns, the spirit of the season worked its magic spell.

Thus it was, by a curious twist of fate, that the Christmas tree, most revered of all the nation's Yuletide customs, was first lighted in America by a handful of homesick enemy soldiers.

The idea and the tradition of the Christmas tree spread rapidly through the young country in the years that followed. From Germany, through Europe and England and on to America—especially in the 19th century, the golden age of Christmas—the spirit of Christmas was reflected in the colorful lights and gay decorations of the tree.

One of the major repositories of the history and lore of the Christmas tree is at Hallmark Cards, in Kansas City, Mo., where each year a staff of creative artists and writers seek with fidelity to portray on Christmas cards the legends of word and picture that lie half-hidden in the research files of antique greetings, medieval manuscripts, old books and records of past centuries of Christmas celebrations.

From this research have come literally hundreds of Christmas greetings illustrated with Christmas trees depicting nearly every story of incident related to the significance of the tree as a symbol of the Christmas season.

The custom itself may be traced as far back as the Roman celebration of the feast of Saturn when trees were trimmed and sometimes a dozen candles were added to represent the months or seasons of the sun.

In early Christian times, there were many beautiful legends associated with the tree. One of the most popular of these was first transcribed in a religious manuscript many centuries ago by an unknown monk in the kingdom of Sicily.

It tells how, on the night the Christ Child was born all living creatures journeyed to the stable to pay homage to the newborn king.

Even the trees joined in the pilgrimage. The olive gave its fruit and the palm its dates. But the fir tree had no gift to offer and stood humbly in the rear. An angel noted its plight and asked the stars to descend and rest in the limbs of the tree.

At so beautiful a sight, the Christ Child smiled and blessed the humble fir, and, says the legend, to this day the fir tree remains ever green the year round.

The Christmas tree as we know it today evolved from two medieval religious symbols, the paradise tree and the Christmas light.

In an age before books, teachers dramatized the story of the Bible, using a makeshift stage and simple scenery. One of the most popular presentations was the story of Adam and Eve and the forbidden fruit and for this, a fir tree with apples tied to its branches was placed on the stage.

Because the play ended with the promise of redemption, it was usually presented just before Christmas and the tree, identified with the birth of Christ, became known as the paradise tree.

The Christmas light was a candle burned on Christmas Eve as a symbol of the coming of the light of the world. It was often mounted on a pyramid decorated with tinsel and glass balls.

The tree and the lights were first combined in Germany in the 16th century and in time, cookies and other pastries were added to symbolize "the sweet fruit of Christ's salvation of all mankind."

The famous leader of the Protestant Revolt in Germany, Martin Luther, is said to have been the first person to bring the tree indoors and decorate it for the Christmas season.

And it was Queen Victoria's consort, Prince Albert, who is thought to have brought the tradition to England from his native Germany.

In America, there is a record of a German professor at Harvard who set up a Christmas tree in 1832 and another story of a pastor in Cleveland, Ohio, in 1851, who tried to trim a tree but ran into opposition from some people who considered it a pagan practice.

In the 1850s, Franklin Pierce became the first president to decorate a tree in the White House and another president, Theodore Roosevelt, ordered a halt to the custom because he felt it was contrary to his policy of conserving U.S. natural resources.

MARTIN LUTHER, leader of the Protestant Revolt in Germany in the 16th Century, is said to be the first person to bring a lighted tree into the home at Christmas. He and his family are seen in this old print as they gathered about the tree on Christmas Eve at their home in Wittenberg.

The Fabulous Mansion of Longleat

A Treasure-House of History

... with a Ghost

VIVIENNE CHADWICK

I have been there, though only as a tourist, many times. I love Longleat.

Everything about it is beautiful, magnificent, historical . . . and somehow friendly. Its parks extend for miles. Its name, says Lady Bath in a booklet about the mansion published in 1949, is probably derived from an obsolete word "leat", meaning watercourse. There is one running through the property.

This history of the house begins with a priory which stood on the site in the late 13th century and was occupied by the Black Canons of the Order of St. Augustine. It came into the hands of its present owners through a gentleman named John Botteville, an ancestor who came over from Poitiers, France, to help King John in his struggle against the barons. He lived for some time at an "inn," which in those days denoted any great house, and he had a relative, another John Botteville, nearby, so to distinguish himself from his neighbor he called himself John o' th' Inn, and this is believed to be the origin of the family name of Thynne.

The priory was a poor one. It changed hands once or twice, reverted to the Crown, and in the year 1540 was bought by the first Sir John Thynne. He paid £53 for it!

Sir John was a builder, and during the years he effected much extensive remodeling. He laid the foundations for the splendid vaulted cellars as they are now, and then he commenced work on the house. A year or so later it burned down, so he began again. It took him twelve years to construct the present vast edifice, at a cost, so the old records show, of a little over £8,000.

Queen Elizabeth I was much interested in all this activity, and threw out several broad hints to the effect that she would like to be invited to visit the fine new mansion, but Longleat's owner, knowing his sovereign, managed to put her off until he was ready for her. This was in 1574, when she rested there on her way from Bristol, "a hazardous journey!"

Like many of the old and noble families of England, this one is not without its records of violence. A fourth generation Thynne was murdered in 1682, and a later descendant, father of the first Marquis of Bath and husband of a noted beauty, discovered that the lady had been unfaithful to him, so the story goes, fought a duel with the man in one of the passages at the top of the great house, killed him, and buried the body in the cellars. And when the fifth Marquis decided to put in central heating not very long ago, there, certainly, was a body. The skeleton, noted Lady Bath, was wearing jack-boots, and these crumbled to nothing the moment they were exposed to the air. The passage itself is known as "The Green Lady's Walk," and is said to be haunted by the spirit of the guilty wife.

Today this fabulous mansion, with its 365 windows and its line of statues on the roof, is a store-house of treasure. I remember the great hall to the right of the central staircase as you enter. There is a musicians' gallery above, and the walls are covered with fine paintings depicting episodes in the family history. In many of these the figure of a young stable-boy appears. He was a homeless walf who had been found abandoned in the woods nearby and given a job which, in the end, cost him his life. He was killed when he valiantly tried to pacify two furiously fighting stallions in the stable yards, and one of the almost life-sized paintings portrays this.

I remember, too, the beautiful state dining room, where the lovely wall-sconces for lights are all of silver and of superb craftsmanship. I think I counted 16 of them. I remember the long gallery in which have been preserved many of the favorite gowns worn by various generations of the chateaines of Longleat, and which one immediately recognizes in the different portraits on the walls.

PANTOMIME HERE TO STAY

Seventeenth century fashion will clothe the servants at the Old England Inn; the Empress promises "dameels in pretty garb of olden days."

Likewise, in the main lounge of ye latter hostelry, the traditional Yule Log will be fired with the traditional Senechal and Jester—direct from the Middle Ages—in attendance and an accompaniment of song, masque and mediaeval pageantry.

The association of Christmas and turkey is an innovation of fairly recent date. Bubbly-jock, as the turkey is sometimes called, is a native of North America; more American in ancestry than Abraham Lincoln, Wyatt Earp or Barbara Fritchie. Before the Pilgrim Fathers started making Bubbly's life more than usually hazardous by discharging blunderbusses in his direction, the outstanding item of Christmas fare was the boar's head.

Thus, at both the Empress Hotel and the Old England Inn, the ceremony of bringing in the boar's head is maintained while the rafters ring in song and trumpets acclaim the occasion.

Assuredly, nothing like this ever happened to the boar during his lifetime!

Senechals, boars' heads, jesters and waits, while as welcome at Christmas as are the flowers in May, are inevitably relics of an era long departed.

But there is another event, wholly knit up in the fabric of Christmas, that is rather more recent. This is the Pantomime.

We had a good one in Victoria last year—"Dick Whittington and His Cat"—and we are to have another this year—"Beauty and the Beast." The Bastion Theatre carries on where the St. Matthias Little Theatre Society left off.

Pantomime may be said to have been born at Drury Lane in 1702, some 80-odd years after Bubblyjock and the Pilgrim Fathers had become acquainted. Sir Augustus Harris made pantomime spectacular in the late 19th century; now it is unhappily on the decline. A real Christmas pantomime requires a minimum of 14 scenes, a "principal boy" who is invariably a girl and accounts for the popularity of pantomime among fathers, and a "dame" who, equally invariably, is a man.

However, this is no time to demand rigorous attention to classic detail; better by far an approximation of pantomime than done at all.

Last year's "Dick Whittington" had young and lively Miss Stella Yoxall as "principal boy": this year she is back again as "Beauty." Her Christmas appearances in name parts are becoming such that she may get imbued with the Christmas idea to the point where we can expect her down the chimney anytime in late December.

"Beauty and the Beast," directed by expert Tony Burton, will have 10 performances at Oak Bay Junior High School. It will be presented at 8 p.m. on December 26, 28, 29 and 30 and January 1 and 2. Matinees at 2 p.m. are set for all these dates except December 28 and 29.

Larry Eastick plays the "Beast" with Wayne Fines as the "Wizard." A "Baby Dragon"—like all of us, even dragons are young once—is Julie Petersen. Wendy Packard and Toni Burnett are Jessamine and Jamquiline while Clive Yoxall is Mr. Clements.

Of course, there will be other special Christmas attractions here, there and the next place; far too numerous, as the expression is, to mention. But the spirit of Christmas is ubiquitous and very penetrating.

The events associated with traditions are, perhaps, especially attractive. They do not represent displacement of the modern by the old nor a consequent halt in the march of progress.

No one, after all, has yet found a substitute for Christmas itself in 1,964 years.

The Marquis Sold Booklets

I remember the scores of rooms with their decorated ceilings and exquisite hand-made furniture, much of the work Italian, done by imported workmen long, long ago.

I remember the great fireplaces, grouped about with comfortable chairs, and I remember the feeling that though the home was so vast, it had a feeling of warmth and livability. I would have given much to have been able to sit awhile in some of these heavenly rooms and studied their contents and think about their past.

But of all the priceless and storied things to be found under this roof, I think the one, quite small, item which moved me most deeply was that displayed in a little glass-topped stand in the same gallery as the costumes . . . the oyster-white embroidered waistcoat worn by Charles I in the hour of his execution. This sort of thing has a strange and unforgettable effect on the lover of English history . . .

Above the first flight of stairs, before it divides at the landing where the pictures are, and continues up on either side, is a tremendous, intricately designed chandelier, with countless lights. At my request the guide willingly turned it on, and I came very slowly, very reluctantly, down the wide steps. Because when I got to the bottom I would have to leave . . .

In the foyer, on the way out, a slender man stood with his back to me, one of the little aforementioned booklets on Longleat in his hand. He waved it above his head. He was saying coaxingly to the visitors who came and went about him, "Come along now! Must have one of these, you know! Tells you all about everything. Half a crown, that's all!" And then he added, to nobody in particular, "Can't imagine why I'm doin' this. Very borin' job. Nobody seems to want one!"

At his shoulder I said, "Don't be silly! Probably half of 'em can't read!"

He turned, and I knew who he was at once. There could be no mistaking that resemblance to the long line of portraits I had just seen. The dark eyes, dark hair, rather thin, lightly humorous face with its aquiline nose. The present Marquis is the image of his father—they're all images of each other!

He said, "I never thought of that. You're probably right. What can I do about that?"

"Read it to them," I suggested.

"Once upon time . . ." he began, and stopped. "What now?"

I said, "You should know. It's your story. It IS yours, this, isn't it?"

He nodded. "That's right. Want to buy it?"

I shook my head. Somehow the mere thought of anything so tremendously one's own, as Longleat is his, going into other hands, was unbearable. Surely, even if others bought every stick and stone of it, it could never be truly theirs. I said something of this, and my companions and I went away.

Outside we walked down the entrance steps and across the lawn, and got into our car. I believe it's a mile to the gates. Anyway, we drove out and along a lovely country road, up a hill, and stopped. We got out and went on foot through a stretch of woods until we came to an eminence at the edge of a cliff, from which we looked down over the gently spreading valley toward the distant home we had just left, a truly noble pile, resting there among its trees as it has reared for 400 years. The place where we stood is known as Heaven's Gate, because once, long ago, the house sheltered a fugitive priest, who, restless under his enforced confinement, begged to be smuggled daily up to this spot, from which he could watch for the possible approach of his enemies, while he paced and prayed for his benefactors.

I often look over my little book on Longleat. And I would like to think that I might one day go back to see it again. Because of all the "stately homes" that have been opened to the public, and that I have visited, this is the one I could never forget.

CHRISTMAS TREE

However, his sons smuggled in a tree and, when confronted with their "crime," they were defended by one of the nation's foremost foresters who convinced the president that the cutting of young evergreens could actually be helpful in forest conservation.

Decorations in the early days were home-made and quite simply fashioned with paper ornaments and the things common to our agricultural past—apples, oranges, nuts, popcorn balls and strings of cranberries.

To this day, the Douglas and balsam fir trees continue to be the most popular choices for Christmas decorating but many people have begun using more sophisticated trees made of all sorts of materials from ostrich feathers to aluminum.

Today in the U.S. alone, more than 40,000,000 trees each year decorate homes and offices, public squares and tiny village chapels.

An unusual exhibition of Christmas trees is planned this year for the newly opened Hallmark Gallery on Fifth Avenue in New York City.

Virtually every example of decorated and ornamented tree, from the old-fashioned variety, to the most modern imaginable, will be in the collection and what makes the exhibition the more unique is that each of the 21 trees is being decorated by a nationally known figure.

Among the people whose trees are included in the display are Francis Cardinal Spellman, Shakespearean actor Maurice Evans, author Phyllis McGinley, Rev. Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, actress Helen Hayes and the popular television actor Dick Van Dyke.

Whether the choice is the familiar evergreen laden with lights, decorations, and tinsel, or a metal tree with a few simple ornaments of silver, the cherished focal point of Christmas past and present remains the stately Christmas tree.

"Then be ye glad good people
At this time of year;
And light you up your candles,
For His star it shineth clear."
... An Old French Carol.

Here we are only a breath away from Christmas . . . excitement mounts. Time may lag for the little tots waiting for the visit of the old man with the white whiskers, but for adults, especially Mama . . . time has wings. So many things yet to be done, last-minute shopping, parcels to wrap, the house to polish and a host of details in the food department. We want everything to be ready for the invited friends, impromptu guests and family home for the holidays. Hospitality is the glittering warp of the fabric of Christmas.

Buffet parties are particularly popular so we'll start with some of the savories you might like to serve. A festive board of cheese, assorted dips, chips and crackers appeal to everyone, and with a few dips made up ahead of time you are ready for any eventuality.

A SNACKING TREE is both delicious and attractive . . . It is a splendid conversation piece. It is really a dip, shaped festively like a Christmas tree on a board or cheese board. It is full of zesty and savory ingredients. Serve with assorted crackers, potato chips or crispy toast rounds. It tastes as good as it looks.

SNACKING TREE . . . Three hard-cooked eggs chopped, 2 tins deviled ham, 1 tbsp.

Bride's Corner

To prevent candle drips getting on holiday tablecloths . . . place a circle of aluminum foil (a little larger than the base of the candle holder) under each candle stick. The glitter of foil is not unsightly . . . It fits right in with the festive decor.

Drape an old sheet around the Christmas tree holder and under the tree. It forms a snowlike base and collects fallen needles . . . all ready for an easy shake-out.

Lift those tiny, hard-to-pick-up fragments of shattered Christmas tree baubles with a dampened piece of cotton or cleaning tissue. Saves fingers from cuts, too.

Early this week make a list of all the tag-and things to be done.

Cross off each item as it is accomplished.

Cross off each item as it is accomplished. Make two kinds of stuffing for the turkey . . . tuck in one fore and one aft for variety.

grated onion,  $\frac{1}{4}$  tsp. Tabasco, 1 tsp. Worcestershire, 3 ozs. softened cream cheese, chopped chives and pimiento. Combine all but cheese, the chives and the pimiento. Chill. Shape into a Christmas tree form. Pipe the softened cream cheese around the edge, sprinkle with chopped chives. Make a pimiento star for the top of the tree. You can double or treble this recipe according to the size tree you wish.

A PARTY CHEESE BALL is very decorative. It can be placed in the centre of your cheese tray and surrounded with an assortment of crackers.

PARTY CHEESE BALL . . . One-half cup toasted and chopped walnuts, 3 to 5 ozs. Bleu or Roquefort cheese, 8-oz. package cream cheese,  $\frac{1}{4}$  tsp. garlic salt, 1 tbsp. chopped green pepper and 1 tbsp. chopped pimiento. Heat oven to 350°. Spread walnuts on shallow pan and toast, stirring occasionally until golden (8 to 10 minutes). Blend cheeses, stir in the seasonings and chopped peppers. Chill until firm. Shape into ball then roll in toasted and chopped walnuts. Garnish with a sprig of holly.

Recently I received a box of three Cheese Balls from New York . . . They were definitely de luxe. I thought you might be interested, as I was, in trying to reconstruct these savory cheeses. The box cover listed the ingredients for each (though not the amounts). They went by the intriguing names of "The Nutty Dane," "The Devil's Kiss," and "Champagne Yodeler." Here are the clues . . . It should not be difficult to make up facsimiles.

THE NUTTY DANE . . . for lovers of Blue Cheese. A combination of butter and Blue Cheese, seasoned vegetable salt, Tabasco, and rolled in

THE DEVIL'S KISS . . . Beer drinkers love this. A combination of sharp Cheddar, hot mustard and butter. Rolled in paprika.

THE CHAMPAGNE YODELER . . . a snowy white blend of aged Swiss cheese, champagne, Kummel (liqueur) . . . rolled in sesame seeds. These three cheese balls arranged in the centre of a tray could be a fine conversation piece as they look so attractive and taste so good. Keep refrigerated but to serve leave at room temperature for 30 minutes before using.

Ring with crackers and serve with a flourish. Now for a couple of dips . . .

MEAT DIP PIQUANT . . . Two tins (4 $\frac{1}{2}$  oz.) deviled ham,  $\frac{1}{4}$  tsp. Tabasco, 1 8-ounce package Philadelphia cream cheese,  $\frac{1}{4}$  cup mayonnaise, 2 tbsp. prepared mustard, 1 tsp. minced onion and 2 tbsp. minced stuffed mayonnaise and prepared mustard. Add rest of ingredients and mix well. Yield 2 $\frac{1}{2}$  cups.

DEAR HELOISE:

Instead of buying Christmas cards last year, I made my own with pieces of red nylon net and some green embroidery thread. All my friends dearly loved them and remembered me all year!

Here's how it's done:

Fold a piece of net into eight thicknesses, making it the shape of an open bill-fold.

Use embroidery thread and sew a running stitch around the edges to hold the

It's extra good for pots and pans.

Eliminates most dishpan hands.

Fold the rectangle in half, making a fold-over Christmas card. On the inside paste or pin a little piece of paper with the following poem:

crab meat (6 1/2 or 7 1/2 oz.), about 10 ozs. sharp
Cheddar cheese, one 8-oz. pkg. sharp process cheese, 1/2 cup butter, 1/2 cup sauterne or white wine. Shred crab meat, reserving a few pieces for garnish. Cut cheese in small pieces, combine low heat until cheese melts. Stir in crab meat and stir over low heat until heated through.

Pour into a chafing dish. Garnish with pieces of crab meat. Serve with crackers or chunks

This can be made right in chafing dish if de-

Piping hot liver pate (comes in 4 1/2-oz. tins party food. Mix pate with a little grated onion and spread on rectangle of unbaked pastry. Roll up like a jelly roll and slice. Bake in pre-heated

This same liver pate mixed with sour cream and a little horseradish, makes a fine dip. Serve in a bowl sprinkled generously with chopped parsley.

Make tiny meatballs by wrapping meat mix-and cook ahead. Serve from chafing dish in

UNDER-THE-COUNTER TIP

DEAR HELOISE:
My kitchen has a number of
under-the-counter cabinets, most in pairs with the knobs opposite each other.

Not wanting to bar the baby from the kitchen, and yet unwilling to have him rearrange sourceful husband came up with a solution. He cut wide rubber bands from an old in-the pairs of knobs. They're easy for an adult to remove, but a toddler doesn't have quite enough strength.

I imagine that heavy rubber bands could also be used.

MONEY BAGS

DEAR HELOISE:

I have a large number of children on my Christmas shopping list.

For the last two years I have been making gay little bags from scraps of satin, velvet, rayon, or whatever
I happen to have on hand.
I put a gold drawstring in the top of the bag and make a dollar sign on the outside with gilt paint!

I fill these bags with coins, mostly pennies, with a few nickels, dimes, and quarters thrown in, so the total is about a dollar—more or less.

The recipients, both boys and girls, love them.

This eliminates the possibility of duplicating a gift that the child might already have.

XMAS HINTS

DEAR HELOISE:

Here are a couple of household hints I would like to pass on:

To hold the cord of your string of Christmas lights to your holiday tree...

(indoor or outdoor lights)
use pipe cleaners!

No broken fingernails.

The same pipe cleaners
may be used year after year.
I cut the pipe cleaners in half and they are still long enough to wrap around the wire of the lights and the branch.

My husband put up cup hooks along the edge of our house to hold the outdoor lights. They have been up for several years and now each year all he has to do is hook the strings of lights to the hooks.

We also attach plastic holly chains to the same hooks to cover wires and to add color...

NORMA MacDONALD in Search of Food Follows the Trail of

THE TRUFFLE HOUNDS

I have just returned from the October meeting of the Council of the International Hotel Association and a foray after exotic foods.

The meeting was on the Costa del Sol in Spain, a country of sunshine, as its name implies, beautiful hotels and apartment houses, and fabulous resorts. Torremolinos, where I stayed, is a typical town. But when the meeting was over, and in spite of all the building activity and attractions of the place, I was anxious to move on. I spent a day sight-seeing in Algiers and then flew off to Milan.

I was in search of food . . .

In my opinion there are three great food spots in Europe—France, Italy and, for the roast beef of Old England, Simpson's in the Strand. Milan and its surroundings are to Italy what the "Dijon-to-Nice" route is to France—the district where the best foods and wines are produced, and the best use made of them.

In Milan I stayed at the elegant Gallia Excelsior. It has the perfection and service of the best new hotels and the elegance and space of the luxury hotels of 30 years ago. Perhaps I hardly need mention that it is not cheap, nor is anything else in the large cities of Europe. Hotel guests in Italy are, I think, the most highly taxed of all. The basic rates are fully as high as comparable Canadian hotels, and to this rate they add 18 per cent service tax, 3 per cent federal government tax, and 200 lira (about 35c) per day per person for city tax. It used to be always considered that the service tax was in place of tips, but now occasionally when a guest asks about this he is told that this amount does not go to the staff but to the management, so one must tip in addition. However this applies only to smaller hotels, and, whatever the system, most guests enjoy giving a little extra tip for pleasant and efficient service.

I settled down at the Gallia and began at once to enjoy my favorite Italian foods—minestrone soup for which Milan is famous, pizza (a native of Naples, but equally good in Milan), and their wonderful, long-grained rice served plain and hot over several curls of their delicious butter, and everything of course covered with grated cheese.

During my few days in Milan I enjoyed once more their famous cathedral, and, to my great delight, an evening at the opera, the first time I had been lucky enough to catch La Scala in season. Then I went by train to a spot I have long wanted to visit, Lake Garda, Italy's largest lake resort, situated half-way between Milan and Verona.

There are towns and villages all around the lake shore, but I chose Sirmione because I had read of its great beauty, and I was not disappointed. It is one of the loveliest places I have found in my travels, and for three days I walked during all my waking hours amongst its beauties—the old 12th century castle, climbing the 150 narrow stone steps to the top of its tower for a view I will never forget, the lovely old Church of San Pietro about a mile away, and built at the same time as the castle, the tiny beautiful little stone chapel "Ave Maria" at the entrance to the castle, and the famous Catullo Grotto, ruins of a huge Roman villa believed to date from the time of Christ.

Lake Garda has been likened to shape to an earring with Sirmione the jewel pendant hanging from the ear, and it is truly a jewel.

Their finest hotel, the Villa Cortina, a virtual mansion set in huge gardens, had just closed for the season, so I chose a smaller and plainer one owned by the same company. With all the beauty around me perhaps I wouldn't have complained if the food had not been good, but it was. Trout, fresh from the lake, was often served, and a new experience for me was a starter one day of noodles cooked with walnuts, and of course covered with cheese. I suppose everyone knows that walnuts are another of Italy's specialties, and I found this combination delicious.

For meal drinks Italian beer is good, and in each place the local red and white wines are excellent and very reasonable.

Back to Milan and off by train again in another direction to perhaps the most famous food spot in all Italy—Alba, the little, old market town of 20,000 inhabitants, who own the only territory in the world to produce white truffles (tartuffi, as the Italians call them). Until a year or two ago I didn't know there was such a thing as white truffles. All I had ever heard of was the black ones of France, and I was not particularly interested in them as the little black specks in the pate de foie gras did not give my palate any thrill. It is most fascinating, however, to visit the source of the very scarce white ones, and to meet some of the people who make their living by the discovery of these grubby little treasures that look like potatoes and smell like the earth that nourishes them.

They grow at the roots of oak and beech trees, sometimes as much as a foot below the ground, and the finding of them is a terrific industry. In France the black truffles, growing also at the roots of trees, are ferreted out by pigs, but tragically pigs like them as much as humans do, so the first obstacle is to overcome is the desire of the pigs to devour them. The white truffle is found by dogs, who do not want them, so the first person concerned in this industry is the man who trains the dogs to hunt for and find the precious little growths. This man until recently was "Professor Barot," whose real name was Battista Monchiero, and who inherited from his father and grandfather the School for Truffle Hounds in the village of Roddi near Alba. Here the dogs, mostly mongrels, are patiently trained to find the truffles which mean so much to the dogs' owners. They are rewarded with bread which they love, and as soon as their excited scratching shows that they have made a find their owner moves in with a special instrument and digs up the truffle without injury.

The charge to dog owners is about $7 for a two or three weeks' course, and a really top grade truffle dog can be worth as much as $200.

The hunting is done at night in great quiet and secrecy, and a spot where treasure has been found is carefully covered but marked on a map so that the finder can go back to it again. At 6 each morning the lucky hunters are in the Truffle Market where buyers are waiting to take their treasures.

Professor Barot died two years ago at the age of 82, and before his death it looked almost as if the school would be discontinued, as none of the six of his sons who survived the war seemed to be interested. Fortunately some of them have changed their minds and the school still goes on.

who own and operate the old Albergo di Savona in Alba, and there both serve and sell the truffles in every conceivable form. The hotel was founded by the grandfather of the present owners in 1863, and their father, Giacomo Morro, became the Truffle King of the district. He lived to enjoy the 100th anniversary celebration of the hotel in 1963, but died at the end of that same year, at the age of 75. In this case there is no question of the hotel carrying on, as each of his three sons is vitally interested, and never have I seen a more united family, nor one with a more definite objective—the success of their hotel and restaurant. They sell the truffles in their natural state and in pastes and spreads, in tins and tubes, and the restaurant does a terrific business in serving food preparations featuring the truffles.

The day I happened to choose to visit them was a holiday, and when I arrived at noon the hotel was swarming with patrons. It was more than two hours before I could get anything to eat, and I learned later that they had served lunch to 2,050 guests that day. This, they told me, was normal for a weekend or a holiday, with ordinary days bringing in 300 to 400. Dinner was not so crowded, and while I ate I had the privilege of talking with the famous brothers and extracting information from them.

George, the eldest, has succeeded his father as the acknowledged truffle king of the district, but each one, and all their womenfolk, works equally hard. They can accommodate 150 hotel guests, and they do not claim to be in the top class as far as hotel rooms are concerned, but their rates are very reasonable. They have 100 employees, ranging from very young to fairly elderly, and it looked to me as if good management and hard work on the part of the bosses has inspired loyal cooperation from the staff, as everyone was working at top speed.

Mario was my particularly attentive host, and he told me of a truffle weighing about 2½ pounds, sent to a customer in Uruguay who paid $58 for it. He also showed me a picture of his father displaying the largest white truffle ever found. It was bought by the Morro family and sent by them as a gift to President Harry Truman. I can only hope he knew and appreciated what he was getting.

When I retired that evening about 10.30 the whole Morro family was still on the job, and the place was still crowded, as they have made an attractive bar and dance room in what they call "The Cellar." I had tried all their special dishes, covered with truffle shavings—a minced chicken preparation, a hot dish made with ripe red peppers, a very delicate cheese dish similar to the Swiss fondue, and their most popular dish of all, plain boiled rice (but of course that lovely Italian rice) smothered with white tartuffi. When I left early the next morning for Milan I carried away a precious gift—an attractively packaged assortment of all their various cans and tubes, and one of their special tools for shaving the truffle.

Three disappointments I encountered in my search for my favorite Italian foods. First the servings of their excellent Espresso coffee are becoming smaller and smaller. The demitasse cups are tiny and they come only half full for about 15c. On protest they will explain that this is to leave room for milk or cream, but I believe very few people add anything but sugar.

Second, and this is very important, cheeses seem to be deteriorating. Their famous Gorgonzola, for which a real cheese connoisseur would almost make a special ocean crossing, is no longer as it was. At least I was not able to find any. What they served to me was so new that it had absolutely no flavor. In fact the mould looked definitely artificial. The head waiter put on a good act of shocked surprise at my saying so, but I'll still stick to my decision. I only hope that when I next go to England I won't find that the same thing has happened to their Stilton.

The third, and probably the most important, disappointment was that with very few exceptions the old warmth and friendliness of the Italian hotels has disappeared. Time was when the Italian man was one of the most gallant in the world, and it seemed to me that the age of the lady made no difference to his gay attentions. Alas, maybe it's because I am so much older now that things seem to have changed, or perhaps the years have brought so many of us to their shores that we have palled on them, and all they now seem to care about is the money we can hand out. However, this definitely does not apply to the Gallia Excelsior or to the Albergo di Savona, where both management and staff did everything possible for my comfort and pleasure. I was particularly impressed with the Morro family who are one of the fast-disappearing united groups—obviously making money, but never losing sight of the friendly personal contact which means so much to the travelling public.

So for your next European jaunt take the advice of a seasoned old traveller. Go to Italy by all means (in addition to the foods and wines you will find beautifully tempting things to buy and send home) but don't spend too much time in the crowded centres of Rome, Naples or even lovely Florence. Go to Milan, dig yourself in at the Gallia Excelsior, go by car or train to Lake Garda and drink in the peace and beauty of my lovely Sirmione. Then again by car or train to the Piedmont country and the quaint, old town of Alba. There get to know my friends—George, Francesco and Mario, their mother, their wives, their sister—and taste the heavenly dishes they can prepare with their rare white tartuffi. You will have something to talk about when you come home that your friends have probably never even heard of.

WHERE FALCONS CLEAR RUNWAYS

the experiment at Victoria's airport was declared a success. He had proved:

Trained peregrine falcons deter gulls from frequenting airports;

One or two flights clear gulls from all parts of an airfield for 24 hours, with the number of habitués growing progressively smaller;

And the falcon's flights last only from two to five minutes, proving that the trainer is in control of his birds.

"Almost every country in the world has the problem of bird-strikes," Brian says.

Various methods of combatting the danger are being tried. At Brussels the feeding of any birds near the airport is discouraged; in Holland gulls are fed regularly at a safe distance from airfields; and in Germany long grass is allowed to grow—the theory being that gulls will not forage in it.

At Vancouver's Sea Island Airport, recordings of a gull's distress calls have been successful for a limited time but the discerning gulls quickly learn to ignore them.

The chemical elimination of earthworms has come under consideration but the turning of airfields into biological deserts is not likely to be approved. For instance, poisonous residue has been found in birds and plants around Great Slave Lake, hundreds of miles from the nearest spraying operations.

So far, falcons have proved themselves to be the best safety measure and therefore the experiment will continue. Brian's contract has been renewed. During this winter gyrfalcons, which are larger than peregrines and whose natural prey includes gulls, will be used. Six gyrfalcons taken from the Arctic last July went to work at the airport on November 1.

"Canada's the only country that's tried falcons to rid airports of gulls," Brian explains, "and this method is by far the most satisfactory. Last season it was all pioneer work, but this year will be the big one as far as the experiment goes."

If you happen to be at Victoria Airport some winter morning about half an hour after daylight you may possibly see the surprising sight of a gyrfalcon clearing the runways of gulls.

It is the only place in the world where falcons are actually working for the safety of passengers.

There was a Tree for Little Henry

One morning in late November John Murray was standing outside the door of the teacherage gazing at the great expanse of bald prairie. The wind was blowing and ghostly mounds of tumbleweed came rolling across the treeless plain filling the fences.

He was the only teacher of the rural school in this German farming community in Southern Saskatchewan.

The thrifty Germans had little time for social life, but though an unexciting place, the salary was sufficient to attract a good teacher.

In the house his young wife was happily putting the finishing touches to the breakfast table. Everything seemed wonderful. It would soon be Christmas, the first Christmas in their own little home. She had great plans for the occasion and hummed a snatch of a Christmas carol as she worked, then gaily called John to breakfast.

As John was enjoying his cigarette and last cup of coffee, Anne, her thoughts still on Christmas, asked: "Are you going to do anything special for Christmas, John. I mean have a party for the school children?"

John look at her in astonishment. "No, why should I? I don't believe in making a fuss over Christmas. It's too commercialized anyway."

Anne was shocked, "Oh, John, not celebrate Christmas, the greatest holiday of the year? Where is your Christmas spirit?"

"I guess I haven't got any," he answered with a smile, then glancing at his wife, "Don't look so stricken, Anne, but I mean it. Christmas, to me, is no more than any other day." Kissing Anne on the cheek he strode out and across the field to the schoolhouse.

Anne sat still. For a moment she seemed stunned. "No more than any other day," kept repeating in her mind. How terrible. It has to mean more if we believe, she thought. After awhile she raised her bowed head and said aloud solemnly:

"I believe. To me it is not just like any other day!"

She pondered the question continuously but was startled when, after dinner, John said, "Why so serious, Anne? Are you still thinking about Christmas?"

"Yes, John, I can't get over what you said this morning. You don't really mean that Christmas is just like any other day, do you?"

John hesitated, "In one way, yes. I think it's too commercialized, tempting people to buy what they can't afford. It seems to me that to treat it like any other holiday, or a Sunday if you wish, would be much better."

"But don't you believe in what Christmas stands for, the commemoration of the birth of Christ?"

"Yes, Anne, I'm no infidel if that is what you mean, but do we need any special celebration?"

"I think we do, John, we should show what we believe, and don't you think commercialism, like almost everything else, is individual? But to me, and I know to many others, Christmas is the greatest holiday of the year and should be celebrated and remembered with joy and thankfulness, not in feasting only, but in thoughtful kindness, giving what we can, in love, because we want to make others happy. Children especially should have it to remember. You do understand what I mean, don't you?"

John thought for a minute before answering. "No, not quite. However, I am glad to know how you feel, dear. But what about Santa Claus?"

"To me Santa Claus is just the embodiment of good-will and friendliness, conjured up, if you like, for the pleasure of children, but they should be told the real reason for the Christmas celebration and that Santa is only the symbol of love."

Anne did not mention Christmas again but began the next day to plan what she would do. She would send for a small Christmas tree and stars for decorations and she would do all the things they used to do at home to prepare for the holiday. She often felt guilty when she thought of all she was doing in secrecy and many times she nearly confessed.

Tuesday evening, December 10, John went to a school meeting. Anne was finishing a dress for a doll she was giving to a little niece. The evening was cold and as she put another piece of wood on the fire she glanced at the clock. It was 11:15. Surely John would not be much longer. She put the coffee percolator on to boil and cups and fresh burns on the table. The coffee was bubbling merrily when she heard John's footsteps on the crunchy snow outside and hurried to open the door and help him off with his overcoat.

"You must be tired, dear, come and have some coffee," she patted his arm.

John looked around at the cosy warmth of the comfortable room and his gaze rested on the serene face of Anne as she poured the coffee. He seemed to be in deep thought. Anne could feel that something was troubling him, but hesitated to ask.

At last looking up, he said, "Anne, 'I guess I'm all wrong. I don't know or understand the working of people's minds. I thought no one would care whether Christmas was celebrated by a children's school party or not, but it seems they do care. They want the children to have a Christmas party and they want me to arrange it. They will help all they can, but they want me to take charge and asked if you would help me. It's very late to be thinking about it and I didn't know what to say. However, I promised to talk it over with you and let them know tomorrow. Do you think we can do it?"

Anne clasped her hands and looked up at him with shining eyes.

"Oh John! I'm so glad I can tell you all the things that have been troubling me. I do hope you will understand and not be angry because I kept it secret."

John was amazed as Anne told him of her plans to celebrate Christmas. He was hurt that he had not been consulted or his ideas considered and still maintained that he thought it unnecessary, but when Anne told him about the tree and the decorations, which at that very moment were up at Smith's farm, he relented and became nearly as enthusiastic as she was.

After discussing the party John sat still, a worried look on his tired face. At last he rose and stretched wearily. Then putting his arm around Anne, he said soberly, "But, Anne, you will never repeat this will you, go off on your own and do things without telling me and regardless of what I think?" He looked down at her anxiously.

Anne's lips trembled and her eyes filled with tears as she answered in a low voice. "No, John, I never will. I've hated keeping it from you, but I did want you to know how I felt. I wanted to show my love, and my faith."

Her head was on his shoulder and he stroked her hair gently. After a while he said thoughtfully, "I think I am beginning to understand a little of how you feel. To me Christmas is Christmas without any need of outward signs. We know what it signifies and our faith is in our hearts and minds, but to put it across to others we have to give of ourselves and try to spread the joy of our faith by making others feel it, too. The power of the soul must work through matter. Is that what you mean, Anne?" She nodded, holding him tightly.

Next evening they had an early dinner to get to the schoolhouse in plenty of time, but even so there were several of the parents already there. Farmers and their wives. The plans for the party were discussed freely and all seemed satisfied, but after a little whispering among the women Mrs. Kreuger, the mother of six, stood up and said shyly in broken English, "We wondered, could we have a little tree? Here in this country we have no real Christmas tree, but we take a little willow and put green paper round the branches and make a little tree for the children. My little Henry, he has never seen a Christmas tree."

She sat down.

John answered with a friendly smile. "Yes, Mrs. Kreuger, we will have a tree for little Henry and all the other children. Now we will divide the children's names so that we all get the same number to get some suitable gift for. Please give the child's age as well."

As there were some large families in the district it worked out at four children to a

Victoria Welcomed with Wild Excitement

The coming of the Grey Cup to British Columbia for the first time sent me digging into aged papers to find out what I could about the donor of the coveted trophy—Earl Grey, Governor-General of Canada, 1904-1911.

Though he had been in British Columbia before the turn of the century he first came here as Governor-General in 1906, to be greeted by crowds in the streets, triumphal arches, fireworks and high society events galore.

Lieutenant Governor James Dunsmuir and his wife drove down to the docks by carriage from Government House, to greet the federal government steamer Quadra in which the vice-regal couple had travelled from Vancouver. Though the motor car by then had come to Victoria His Honor deemed it more fitting and dignified that the representative of King Edward VII should travel by horse-drawn landau.

The Colonist noted: "The capital was in fete from end to end; the magnificent arches of welcome, the flag-dressed buildings . . . at James Bay and along the inner harbor the vessels and wharves were gay with bunting."

Nearly 100 "white-robed, flower-wreathed maidens, carrying bouquets, formed a guard of honor along the curving driveway to the Parliament Buildings, where, on the main stone steps, His Excellency was greeted by Mayor A. J. Morley."

With Earl and Countess Grey were their daughters, the Lady Sybil and the Lady Evelyn, and their newly-wedded son and daughter-in-law, the Lord and Lady Howick.

In the welcoming party were noted citizens of that day—Major Guy Audain, Lieutenant-Governor Dunsmuir's son-in-law; the Government House private secretaries, H. J. S. Muskett and Lieut. Arthur Bromley, also a Dunsmuir son-in-law; R. G. Tatlow, minister of finance; Fred Fulton, provincial secretary; Mr. Justice Archer Martin; the Lord Bishop of Columbia; the Roman Catholic Archbishop Orsh; Hon. William Templeman, Senator W. J. Macdonald, Capt. Hunt of HMS Shearwater, Capt. Fleet, RN; Col. W. J. Holmes, Col. E. G. Prior; R. F. Green, chief commissioner of lands and works, and Canon Beauland.

The Colonist gave some of the details: "The noble earl remained some minutes in converse before descending to the carriages, and opportunity was given for a very pretty feature of the ceremony, namely the presentation of a lovely basket of flowers to the Countess by A. H. Douglas' small son, a grandson of Sir James Douglas, father of Victoria and founder of British Columbia, who performed his delicate office with infinite grace and looked every inch a courtier in embryo."

That night, while the Earl and his Countess rested at Government House crowds swarmed into the streets, and "a flood of light transformed the prosaic streets and buildings into a scene of fairyland."

Next evening there was a reception in the Legislative Buildings. The Colonist said: "Never before in the history of Victoria has anything so brilliant been attempted as the display with which her citizens celebrated the grand official function at which the opportunity was accorded of presentation to the representative of their sovereign. The Parliament Buildings were a marvel of the electricians' art, every detail of their delicate architecture being clearly defined against the sombre darkness of the distant Olympians (sic), whilst looking northward the scene was one of bewildering beauty and magnificence, the long-drawn, glittering vista culminating in the splendid Chinese arch, itself a blaze of light and coloring."

Special preparations were made inside the Buildings: "The cabinet room had been prepared as a retiring and refreshment room for His Excellency. The Speaker's suite was placed at the disposal of the Countess and her daughters. The private room of the Clerk of the House was allotted to His Honor, while the Cedar Room was devoted to the use of Mrs. Dunsmuir and her daughters, and the Maple Room to the wives and daughters of the cabinet ministers."

"The refreshment room was located in the rotunda, on the ground floor beneath the dome. The retiring rooms were most elegantly and elaborately furnished by Messrs. D. Spencer Limited, and the floral decorations reflected the greatest credit upon the proprietors of Flewin's Gardens, and E. A. Wallace, the manager."

I read during the recent Grey Cup weekend that Earl Grey would probably be horrified if he knew that half the Grey Cup contenders in Canada are Americans. However, I'm not so sure of that, for my research says that Earl Grey liked Americans and they liked him.

The Seattle Post-Intelligencer went so far as to write an editorial about him, calling him "an able and tried administrator, and a lofty-minded gentleman," going on to say: "An imperialist of the imperialists, Earl Grey is a pupil of that great Empire builder, Cecil Rhodes."

"Earl Grey would find, if he would step over the border, that Americans in this neck of the woods have warm corners in their hearts for him. They remember in the day the Ladies Sybil and Evelyn, the daughters of the Governor, were also visitors to Mr. and Mrs. Dunsmuir's pretty new home on the Esquimalt Road and were there entertained to tea. (This house is now the Swiss Restaurant.)

The lady readers of these articles on old times tell me they dearly love to know what the women in those days wore to fashionable affairs, and so I copied down the details, and hope the ladies enjoy them, as the men enjoy reading those terrific menus of long ago.

There was an official dinner for Earl Grey at Government House, and "the decorations arranged by Mrs. Robin Dunsmuir and Mrs. Harry Pooley were simply superb. The tables were placed in the ballroom in the shape of a horseshoe.

"The Countess wore a most beautiful gown of rich pale silk, Mrs. Dunsmuir a costly black embroidered net over gold; Mrs. Audain looked very pretty in a rich white satin gown, with trimmings of costly seed pearls. Mrs. Chief Justice Hunter looked queenly in white net richly spangled in gold; Mrs. Senator Macdonald wore an elegant pearl grey brocaded silk, with rich lace; Mrs. Justice Irving donned a beautiful grey silk, trimmed with rich black Limerick lace; Mrs. Lyman Duff a pretty black spangled net over white taffeta; Mrs. Ralph Smith, a sweet gown of embroidered net over pink taffeta; Mrs. Premier McBride looked very handsome in a beautiful gown of white embroidered net over taffeta of the same hue; Mrs. William Sloan was in white net with silver spangles; Mrs. Robert F. Green wore a pretty and very stylish black gown of crepe de chine; Miss Pooley was in pretty blue, with pearl trimmings; Miss Pemberton, white net; Miss Violet Pooley looked well in white silk; Mrs. R. P. Butchart was stylish in white lace, and Miss Mary Butchart in a chic pink frock."

Next night there was a ball at Government House for the young people and "His Excellency opened the party dancing the lancers with Mrs. Dunsmuir . . . after this the young people enjoyed themselves. Lady Sybil looked very handsome in a pretty blue costume, and Lady Evelyn was sweet in a pale blue frock, with lace garniture. Mrs. Dunsmuir was strikingly handsome in a beautiful mauve gown. Mrs. Robin Dunsmuir wore an elegant green empire gown. Miss Bessie Dunsmuir a sweet gown of brown and blue chiffon that was accorded to be wonderfully chic. Mrs. Audain looked handsome in a stylish salmon pink empire chiffon gown, as did Miss Marion Dunsmuir in pale blue and Miss Elinor Dunsmuir in a pretty pink frock."

What with all those pretty daughters, the Dunsmuir years at Government House were bright indeed. James Dunsmuir had sisters family. All seemed happy and well pleased as the meeting adjourned.

When Anne got home she looked at their four names. Henry Kreuger, 7; his sister, Minnie Kreuger, 14; Karl Schwartz, 10, and Lena Hasserman, 3. She smiled as she read the names to John.

"Little Henry, he is your youngest pupil, isn't he, John?"

"Yes, and he's just learned to read. He is a clever little boy, bright and thoughtful. His father is an outstanding man."

Anne nodded. "I like his mother, too; she is so capable and yet so modest and unassuming."

At last, and all too soon for John and Anne, December 23 rolled around. They had been more than busy getting everything ready. Once John got started he was determined to make the Christmas party a success and spared no effort.

Anne was also doing all she could. They were fortunate enough to have a piano at the school and she had the children practicing Christmas carols. She found that Minnie had an exceptionally sweet, rich voice for a girl of fourteen. Minnie loved to sing, especially "Silent Night," so Anne let her practise until the soft rendering was really beautiful.

The secret of the little tree had been well kept and when on the afternoon of Dec. 23 the schoolhouse doors were opened and the children and their parents entered the room and first saw the tree shining so symbolically with the stars shimmering in the light, they were amazed and the children shouted in delight. Old Grandma Kreuger, who couldn't speak a word of English, walked slowly forward and stood with clasped hands enthralled. "Ach du, so schon, so schon," she said softly.

After the first surprise was over and things were quiet John told the children simply the meaning of Christmas and read the Christmas Story. Then the carols were sung and the games played with great hilarity, all taking part. A little tired and very hungry the excellent refreshments the ladies had prepared soon disappeared, and after Mr. Kreuger had successfully acted as Santa Clause a feeling of peaceful relaxation seemed to prevail.

Then John said quietly, "We have a last little surprise for you before we go home."

Everyone looked up in anticipation as Anne went over to the piano and, smiling at Minnie, began to play.

Minnie walked over to her, then as naturally as a bird might sing, in her sweet warm voice, sang "Silent Night"—in German.

As the last notes melted into silence, the children gazing at the starlit tree were hushed. Little Henry's voice was heard in a whisper:

"Look! This little tree was grown just for Christmas—to hang the stars on."

here then, but they were never invited, because the Governor was not on speaking terms with his sisters, nor his mother, who lived more or less in solitude in her tower bedroom at Craigdarroch Castle.

The first ball given by the Dunsmuirs at Government House was to introduce to society three of their daughters, Beattie, Elinor and Marion, and some of their young friends.

The Colonist said "the brilliancy of the old world seemed on this occasion to be combined with the freedom of the new," and then launched into a description of the high fashion of nearly 60 years ago: "Mrs. Dunsmuir's gown was one of the handsomest ever worn in Victoria. It was of black silk embroidered net over cloth of gold, with bertha and sleeves of real duchesse lace. She also wore a magnificent tiara, necklace, earring and stars, all magnificent diamonds of the first water. Mrs. Robin Dunsmuir wore a dazzling gown of goblin green spangled net over silk of the same hue, with jaunty feather in her hair.

"Mrs. Fred Pemberton wore a handsome gown of white net over white satin; Mrs. O. M. Jones a stylish gown of blue and pink brocade satin with pink chiffon ruchings; Mrs. Little wore a pretty painted organdy, and Mrs. Butchart looked well in a pretty white net.

The debutantes, Miss Bessie, Miss Marion and Miss Elinor Dunsmuir, Miss M. Little, Miss G. Irving, Miss L. Eberts, Miss Phyllis Mason and Miss B. Gaudin all wore white frocks and all were in one set of lancers, together making a pretty picture.

"Mrs. L. A. Genge looked sweet in a handsome white mesaline, with honiton lace; Mrs. Hermann Robertson wore a handsome white satin, and Mrs. Harry Pooley was in a black net empire gown over green taffeta."

An Ontario author who will add to her reputation with a riddle book this season is Bernadette Rajotte. Her Who Am I?, illustrated by Gwen Braund, is based on Mother Goose. On one page is a prose description of the character whose identity is to be guessed, while on the facing page is the verse that gives the answer. Picture-book-age children love puzzles.

With a straight face, Jan Wahl tells a charming yarn of a boy who saves an animal from a zoo and takes it home as a pet. Hello, Elephant, illustrated by Edward Ardizzone, will make youngsters of four and up wish they could call up an elephant.

An unusual idea as a gift for birthdays (which can also be used for Christmas), Alice Low's A Day of Your Own comes with illustrations by Roy McKie for boys and with illustrations by Lial Weil for girls. The verses are appropriately bouncy, conveying the spirit of a joyous birthday.

Research doesn't usually lead to poetry, yet it provides Natalia Belting with lovely material for Calendar Moon, illustrated by Bernarda Bryson. Taking legends and beliefs about the moon from various peoples, such as the North American Indians and Eskimos, Miss Belting has produced colorful, moody verses for the months of the year. Children of six and up and even adults can enjoy this unusual gem.

City children who want a horse will believe Fanny and the Cement Patch by Penelope Coker Wilson, illustrated by Frank Aloise. Jamie Ramsey tries to keep a pony on the paved terrace behind his apartment house. The trouble this causes makes him agree that his mother should marry again, and all ends well. they could go back in time two hundred years after reading Anne Oliver's Bread-and-Butter Indian, illustrated by Garth Williams. Though warned to run if she ever sees an Indian, Barbara Baum does something much smarter. She gives the hungry brave the bread, butter, and sugar from her doll's tea party, and thereby wins his friendship. Later, this proves highly valuable.

Based on a well-known Christmas song, Mildred Correll Luckhardt tells the moving tale of Good King Wenceslas, illustrated by Gordon Laite. A wandering pagan lad, Vojak, learns of Christian love and kindness from the king, whom he once feared. A boy with nothing to call his own, Vojak (or Stephen) becomes one with something to offer anybody in need, thanks to Wenceslas. Fine reading for ages eight to twelve.

Not every Canadian girl can raise a fox as a pet, but Helen Brewster, heroine of Red Friends by Jessie Corrigan Pegie, illustrated by Nora Unwin, loves animals and knows how to care for them. Will a day come when the fox wants to return to the wild? It does, but Helen discovers she is mature enough to let it go, and girls of eight to twelve will be glad.

twelve in Clipper Ship by John O'Hara Cosgrave II. Cutaway and carefully labeled drawings combined with a lively text bring to life an age far removed from modern days and current ways of transport.

Because of its picture-book format or its textbook appearance. Along the Seashore by Margaret Waring Buck may be overlooked by readers of nine and up. This will be unfortunate, for such an excellent guide to what one can find on or near beaches seems best suited for boys and girls past the picture-book ages.

Eve Merriam delights in words and can infect others with her enthusiasm. Boys and girls of ten and up will discover a new world of poetry when they read It Doesn't Always Have to Rhyme, illustrated by Malcolm Spooner. The mood is modern, and a child can enjoy the sounds, even of poems he doesn't understand.

Out of what is known about Spanish explorers, Jeannette Mirsky has pierced together Balboa, Discoverer of the Pacific, illustrated by Hans Guggenheim. It is an interesting story, from the time he was a stowaway debtor to his execution at the hands of a jealous rival. Anyone considering the book for ages ten to fourteen should judge it by its text, not its sketchy pictures.

One of the finest recent books on Canada is Adelaide Leitch's Canada, Young Giant of the North. It pays particular attention to young people—their home life, school work, backgrounds, and leisure-time activities. Even the photographs show young people when possible. Though listed for ages twelve and up, boys and girls of ten to twelve will also enjoy it.

The newest book in the Canadian Careers Library—Big City Office Junior by Astrid and Scott Young—is not so much a career guide to girls' jobs in insurance as it is an exciting picture of how to avoid the pitfalls of being a single teen-ager in a large, strange city. The setting is Toronto, where Mary McMillan learns the police can be a girl's best friends and that a country girl shouldn't change too rapidly.

Teen-age boys seeking a story with a swift pace should enjoy Calgary Adventure by Hugh Mailand, a book in the Brad Forrest Adventure Series. From the fire that starts in the opening chapter to the chuck wagon race of the final pages, here is a yarn that relies on strange discoveries, narrow escapes, and plenty of action to hold the reader's attention.

From Teacher and Students: New Verse

Frank Davey, a lecturer in English at Royal Roads Tri-Services College, has given us a little book of verse called City of the Gulls and Sea.

It is about Victoria, in the main, the sights, sounds and history of the place.

The verse form is that of modern, staccato style which doesn't scan and doesn't rhyme, but which nevertheless possesses a rhythm—although for the life of me I cannot understand the line breaks. But obviously someone does, for this sort of composition is increasingly popular, particularly among the newer poets.

Mr. Davey's writing has a picturesque quality. His language has a refined simplicity which this writer finds commendable. And there are philosophical overtones.

A volume written and published by high school students. Restricted, as is admirable as it is ambitious. Some of the work is outstanding—and not just in the student classification.

There is a singing quality in Bruce Bennet's "Night," and a very considerable depth and facility of expression in Ian Hallett's "Ode to a Burning Milk Carton." I liked Richard Shepherd's "Loneliness" for its language, not for its sentimentality; and Monte Farrell's "Love" is effective if a little affected, but that is unintentional.

Possibly the most dramatic piece of writing in this anthology is Christina Sherr's "This Hand." Or perhaps Gary Hayman's "Steel," except that it is a painful experience.

Halkett and Herbert Neuls have collaborated in "The Children of Death." It has for its rather tiresome theme the bright pledge of youth to "grasp the threads of hate you've left and tear them out." But it has literary quality, just the same.

Apart from some pretty appalling grammatical errors and occasional rhetorical lapses this is a genuinely thoughtful and diligent effort. If the young authors don't quite touch the stars, remember, they haven't reached full stature.

Vancouver Island and the B.C. Interior around Williams Lake, down to Osoyoos, and from Garibaldi Park into the Selkirk Mountains—this was the hunting ground of George A. and Winifred V. Hardy.

They were hunting wild flowers.

work will appeal to the young and their elders.

It is titled Wild Flowers of the Pacific Northwest, and is a companion-volume to Wild Flowers in the Rockies.

Both books are illustrated by Frank L. Beebe, the reproductions from accurate and delicate water-colors.

H. R. Larson Publishing Co. of Saskatoon has done a first class lithographic job for $9.50.

One of the things that makes James Morton's book of poetry unique is the fact that it has been released by Gray's Publishing of Sidney in the author's 95th year.

In a brief foreword Mr. Morton readily admits that much of this writing was done before he turned 90, and he adds, characteristically:

"Go forth my songs, may you possess
Some soul with love and gentleness
Who coming after me will say
I knew him once—he came this way."

James is known to a good many. Years ago he was a member of the Victoria pines gallery and later private secretary to premiers, and he is remembered for his writings of those earlier times. His biography of one premier of B.C., Honest John Oliver, was outstanding. His published fiction of the era was well reviewed half a century ago.

This book of verses is a motley of whimsy and philosophy. Readers will chuckle, and that will please the author.

No Man More Than He Brought Home The True Message of Christmas

When was "A Christmas Carol" published?

It first appeared on the bookstands of London on Dec. 19, 1843.

How did Charles Dickens get the idea for his story?

The idea came to him as he left London to take part in the ceremonies at the opening of the new Athenaeum at Manchester in the first week of October, 1843.

How long did it take him to write it?

He began the composition about a week after his return to London on October 7, and was busily occupied for the next six or seven weeks.

Was he aware he was writing a Christmas classic?

He may have been, for as the story progressed, he fell greatly under its spell; according to his own words, he "wept, and laughed, and wept again, and excited himself in the most extraordinary manner in the composition?"

What was its reception by the book-buying public?

It became a "best-seller." On the first day it went on sale, the first edition of 6,000 copies was sold out.

What is the value today of a copy of this first edition?

When it was first published, did readers enthuse over this story of Christmas?

All through that Christmas season letters poured in upon Dickens from delighted purchasers. Coming from the humblest homes, they told of how much joy the "Carol" had brought them, how it was read again and again, treasured so highly that it was even "kept on a little shelf by itself."

Were noted critics impressed with it?

They were no less enthusiastic. Thomas

CHARLES DICKENS

Hood, the poet, swore Dickens must have been inspired, while Lord Jeffrey, the famous editor of The Edinburgh Review wrote the author: "Blessing on your kind heart! . . . You have done more good by this little publication, fostered more kindly feelings . . . than can be traced to all the pulpits and confessionals in Christendom . . ."

"What did Dickens' great rival, Thackeray, think of it?"

Thackeray was effusive in his praise. In a review for Fraser's Magazine: "It is the work of the master of all the English humorists now alive . . . Who can listen to the ob-

As a child Charles Dickens learned of the evils of the debtor's prison and the harshness of humanity. But by the time he was 34 he had achieved fame for himself and security for his family, and in this great house in London he wrote one of his most famous stories, "The Christmas Carol." The house is gone now, to make way for a low-rental housing project—and of this Dickens very likely would have approved.

jections regarding such a book as this? It seems to me a national benefit, and to every man or woman who reads it a personal kindness."

Was Dickens' story effective in promoting the Christmas spirit?

In his review Thackeray said: "Many men were known to sit down after perusing it, and write off letters to their friends, not about business, but out of their fullness of heart, and to wish old acquaintances a Happy Christmas."

How old was Dickens at the time he wrote "A Christmas Carol"?

He was 31, and already world-famous as the author of "Pickwick Papers," "Oliver Twist," "Nicholas Nickleby," "The Old Curiosity Shop," and "Barnaby Rudge."

Was he personally given to much enthusiasm over the holiday?

Few men ever entered more wholeheartedly into the spirit of Christmas than the great novelist. It was said that he "lived for the holiday," and was always carried away by the spirit of good cheer and friendliness that then prevailed.

In that Christmas season when his book took London by storm, how did he celebrate?

There was great festivity in the Dickens home on Devonshire Terrace. A lively succession of parties was held, where dancing, blindman's buff and conjuring games furnished no end of fun for the guests.

What has become of Dickens' original manuscript of "A Christmas Carol"?

It now forms part of the valuable collection of the Morgan Library in New York City. During the Second World War it was removed for safe-keeping, in fear of air raids, but it was afterward brought back to the library and may now be seen at the Christmas season.
